GAZETTE OF INDIA.

NOTICE.

The 16th March, 1918.

On and after 30th March and until further notice, Parts I, IV, V and VI of the Gazette of India and the Weather and Crop Report will be published in Simla. Parts II and III will continue to be published in Calcutta. All notifications and other matter intended for publication in those Parts should be addressed to the Publisher at Simla and Calcutta, respectively.

Attention is invited to the following Circular Memorandum of the Government of India, Home Department, of August 1901:—

"It has been brought to the notice of this Department that matter for the Gazette of India is sometimes sent to the Press late on Friday evenings for publication in the next day's Gazette and that this involves considerable inconvenience to the Press and expense to Government. In the Circular Memorandum of this Department, No. 777—79, dated 9th February 1870, the Government of India directed that all notifications or other matter intended for insertion in the Gazette of India should be delivered at the Press not later than 2 p.m. on Friday, and that any papers sent thereafter must be certified to be extremely urgent in order to ensure their appearance in the next day's Gazette. The undersigned is directed to request that these orders may be more strictly observed in future, and that Departments will refrain from sending to the Press as extremely urgent any papers which can without harm or inconvenience be held over for the next Gazette."

J. P. HEWETT,

Secretary to the Government of India."

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Patent Office Handbook (price one rupee) which contains the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary Rules) Act, 1915, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary) Rules, 1915, together with current regulations and instructions. These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs or on their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. For information regarding patents in countries other than India applications should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration. Neither does this Act deal with pictures, photographs, etc., for which copyright is obtainable under the Indian Copyright Act, 1914.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India.

These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

COTTON PRESS RETURN.

No. 23 of 1917-18.

PREFATORY NOTE.

THE COTTON SEASON, 1917-18.

The yield of the cotton crop of 1917-18 was estimated in February, 1918, at 4,035,000 bales on an area of 24,781,000 acres, as compared with 4,489,000 bales on an area of 21,745,000 acres, the revised final figures of the preceding year. There was a decrease of 10 per cent in outturn. There were 1,650,000 bales of cotton pressed in the pressing factories, and 523,000 bales of unpressed cotton received in the spinning mills, from 1st September, 1917, to 15th August, 1918, as against 2,116,000 bales and 504,000 bales, respectively, during the corresponding period of last year, showing a decrease of 22 per cent in the case of presses, but an increase of 4 per cent in the case of mills. Too much stress should not be laid on the accuracy of these returns as a means of checking the forecast estimates of outturn, as there is at present no system in vogue of furnishing complete returns from all presses and mills. The figures for the Native States of Hyderabad, Central India, Rajputana, and Mysore are, as will be seen from the footnotes to the tables, mostly incomplete and have been excluded from this comparison.

1.—Cotton Press Return for India in the half-month ending 15th August, 1918.

NOTE.—Columns 9 and 10 include the paid-up capital of new companies registered during the half-year.

(a) Revised.

(b) Registered under the Mysore Regulation III of 1895.

This statement is compiled from returns furnished half-yearly by Registrars of Joint Stock Companies. From a comparison of columns 2 and 3 with columns 15 and 16, it will be seen that at the end of June, 1918, the total paid-up share capital of companies registered under the Indian Companies Act (VII of 1913) in British India amounted to about Rs. 99 crores, and the debenture capital of such companies over Rs. 12 crores, showing a net increase of Rs. 5 crores in paid-up share capital, and of nearly Rs. 7 lakhs in debenture capital, as compared with the preceding half-year ending December, 1917. In the paid-up share capital Bengal shows a net increase of Rs. 2,75,35,000, Bombay of Rs. 1,25,70,000, the United Provinces of Rs. 61,40,000, Madras of Rs. 32,23,000, and Delhi of Rs. 20,42,000, while the Punjab shows a net decrease of Rs. 13,97,000. In the debenture capital Bombay shows a net increase of Rs. 24,10,000, while Bengal shows a net decrease of Rs. 11,18,000 and the Punjab of Rs. 6,20,000.

The following statement compares the total paid-up share and debenture capital in British India at the end of the half-year of report with the preceding half-year, the corresponding half-year of the previous year, and the pre-war half-year ending June, 1914 :—

	Share capital	Debenture capital
Half-year ending June	Rs.	Rs.
1914	75,30,83,000	9,61,56,000
" " June 1917	90,12,06,000	18,19,56,000
" " December 1917	98,64,96,000	12,30,32,000
" " June 1918	98,69,44,000	12,26,98,000

Since the outbreak of war there has been a steady increase in the paid-up share capital of companies registered under the Indian Companies Act (VII of 1913).

NOTICE AS TO PRODUCTION OF NUMBERS OF IMPORT LICENSE

NEW TRADE BOARD RULE.

MUST BE OBTAINED ON ALL COMMODITIES BEFORE THEY LEAVE FOREIGN PORTS.

Expected the order will avoid uncertainty on form of procedure.

The War Trade Board issues the following : -

The War Trade Board, through its Bureau of Imports has issued a ruling to United States consular agents throughout the world, that on and after May 27th, 1918, no consular invoices for any commodity are to be consulated unless the shipper furnishes the Consul the number of the United States import license covering the shipment. The only exception to this rule is the case of shipments covered by general import licenses.

Extends present regulations.

Already it is necessary for importers to communicate to their shippers abroad the number of the United States import license for articles on the restricted lists before consular invoice can be obtained and shipments started from abroad. The present ruling extends this regulation to all articles, both restricted and unrestricted, except such as are covered by general import licenses. This means that import licenses must be obtained for the importation of all commodities before they leave foreign ports. It is believed that this will avoid much uncertainty in the minds of both importers here and consular agents abroad as to what import license numbers must be communicated abroad. It will also give the War Trade Board an opportunity of passing upon all importations from a standpoint of enemy trade connection before shipments are put in transit.

Prompt action on applications.

The Bureau of Imports will pass promptly on all applications for import licenses, so that, if the license is granted, the importer may be informed immediately of his license number and send it by mail or cable to his shipper abroad.

As intimated above, certain classes of importations are permitted to enter under general import licenses; and where these licenses exist it is unnecessary for importers to apply for individual import licenses. These general licenses are designated as "PBF Licenses." The principal ones now in effect are the following :—

"PBF-1."—Covering the importation of all commodities not on the restricted lists, where the value does not exceed one hundred dollars (100).

"P.B.F. 2."—Covering all importations into Alaska, Canal Zone, Paillippine Islands, Hawaii, Guam, Totuila, Porto Rico, Virgin Islands, when they are for consumption in those countries and not for transshipment.

"P.B.F. 3."—Covering the importation of all commodities from Canada and Newfoundland, except those mentioned in the President's import proclamation of November 29, 1917. Where such commodities are on the restricted lists, this general license covers them only when shipped by rail or lake, and when they originate in Canada or Newfoundland or in a country from which they would be licensed for importation directly.

"P.B.F. 4."—Covering the importation of fresh fruits and fresh vegetables, when transported overland from Mexico, or overland or by great Lakes from Canada, or by rail from Cuba.

"P.B.F. 5."—Covering the importation of goods previously exported from the United States, when the value thereof does not exceed five hundred dollars ($500).

"P.B.F. 6."—Covering the importation of personal baggage accompanying a passenger when containing only articles necessary for personal use on journey.

"P.B.F. 7."—Covering the importation of fresh vegetables from Bermuda when shipped on vessels approved by the War Trade Board.

"P.B.F. 8."—Covering the importation of fresh fruit and vegetables from Cuba when shipped on vessels approved by the War Trade Board.

"P.B.F. 9."—Covering importations of all empty drums, cylinders and containers American owned, which have been used in the exportation of commodities from the United States.

"P.B.F. 10."—Covering the importation of tobacco from Cuba and the West Indies.

"P.B.F. 11."—Covering the importation of cotton from Mexico.

Consuls Abroad Informed.

Consuls abroad have been informed of the existence of these general import licenses, and they will certify consular invoices for shipments coming under them without requiring the number of the individual import license.

Notice No. W.T.B.R.-114, dated the 17th May 1918, regarding Revocation of small shipment Import license.

The General License heretofore issued covering the importation of all commodities under $100 value is hereby revoked as to all articles on Restricted Lists or any Supplements thereto, as to shipments made after May 10 1918. The General License covering the importation of all commodities under $100 value is still effective as to the importation of commodities not on Restricted Lists or any Supplements thereto.

His Majesty the KING has been graciously pleased to approve of the following Awards to the undermentioned Officers and Warrant Officers, in recognition of their gallantry and devotion to duty in the Field :—

* * * * *

Awarded a Bar to the Distinguished Service Order.

* * * * *

Lt.-Col. (T.-Brig.-Gen.) Edward Arthur Fagan, C.M.G., D.S.O., I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When his front battalion was being overwhelmed he personally directed the action to be taken by other battalions, with the utmost disregard for his personal safety. He inspired all ranks with enthusiasm, and the success of the defence was largely due to his fine example.

(D.S.O. gazetted 1st January 1917.)

* * * * *

Awarded the Distinguished Service Order.

* * * * *

Maj. (A. Lt.-Col.) Hyde Ridgway Dyer, Ind. Cav.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. In the face of heavy fire he led his men in successful charges with great dash and ability. He twice had his horse shot under him. He proved himself a very able and gallant leader.

* * * * *

T.-Capt. (A.-Lt.-Col.) Kenneth William Mackenzie, M.C., M.B., R.A.M.C. (late Capt. I.M.S.).

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in charge of the forward evacuation, when he kept in touch with the retiring infantry, continually searching for and collecting the wounded. It was largely due to his great energy, skill and foresight that so many of our casualties were so successfully evacuated.

* * * * *

Awarded the Military Cross.

* * * * *

Jemadar Budhibal Thapa, Gurkha Rif.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in an attack. This officer's dash and magnificent example carried his platoon on to the enemy's left flank, a movement which resulted in the capture of sixty-two unwounded prisoners by his company.

Proceedings of the Indian Legislative Council.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ASSEMBLED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915
(5 & 6 Geo. V. Ch. 61).

THE Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Monday, the 23rd September, 1918.

PRESENT :

His Excellency BARON CHELMSFORD, P.C., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., G.C.M.G., G.C.B.E., Viceroy and Governor General, presiding, and 52 Members, of whom 48 were Additional Members.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel asked :—

1. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the system of examinations by compartment has been introduced by any Universities for any of their examinations? If so, by which Universities and for what examinations?"

11-3 A.M.

Examination by compartment.

(b) Was a communication on the subject addressed to Government by the Hon'ble Lala Sukhbir Singh in January 1917? If so, will Government be pleased to lay it on the table?"

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair replied :—

"(a) A statement* giving the information asked for is laid on the table. Further information will be found in the University calendars.

(b) As I mentioned in my reply to a question by the Hon'ble Raja Sir Rampal Singh at the meeting of the Legislative Council on the 5th September, 1917, I received a communication in January, 1917, from the Hon'ble Lala Sukhbir Singh regarding university examinations by compartments. The views of the Hon'ble Lala Sukhbir Singh were expressed in an article (copy of which he enclosed) in the issue of the Central Hindu College Magazine which appeared on the 1st September, 1916. It therefore seems unnecessary to lay the communication and its enclosure on the table."

* Not included in these Proceedings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; [23RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.]
Sir William Meyer; Mir Asad Ali, Khan
Bahadur; Sir Robert Gillan.]

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

Imperial heads of revenue.

2. "(a) Will Government be pleased to make a statement showing the amount of revenue received under each Imperial head of revenue in respect of the different Provinces during each of the last five years?

(b) Will Government be pleased to make a similar statement in regard to the various divided heads of revenue showing the amounts credited to the Imperial and Provincial Governments, respectively, under each head in the different Provinces during each of the last five years?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"I lay on the table two statements* giving the figures asked for by the Hon'ble Member."

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur, asked :—

Construction of railway line between Balharsha
and Warangal.

3. "(a) Is it proposed to construct a railway line between Balharsha on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway and Warangal on the Nizam's Guaranteed State Railway, and, if so, when?

(b) Is there any proposal to extend the Nizam's Guaranteed State Railway line from Wanaparti Road to Kurnool or Nandyal, and, if so, at what point will the proposed line meet the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway?

(c) Is it proposed to construct a railway line between Hingoli and Akola, and, if so, when?"

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Gillan replied :—

"(a) The reply is in the affirmative. His Exalted Highness the Nizam's Government who, as at present arranged, will finance the construction of the Balharsha-Warangal Railway, have proposed to defer the construction till the end of the war.

(b) It was at one time proposed to construct a metre gauge connection between Hyderabad and Kurnool or Nandyal, with a view to linking up the metre gauge system of Hyderabad State with the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway. This scheme has, however, been superseded in part by the Secunderabad-Gadag project, of which the Secunderabad-Wanaparti Road Railway forms the first section. There is no proposal at present before the Government of India for an extension of this railway to Kurnool or Nandyal.

(c) It is not proposed to construct a railway between Hingoli and Akola. A reconnaissance survey of a line from Akola to Basim has however recently been ordered by the Railway Board."

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur, asked :—

Changes in the running of trains on the Great Indian
Peninsula Railway.

4. "(a) Have there been new changes in the running of trains on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, since the 1st of September, such as the cancellation of the Delhi 'Express' and the running of the 'Mail' only as far as Delhi?"

(b) Is it a fact that no carriage is provided in the Bombay-Delhi mail for intermediate class passengers, and that such passengers are in consequence put to inconvenience? If so, do Government intend to draw the attention of the railway authorities to this matter?"

* Not included in these Proceedings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[28RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

[*Sir Robert Gillan; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy;
His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India.*]The Hon'ble Sir Robert Gillan replied :—

"The reply to part (a) of the question is in the affirmative. Before 1st September a mail train between Bombay and Peshawar and an express train between Bombay and Delhi ran via the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and a mail train ran between Bombay and Lahore via Bombay Baroda and Central India Railway. With a view to reducing passenger train mileage, it was decided to run only one mail train between Bombay and the Punjab, and the Bombay Baroda and Central India train now runs between Bombay and Peshawar, the Great Indian Peninsula mail runs between Bombay and Delhi and the express train has been cancelled.

(b) Intermediate class accommodation has not hitherto been provided in the Great Indian Peninsula mail, and there may be difficulties in providing it now, but the matter will be taken up with the Great Indian Peninsula Administration."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

5. "Will Government be pleased to state the number of Engineering works engaged in India on private account and on Munitions work; and how many of the latter were before the war working on private account?"

Engineering works engaged on Munitions works.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India replied :—

"I regret that it is impracticable to give a complete answer to the Hon'ble Member's inquiry, but, with a view to giving the fullest information that could be obtained rapidly, inquiries were addressed by the Munitions Board to 95 engineering firms, this number including all the more important engineering works in India and Burma, but not the hundreds of small contractors who have been employed by provincial officers of the Munitions Board.

2. Replies have been received from 90 firms, and from these the following figures have been summarised. There are now 21 engineering firms engaged wholly on private work; 69 are engaged partly on munitions and partly on private work. Of these 69 firms, seven have come into existence since the outbreak of war; 42 were engaged partly on Government and partly on private work before the war; and 20 were doing only private work before the war.

3. There are two works not included in these figures, namely, the Albion Foundry, and the Kutra Iron Works, at Calcutta, which have been taken over by Government and are wholly employed on munitions work under Government control. It should also be understood that none of the Government Ordnance Factories nor the Railway Workshops have been included in the engineering firms, although large quantities of munitions have been manufactured in railway workshops.

4. The Hon'ble Member will understand that, in obtaining replies from a large number of firms, the replies have in many instances left much to be desired in point of fulness, and the time available has not permitted doubtful points to be cleared up."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

6. "Will Government be pleased to state the number of Railway waggons in India at the beginning of the war, the number of waggons now lying useless for want of repairs, and the number of waggons exported to Mesopotamia for use there?"

Railway waggons.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir Robert Gillan; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; Sir William Vincent.] [23RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Gillan replied :—

"The number of waggons on Indian Railways on the 31st March 1914 was 170,444.

The number of waggons at present laid up for repairs is 10,290 or about 6 per cent., of which 1,860 or about 1 per cent. of the total, are laid up for want of materials. The number is lower than in normal times owing to the efforts railways are making to keep every available wagon on the road.

The number of waggons sent to Overseas Forces is 4,251, of which all but 57 were metre gauge or 2' 6".

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea asked :—

Political prisoners detained under Regulation
III of 1818.

7. (a) Do Government intend to repeal the rule under which political prisoners detained under Regulation III of 1818 are confined in separate cells, and are not allowed to associate with one another or other people?
- (b) Is it a fact that political prisoners detained under the Regulation were differently treated in 1908?
- (c) Do Government propose to permit political prisoners under the Regulation to read newspapers selected, if necessary, by Government?

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

(a) There is no intention of changing the rule; these prisoners are allowed to associate, in the morning and in the evening when they take their exercise, with a limited number of other political prisoners.

(b) Yes, in some respects. The circumstances of 1908 were different. There were only nine such prisoners and it was possible to arrange for their confinement in separate jails.

(c) Under existing orders political prisoners are allowed to read selected newspapers, magazines and books."

Hunger strikers
in Hazaribagh Jail.

8. (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the reports which have appeared in newspapers regarding a hunger strike on the part of political detenus under Bengal Regulation III of 1818 in the Hazaribagh Jail?

(b) Is it the case that the Superintendent twitted the prisoners with their being Home Rulers and Bengalis?

(c) Is the statement of severe treatment set forth in the newspapers substantially correct? If not, will Government be pleased to point out the inaccuracies in the report?

(d) Is it true that the Superintendent personally dragged the State prisoners on their refusing to move and brought in a body of Gurkhas to overawe them?

(e) Is it the case that books and magazines which had been previously passed for use of the detenus were stopped by the order of the Superintendent? If so, why were they stopped?

(f) Is it the case as stated in the newspaper report that 'the most solemn promises of the Inspector General the late and the present Superintendent were being broken and they were threatened with all sorts of punishments and lived every hour in fear of actual bodily assault from the Jail officials ? ”

(g) Did any prisoners go on hunger strike, and, if so, has the Government ordered any official inquiry into the causes which led to the hunger strike ? If so, will Government be pleased to lay the report of such inquiry on the table ? ”

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

“ I lay on the table a Statement* which replies to the Hon'ble Member's questions.”

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma asked :—

9. “ Will Government be pleased to state whether the quantities of salt in stock are expected to meet the normal requirements of the country, and, if not, what steps are proposed to be taken to meet the deficiency ? ”

Quantity of salt in stock.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

“ The Government of India are of opinion that the existing salt stocks, together with the anticipated output from the salt sources and expected imports from abroad, are quite sufficient to meet the normal requirements of the country.

The following particulars may perhaps prove of interest. The Sambhar lake, which is the largest source of supply in Northern India, has at present a stock nearly equal to the normal year's total output—a result arising mainly from favourable climatic conditions during the current season, and extensive improvements are also being taken in hand. A record output is expected from the Pachhadra source, and the yield of the Khewra mines was increased last year to 38 lakhs of maunds against the pre-war output of 34 lakhs of maunds, and the former figure will probably be considerably exceeded in the current year owing to the various improvements which have been effected in pursuance of a general scheme which is not yet complete. Further improvements in the working of the Northern India salt sources and in the distribution of their output are under consideration. The question is mainly one of the most efficient means of transport from the mines or the salt pans to the railway.

The stocks in Madras, with the additions expected before the end of the year, are more than twice as much as the estimated consumption for the remaining months of the current official year, and the area under cultivation in 1919 is expected to be 20,000 acres as against 12,000 acres in pre-war times.

There has been a similar expansion of local manufacture in Burma, where it is hoped, that three-quarters of the demand will be met from local sources.

Bengal still depends mainly on foreign imports, though several schemes for local production are being pursued. Improved shipping arrangements which we do not think will be interfered with by other demands have secured a great increase in supplies, the imports in the four months ending July having been nearly twice as much as in the corresponding period of 1917.

Stocks in Bombay are adequate, but steps have been taken which should increase the output by 15 to 20 lakhs of maunds, and the Government of India have under their consideration a large scheme for the reorganisation of the Kharaghoda works.

The Hon'ble Member will thus see that the Government of India have not been contented merely to meet the anticipated normal requirements of the country, but are taking steps to render it possible to supply, if necessary, a margin in excess of those requirements to meet unforeseen emergencies."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma asked :—

Control of the stocks of cotton cloth
in the Madras
Presidency.

10. "Do Government propose to assume control of the existing stocks of cotton cloth in the Madras Presidency by issuing the necessary notifications and exercising their powers thereunder with a view to enable the poor to purchase cloths at reasonable rates ? "

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :

"The Government of India have received no communication from the Madras Government on the subject referred to. The Hon'ble Member will doubtless have observed that action in the direction proposed has already been taken by the Government of India at the request of the Government of Bengal, but the scope of that action is for the present confined merely to the licensing of cloth dealers, with a view in the first instance to the elimination of speculators rather than to controlling prices. So far as imported piece-goods are concerned, these are still below the figure at which they can be replaced by fresh importations, and any step which had the result of a permanent reduction in prices would deprive the country of further imports."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma asked :—

Internment of Darisi Chenchaiiah.

11. "Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether and how long Darisi Chenchaiiah, a native of Nellore District, Madras Presidency, has been interned under their orders ;

(b) the circumstances which led to his internment and to the continuance thereof ; and

(c) whether they intend to release him or bring him speedily to trial ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"(a) Darisi Chenchaiiah has been interned in India since the 7th April 1916.

(b) Before the war he was a member of the Ghadr party in California and a follower of the notorious Har Dayal. At one time he was reported to be in charge of the despatching of the Ghadr newspaper from the San Francisco Office. In 1915, he took part in an expedition to Siam, the object of which was to seduce the Indian troops and military police in Burma as a preliminary to an attack on India. This expedition was planned in concert with Germans and was financed with German money. Chenchaiiah was arrested in Bangkok in August 1915 along with other members of the expedition.

(c) It is proposed to reconsider his case at an early date."

Shooting affray at Jhelum.

12. "Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether any, and if so, how many, military recruits were killed and how many were wounded during the recent affray at Jhelum ;

(b) to what regiments the said recruits had been attached and whether there were any complaints by them about their treatment ;

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[23RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

[Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma ; His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India.]

- (c) whether such complaints were inquired into and with what result ;
- (d) whether any investigation was made into the circumstances under which the men were fired on ;
- (e) whether any officers were found responsible for the incident, and, if so, what punishment was meted out to them ;
- (f) whether the Garhwali Brahmins distinguished themselves in France and other theatres of the war ; and
- (g) whether Government intend to form them into a separate regiment ? "

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India replied :—

"The Hon'ble Member will permit me, I hope, to read out a reply, which will cover the question* in the order in which it was referred to by the Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya. The reply will be quite complete, but not in the order in which the Hon'ble Member has asked his question.

(a) (i) It is a fact that during the present war two battalions of Garhwali Rajputs have served with distinction both in France and Mesopotamia.

(ii) The number of Garhwali Brahman recruits (in which are included Brahmans of Kumaon) enlisted during 1917 was 679 ; but since the beginning of the war and up to the end of June 1918 a total of 1,392 Brahmans of Garhwal and Kumaon have come forward, and these were formed into special companies attached to the 38th Dogras, the depot of which is now serving at Jhelum. Of these, some 450 have proceeded on service and are now with the 38th Dogras. The question of forming them into a separate battalion was carefully considered, but for administrative and other considerations the proposal was not proceeded with. It is rarely possible to form a battalion from a class which has not hitherto been recruited for the Indian Army.

(iii) As it had come to the notice of the General Officer Commanding at Jhelum that the Brahmans attached to the 38th Dogras considered they had grievances, a special Court of Inquiry was held to investigate their allegations. It was represented that the officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the 38th Dogras treated the Brahman recruits with undue severity. In support they put forward certain specific instances which were disproved or found to be greatly exaggerated. The evidence, however, tended to show that though there was no doubt that there were occasional acts of harshness on the part of the Instructors of the 38th Dogras, there was also no doubt that these recruits behaved in a most undisciplined and provocative manner. Their object was to force the hands of the authorities to form them into a separate battalion with its attendant advantages in the matter of promotion. Following on this Court of Inquiry disciplinary action was taken against any officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the 38th Dogras who were held to be in fault.

As it was obvious that the Brahmans had conceived a dislike for the Dogras, the General Officer Commanding at Jhelum made arrangements to place them under Instructors of other units at Jhelum. Later on, however, it was found impossible to adhere to these arrangements since the Instructors of one of the units so detailed were required for other duties. It therefore became necessary to bring the Brahmans under Dogra Instructors again, not the same Instructors, but others. The men almost immediately refused to drill and thereby committed a very grave military offence. The General Officer Commanding at Jhelum, however, in view of their military inexperience, acted with great forbearance and decided to give them another chance of obeying orders. The Brahmans who were encamped beyond the river outside Jhelum were ordered to march into Jhelum and parade before the General Officer Commanding They refused and an escort was detailed to bring them in. On their arrival the General Officer Commanding at Jhelum addressed them on parade, and after dismissing the recruits, definitely ordered the non-commissioned officers and attested sepoys of the Hill Brahmans to drill under a Dogra Instructor. They refused and were placed in arrest. Subsequently they were tried by Court Martial and with one exception convicted.

From what I have said it will be seen that the action of these recruits was mutinous to a degree, and the General Officer Commanding the Rawalpindi Division took a very grave view of their conduct. He ordered that every man, including the recruits, who had disobeyed orders should be brought to trial. A Court Martial was convened for the trial of these recruits on the morning of the 3rd July, and an escort was detailed to conduct them to the place of trial. The recruits refused to come out of barracks and fall in. The senior officer commanding the escort went into the barrack rooms and personally ordered the men to come out. As they refused he decided to employ force to compel the men to leave the barracks. This they eventually did but sat down near a pile of building bricks and refused to move. They were again ordered to fall in but still declined—some tried to break away and escape, others commenced to pelt the escort with bricks. One of the British officers with the escort was struck twice on the head. There was considerable confusion as small parties of the Brahmans were trying to escape and small parties of the escort trying to head them off. In the confusion a shot, so far as can be ascertained, accidentally discharged, was the signal for an uncontrolled outburst of firing which lasted some thirty seconds before it could be stopped by the officers both British and Indian. Eighteen of the Hill Brahmans were killed on the spot and many died afterwards in hospital, the total casualties amounting to 35 killed and died of wounds, and 53 wounded; in addition 2 men of the escort were wounded.

It has been clearly established that no orders to fire were given, and I am convinced that no officer would have given such orders in the undoubted state of confusion which existed at the time, as both the escort and the men of the Hill Brahmans were within a few yards of each other and often intermingled.

On the cessation of the firing the recruits quietly fell in and expressed their readiness to go anywhere. The General Officer Commanding, Northern Command, and the General Officer Commanding, Rawalpindi Division, both proceeded to Jhelum and personally issued orders for a Court of Inquiry which thoroughly investigated every circumstance in connection with this sad affair.

(b) As the result of the recommendations of the General Officer Commanding, Northern Command, severe disciplinary action has been taken against all officers, non-commissioned officers and men, both British and Indian, who were considered to be responsible in any way for errors of judgment or contravention of orders in this most deplorable incident."

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

11-20 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"My Lord, the Resolution which I have the honour to move reads as follows:—

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the consideration and disposal of the report of the Sedition Committee of 1918 be kept in abeyance, and that a thorough and searching inquiry be undertaken by a mixed Committee of an equal number of official and non-official Indians into the working of the Criminal Investigation Department, including the Central Intelligence Department.'

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

"It will be seen that this Resolution has two parts, the first being, as we often say, to stay proceedings on the Sedition Committee's Report, and the second being to investigate and examine by means of a mixed committee of officials and non-officials the working of the Criminal Investigation and the Central Intelligence Department. Both of these departments have the same initials—C I. D. I shall therefore only use the one set of initials to cover both departments. It will be seen that I ask for this inquiry because the two things are very much connected.

"As regards the Report that is now before us and that we have got to consider, I do not propose to go into the details of the matter, but merely to take the Report as a whole and deal with what appear to me to be considerations that arise prima facie. The first consideration that arises on looking at the report is one which I have already indicated with reference to the questions which I put earlier in this Session. I asked whether the names of the witnesses examined by this Commission could be given, and the answer was that for reasons of public safety and in the interests of public utility they could not be given. Then I asked whether their statements could be produced for inspection, and the Government said they could not. Then I asked whether certain information could be supplied to the Members of this Hon'ble Council, and they said that in the interests of public safety it could not be supplied. Then I asked whether two persons who had been specially mentioned had been called and examined; and the Government reply was that there is no positive information on the point before Government, but they believe that these two persons were not sent up for examination. That makes my first point with regard to the Report, namely, the terms of reference requiring the Committee to hold their sittings in camera. As I said once before, publicity by itself I regard as a great safeguard; but in this case there may be reasons why that safeguard should be to a certain extent limited. But in most of these in camera trials, usually the persons concerned, whom we may here call the accused, are present or are represented by their counsels; the prosecution also is represented by a learned counsel, and I suppose some officer of Government is also present. So all the elements of a fair and good trial are there. In this particular instance, what happened is, that those persons whose conduct was to be gone into were not there, nor were counsel permitted to represent them. There was of course no counsel at all. These papers, or documentary evidence as it is called, were arranged by members of the Civil Service and they were presented in a very proper and readable form. Now, about documentary evidence of that kind there is also this point to be considered, that by itself it is not evidence unless a person comes and says that he prepared the document and it correctly represents the state of things. It is only by that means that it can become evidence. Documents have got to be introduced by oral evidence. I do not know whether that was done or not; but we may take it that it might have been. Even then the safeguards are very few. The proceedings are in camera, counsel is not present, the parties are not present, except of course the Government. Then there is the further difficulty that there was some cross-examination, but we do not know who was cross-examined. For proper cross-examination, as the lawyers sitting on this Council will bear me out, we require a great deal of information from our clients about witness. You want to find out his antecedents, you want to find out if he has any motives in coming to give evidence; and you have got to find out a number of other things. Oftentimes you have got to test his memory and impartiality and all those things. I have no doubt, the eminent Judges who sat on this Committee probably did a great deal of this work; but naturally, not having the parties before them and not having had interviews with the persons concerned, they could not have the information necessary to effect a cross-examination of their witnesses. All that element of safety, that safeguard of justice, was also absent.

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

[23RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"Now, these ex parte inquiries generally are difficult to accept. Perhaps it is my temperament, but I cannot accept such inquiries easily, because there is nobody to represent the other side and to urge the points that may be necessary for the defence of a particular person. Even if we brush that consideration aside, we are presented with this judgment, but the whole of it is not given. I can show at page 135 of my copy that one whole page is missing. Your Excellency will find a whole page blank marked only with stars; and I am expected to take it for granted, I suppose, that whatever is there is there. But if I am not permitted to examine the evidence, if the safeguards are not there, if the whole judgment is not there and in the body of the Report, as your Excellency will observe, various passages are omitted and only indicated by stars,—well this is a kind of thing which is rather difficult to accept.

"But still, even taking it as it is, I have read the report very carefully more than once, and I find that the method employed is what is known as Inductive. They examined various offences that were placed before them, and I suppose they went through all the police papers to find out how the alleged criminals acted and what they did; then from the consideration of all those factors, general conclusions were drawn. This is called a scientific method and is very useful and often employed. But I humbly submit that this method has its own limitations. This method of induction is very good, but unless you are able to isolate the phenomena you are investigating, and unless you are able to supply the varying conditions under which they are brought about, you can never regard the results as certain. Now political matters and matters of this kind are rather difficult to investigate by the inductive method for the reason that political phenomena cannot be reproduced. You cannot vary the concomitants thereof, and the results therefore are very uncertain. These limitations at any time are very important, but in this particular case they are enhanced in their vitiating power, so to say, and that in this way—The persons whose conduct is gone into and whose actions are inquired into belong to that class of people who generally excite disapprobation. In a scientific inquiry a man has got a perfectly impartial mind uninfluenced by any feelings on the matter; whereas when you contemplate these persons, who are called criminals, and the people who are known as anarchists, there is a sort of disapprobation that arises in the mind. It creeps unconsciously into your reasoning, and the conclusions to that extent get vitiated. "That is not all. A certain amount of prejudice also enters into this kind of inquiry. In a scientific inquiry there is nobody to represent sides; there are the facts to speak for themselves, and the facts are personally observed by the individual. In this case the facts are presented by persons who do not probably investigate the whole thing; they depend upon reports, and those reports have probably left a trace in them after passing through two or three stages. The Judges who hold the inquiry are no doubt most estimable persons; but there are the reports and these gentlemen are probably inclined to believe them without very minute inquiry. The facts which have come out, to be ascertained and to be, so to say, put judicially beyond doubt, require that the persons who gave them should be examined personally by the Judges. It also requires that the person concerned should be well represented by an able lawyer who will be able to point out circumstances which may have vitiated the judgment of the witness. I do not say that witnesses always come to tell a lie, but oftentimes their powers of observation are very poor and sometimes they misobserve and so on. So each step has to be guarded and looked after; that could not have been done and would not apparently be done under the procedure so far as we know it. In these circumstances, this report comes before us. My usual practice is that, when a judgment comes before me, I read the evidence on which it is based and try to reason out to myself and reconcile it with my law books

OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

and the principles laid down there. In this case I am denied that evidence and I am denied those other safeguards and the judgment itself is incomplete. So I said 'now, let us see how far you can go.' The utmost to which you can go by the inductive method is that a rule evolved through certain particular instances is correct. I see that in this case acts of these supposed criminals were investigated and looked into, and they evolved certain general conclusions. I say what does that concluding lead to? It leads to this, that these criminals acted in a particular manner; they went about their business by doing certain things and making certain arrangements. That is very interesting no doubt to a detective and will be very useful to the detective branch of the Government, I have no doubt. But to the legislative branch it is not those acts that attract much of our attention; we look to see the mentality of those persons who did those acts, the reasons which led them to do them and their mental condition which led them to those particular measures, and then we legislate I suppose, in order to give inducements to good-minded people to observe peace and so on and to take away the inducements to criminals to act in the manner in which they did. Well, in this particular instance I find that in the whole of this report there is no investigation made as to the causes which led these misguided people to go into wrong ways. Those causes are not set forth, no remedies are proposed to remove those causes, and this is the most serious part of the case. I cannot say that I am very much pleased myself with the remedies proposed. I cannot accept them for the reason that they are opposed to principles established for centuries and tested by the experience of centuries, principles which are held something like sacred in law; those principles are sought to a certain extent to be modified. I always want very exceptional evidence to induce me to depart from any of those principles. I do not wish to inflict a long speech detailing all those principles and my reasons and so on. There are many eminent lawyers here of great experience, and they will be able to judge it for themselves, but the real remedy to my mind appears to have been missed. Lord Bacon lays down that in order to prevent seditious acts, which I suppose meant seditious acts in the language of those times, in order to prevent it you must take away the matter of them, that is to say, you must remove the causes which led to these people into that seditious matter. This is a maxim which is, I believe, to be found quoted nearly everywhere and of immense use; and really if you want to prevent people from doing certain kinds of acts then you remove the causes which led those people to do those acts; that is an important requirement. But unfortunately that is not undertaken in this report. We do not see what the causes were, what the measures were, or what particular circumstances led these people to do so. Now, these are people known to be very peaceful as a rule. As Sir Henry Cotton mentions in his 'New India,' India is about the easiest country to be ruled; the population is peaceful and they do not want to create any trouble. Sir Henry Cotton's book is not very old and is a comparatively new publication, and I ask, then, if this population is so good and so peaceful and law-abiding, what is it that induced them to become criminals on such a large scale. Those causes I would like to be detailed and to be examined, and they are not there unfortunately. Well, proceeding further, I also want to see and to judge what the remedies are. I am not going to deal with them in great detail at this stage at any rate. The rule has been that to be admissible a confession must be voluntary, not induced by any threat or inducement, and it should be recorded in the presence of a Magistrate, and there are various other precautions given in the Criminal Procedure Code. The first proposal proposes to relax these precautions. The second proposal is to make trials very speedy. I agree that trials have got to be speedy. But I suppose the Criminal Procedure Code, the law which I have

RESOLUTION OF THE SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

studied and practised under provides all reasonable facilities for disposing of the case as early as possible. It is rather difficult to make them more speedy because judicial inquiries cannot be hurried easily. Then comes a proposal which I feel it very difficult to agree with. Our tendency now-a-days is that when a man has been to jail and been punished and then comes out, we wish to make life easy for him, to make it possible for him to make a new beginning and become a law-abiding citizen. This proposal proposes that after the man comes out of jail the police surveillance should be continued and his residence always watched; so that nobody will employ him and after a time he again becomes desperate, and all that remains for him is either to seek the protection of the jail where he could get his food by a reasonable amount of work or go away altogether; it is altogether a difficult position for him. Now, I do not want to go into the details of all these proposals; as I said I only bring them forward in order to make out that this judgment as it stands is difficult to accept, because of its incompleteness, because of its absence of evidence in support of it and so on. It becomes still more difficult for me to accept it because admittedly the recommendations are made somewhat in a hurry. I will read out that passage to your Excellency:—

'On the other hand, if we are to inquire whether these amendments should be made in the general law, we feel that we should be embarking on an investigation which, though perhaps not literally outside the terms of our reference, must nevertheless be larger than we were really intended to pursue, it would involve the eliciting the opinions of persons of experience in all parts of India and would postpone our report to a date when it might be useless. These and many other matters connected with Indian Criminal Procedure may well be worth investigating, but we cannot engraft an inquiry of that magnitude upon our task. We therefore only note the above points and pass from them.'

This passage means that there was really no time limit imposed by the terms of reference, but as it is a practical matter and a matter connected with the administration generally one could not follow the same procedure which philosophers do, namely they collect evidence for years and then say there is not material enough to form a judgment. That cannot be done in politics. One has got to make up his mind within a certain time limit. They imposed a certain time limit upon themselves and then they found that a larger inquiry was necessary.

Well, I suppose they should have undertaken it for the reason that in the opening parts of the report they admit that the measures which we have passed in this Council have proved adequate. We have been able to control the crime. They also say that the crime has considerably lessened and all the contingencies arising therefrom have been properly met. If so, I say that there is any amount of time available to consider those matters and judicially come to a finding and embody them into the permanent law. There is no hurry about it. These recommendations unfortunately appear to have been made with insufficient inquiry. Much stress has been laid, I know, on the circumstance that the Committee was composed of five eminent Judges, so they really are, and I quite bow to their great authority, their great experience and their great learning. But when we ask them to judge and give a report upon a case like this, it is like asking a singer to make music without his instruments; it is like asking a painter to give us a good picture but to take away from him all his brushes, all his paints and all his colours. A Judge, as your Excellency knows, works under different circumstances. He takes nothing for granted, but there are the parties before him; they represent their case through their able counsel who presses all the points, and the Judge listens to both of them and then ultimately makes up his mind—he often takes weeks if not months—to make up his mind. Now in this particular instance, there were five eminent Judges, and I have no doubt about their integrity and honesty, even their sympathy, I take it; but as I said, it is like asking a painter to paint without his brushes; it is like asking a Judge to pass his decision without any witnesses before him or without any necessary material before him to cross-examine them and so on. If I differ from them and if I doubt the conclusions these eminent Judges have come to, I hope this Hon'ble Council will not attribute any reluctance of mine to any want of respect. I have very great respect for them, but I find that the conditions were so difficult that human beings at any rate could not come to a correct conclusion with the insufficient materials before them. I was thinking it out to myself and how does it come to me. It comes very near to what is called 'faith cure.' I have seen these faith cure people. They are very poor in their private life; they are very good people; they spend a long time in contemplation and sit on hills and so on; they have no axe to grind. If I go to them for any treatment, they look at me and say that 'alright, you are cured.' Now I do not feel that I am cured, but they say I am, and will you believe that you are cured. I say 'yes' and I look about. But they generally do not ask for money. But if they did, what I would reply is 'I give you no money because I ask you to believe that I have already paid you.' That is not the way to get out of the situation. Here is the Report without sufficient evidence, and I am asked to believe it. I will believe it. But when action is asked for I shall say 'kindly produce all these things.' It is like this when you go to a doctor, he gives you a prescription and you take it to the Chemist who has to dispense it, and then when I take the medicine I get cured. Similarly, it is the case here. If it is not like that, then it is like the faith cure man. He says I am cured, but I say I am not and if he asked me for money I would reply by asking him to believe that I have paid him. I do not wish to take up any more time of this Council by putting forward all the arguments that I can, but I move this Resolution, and I hope that this Hon'ble Council will be pleased to accept it."

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[23RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde; Sir William Vincent.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—"My Lord, I seek to put the case for the Government in this matter very plainly and frankly before this Council at the earliest opportunity. I cannot, I am afraid, however, treat the Resolution in the light manner adopted by the Hon'ble mover, because the subject-matter is to us a matter of grave moment. Too many lives have been lost, there have been too much anxiety, too much expenditure in labour and money, too much harassment to our officers, for us to approach this question in the spirit in which the Hon'ble mover does 11-45 A.M.

"My Lord, I should like in the first place to explain our reason for appointing this Committee. At the time of that appointment the Government of India were faced with this position. We were aware of the existence of a widespread conspiracy extending over India and beyond the borders which was aimed at the overthrow of the British Government. I do not refer merely to open manifestations of which we had instances at Singapore, in the Punjab, and elsewhere, or to the prevalence of revolutionary outrages in Bengal, but I refer also to persistent underground working with ramifications throughout India by which constant attempts were made to seduce loyal subjects of His Majesty from their allegiance. I say, my Lord, we were aware of this conspiracy, but for various reasons we were unable to make public the information in our possession. To do so would have been to endanger the lives of many of those who had given us that information. It would also have involved a serious breach of confidence in many cases. Finally, it would have necessitated a disclosure of information to which I am quite sure the Foreign Department and the Military Department would have objected. We were aware also, I should have added, that at the conclusion of the war we should be faced with very great difficulties in dealing with this class of crime. For the present we have certain machinery to deal with this class of crime under the emergency measures passed for the war, but this legislation is of a temporary character. In these circumstances, the Government decided, at the instance, I ought to say, of the Bengal Government, to appoint a thoroughly impartial Committee to inquire into the extent of these conspiracies and into the necessity for any special measures, outside the ordinary law, to cope with them. We were anxious that this inquiry should be as impartial and searching as possible, and I think if this Council will consider the terms of reference and personnel of the Committee which was appointed to deal with it, they will admit that the Government were perfectly fair in the matter. Let us see who the members were. The President was Mr. Justice Rowlatt, a Judge of the High Court of Judicature in England and a lawyer of the highest repute in no way connected with the Indian Government. Among the members was Sir Basil Scott, Chief Justice for many years of the Bombay High Court, a Barrister Judge of ripe experience whose reputation for impartiality and ability stands very high. We included in the Committee also Mr. Justice Coomaraswamy Sastri of the Madras High Court, an Indian whose repute as a Judge also stands deservedly high. The fourth member was Mr. Provash Chandra Mitter, a practising Vakil of the Calcutta High Court, and what Member of this Council will question his integrity or ability? The last member was Sir Verney Lovett, a Member of this Council, who will no doubt address you shortly, a man who has had great experience of Magisterial work and administration, and has peculiar knowledge of conditions in Bengal having served on the Bengal District Committee. That was the Committee, my Lord, we appointed. I want the Council to realise that the members were men of strict impartiality, well accustomed to weighing evidence, able to detect anything in the nature of false evidence that might be put before them and qualified, if any men are in this world, to arrive at a fair and just decision. By their professional tendencies they were, I suppose, also likely to view all administrative action, from a strictly legal, rather than from an executive, point of view.

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Sir William Vincent.]

"We placed no limitations on the powers of inquiry of this Committee save that the investigation was to be, for reasons already given, made in camera; we allowed the Committee absolute discretion in calling any witnesses or any evidence they liked. Well, my Lord, the Committee held their inquiry, they visited the various centres in which revolutionary crime had been prevalent, they recorded evidence, they examined also judicial records at great length and on these, I believe, to a large measure their recommendations are based, though they also had before them undoubtedly a number of police witnesses. The inquiries were, as a matter of fact, of the most exhaustive character that could be required. At the conclusion of these investigations, they submitted a unanimous decision on the questions referred to them, and this is the decision which we are asked to shelve, to pigeon-hole. I do not propose to go into the details of the recommendations which the Committee made: that will be for a future occasion; but I do maintain that it is unreasonable to ask this Council to treat a solemn decision, reached after such careful inquiry, in this manner. I further venture to put it that, if the Government were to accept this motion and were to pigeon-hole the Report in the manner suggested, they would be guilty of criminal weakness; they would be yielding really to that disloyal section of the community which sympathises with these criminals. I say that they should be acting unfairly to those police-officers who now go about their duty in daily peril of their lives; I say they should be acting in a manner insulting to the very members of this Committee which we had appointed; such action would be insulting to their intelligence, and insulting to their probity. We are not dealing here, my Lord, with politics as was suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde. We are dealing with the vilest forms of crime. I am told that the Judges approached this question from a prejudiced point of view, that they must necessarily have done so because the very words 'revolutionary' and 'anarchist' convey some reproach. That argument, I think, will appeal to nobody here. Judges are in the habit of trying criminals; but it does not follow that they are prejudiced; they are not prejudiced. It is their duty to ascertain whether a man is guilty or is not guilty, whether certain facts are established and whether they are not established and decide accordingly. There is no question of prejudice in the matter. Again, I am told that their decisions were really based on statements made to other persons. I will leave it to my Hon'ble friend Sir Verney Lovett to describe the manner in which the Committee proceeded, but it is apparent from the Report that this is not the case. Their decisions were reached after examination of judicial records, after recording or examining statements of men who had taken part in these crimes themselves. My Lord, I submit again, and I hope this Council will agree with me, that it is unreasonable to ask us to discard the results of an inquiry of this kind. I am told that the reason for the Hon'ble Member's dissatisfaction is, that the inquiry was not made in public. My Lord, I would ask this Council whether that is the real basis of the attitude which is taken up by the Hon'ble Member, and whether there is any weight in it. Is it likely that Judges of this eminence, accustomed to trying cases, would arrive at erroneous conclusions or be deceived by false evidence? Would any useful purpose be served by publishing such evidence? Is the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde himself more likely to arrive at a just decision on such matters than these eminent lawyers, who have had the facts before them? My Lord, it has been suggested also that the evidence was that of police-officers only. I have already explained that this is not so, and it is unnecessary for me, at this stage at any rate, to enter into a defence of the police force. All I need say with regard to the first part of this Resolution is, that the Hon'ble Member has given no reason of any kind why we should pigeon-hole this Report of the Committee in the manner proposed. And I earnestly hope that, whatever view the Members of this Council may take as to the recommendations—I know that there are varying views—I earnestly hope that they will not consent to such a preposterous proposition as this.

"As to the second part of the Resolution, I was surprised, my Lord. I confess, to find that the Hon'ble Member never said one word as to the reasons for his proposed inquiry into the C.I.D. I may be doing him an injustice, but I attempted to listen with the greatest care; I expected that we should have some attack on the department, something to justify such a proposal made during the war when all our officers are overworked. Surely, my Lord, some reasons should be given before we start a roving inquiry of this kind. If there were any such reasons, perhaps the Council heard them; I did not. The fact is, my Lord, that there is really no connection between the two parts of the Hon'ble Member's Resolution. The first part of the Resolution, as I have said, deals with the Rowlatt Report. The second part—I suppose I had better put up some reply to it as the Hon'ble Member has moved it—is really a separate matter. Perhaps the connection in the Hon'ble Member's mind was this:—'The Rowlatt Committee based its decision entirely on the evidence of the C.I.D., and so while we shelve the Report, and we will have a fresh inquiry into the C.I.D.'s methods.' My Lord, I have already shown that there is no foundation for that suggestion. The Rowlatt Committee based their Report on a number of considerations outside police evidence. As, however, an inquiry is suggested into the conduct of the C.I.D. at a time like this, I should like to take this opportunity of reminding this Council of the debt of gratitude which they owe to that Department of the dangers from which they have been saved by it, dangers from German conspiracy, dangers from intrigues within and without this country, and dangers from terrible revolutionary crimes which unhappily have from time to time disfigured the criminal records of some Provinces. My Lord, I do not wish to speak at any length of the admirable work rendered by the police, but I will quote an article from a magazine edited, I believe, by an Indian:—

'Those who hastened to treat lightly the Rowlatt Committee's Report will have to revise their views. Now that two Judges of such high standing as Sir Narain Chandavarkar and

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Sir William Vincent.]

Mr. Justice Beachcroft have pronounced their opinion on each of the cases of internment examined by them, as members of the Bengal Advisory Board, and found only 6 cases out of 806, in which the evidence was not sufficient to warrant internment. The result of the inquiry redounds greatly to the credit of the much abused C. I. D. Indeed, Sir Charles Cleveland may well be proud of the Department which he has directed with such conspicuous success in these trying times.'

"My Lord, I am content to endorse those words. As a matter of fact I would add that, whenever any specific complaints have been brought against the police in connection with revolutionaries, the Government have always been ready to make investigation; in fact, my Lord, there are those who say that we have been too ready to make such inquiries. What has been the result? Let me take one, a very prominent instance, well known to many Members of this Council. Mrs. Besant put forward a number of allegations against police-officers in connection with these internees. We at once caused an inquiry to be made by two officers entirely unconnected with the police, one of them being a lawyer I may say of the highest repute, Sir Benode Chandra Mitra, and the other being Mr. Stevenson-Moore, a revenue officer of very high standing. These officers held an investigation into the allegations, and it was found that there was no foundation whatever for the charges. Indeed, there was room for suspicion that the complaints were the result of a deliberate conspiracy. I do not for one moment suggest that Mrs. Besant was a party to that conspiracy. I mean that there were grounds for thinking that these internees had conspired among themselves to get up an entirely false case.

"I have already referred to the report of Mr. Justice Beachcroft and Sir Narayan Chandavarkar, and I submit that it is impossible to read that report, which was published recently in the papers, without admitting that it really justifies the action of the C. I. D. at least in one province very completely. It not only corroborates much that is said in the Rowlatt Report, but definitely finds that in 800 cases out of 806 in Bengal, the orders of internment made by the Government are justified. I believe, though I have not the figures by me, that the position in the Punjab is still better, and that out of all the men interned there - I am sure Sir Michael O'Dwyer will correct me if I am wrong - in only one case has the order been reversed; and in the six cases in Bengal, I should have added, my Lord, it was not found that the men were innocent or anything of the kind. All that the Judges who examined the cases with the greatest care said was, that they thought there was not enough evidence in these cases to justify the order. I may add, for the information of this Council, that Government have immediately released these six men.

"Apart from the question of necessity, however, such an inquiry as the Hon'ble Member proposes in regard to the C. I. D., is impossible at the present moment, and I again here hope that Hon'ble Members will join with me in accepting this view. We are asked to appoint a roving Commission to inquire into the whole of the working not only of the Criminal Investigation Department, but also of the office of the Director of Central Intelligence. My Lord, if the inquiry is to be public and publicity is apparently the very breath of the nostrils of my Hon'ble colleague - then we shall have to reveal the names of all our informers, not only to the inquirers but also to the public, and any man who has any knowledge of the conditions in Bengal at present will admit that that would necessarily endanger the lives of those who gave evidence and whose statements are produced. Further, so careful are these men who make statements to the local officers, that many of them, when they make their statements, make it a binding condition that these are not published. My Lord, are we to break that undertaking and publish the information? Much of the information relates again to foreign politics, and I am quite sure that my Hon'ble friend Sir Hamilton Grant would object, on behalf of the Foreign

WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Sir William Vincent ; Sir Verney Lovett.]

Department, very strongly, to the publication of such information, on the ground that it would get at once into the hands of the King's enemies. Is that desirable when we are at war? There is other information which I am quite sure His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief would not let us publish for military reasons,—military reasons which would commend themselves to any one. What possibility then is there of a public inquiry in such circumstances being useful or complete? Is the present moment an opportune one for such an inquiry, when all our energies are engaged in the prosecution of the war? Further, it is clear that any inquiry of this nature would necessarily absorb the whole attention of the Criminal Investigation Department and the officers of the Director of Central Intelligence. Well, do the Council want these officers to be so employed at the present time? Do they want them to waste the whole of their time dancing attendance on a Committee of Inquiry, or do they want them to attend to their legitimate duty of detecting crime and preventing the King's enemies from the prosecution of their nefarious projects? What does the Council want in this matter?

“My Lord, finally, I wish to say that any inquiry of this kind must necessarily give rise to the idea that Government suspects the work of these officers to be unsatisfactory. Well, I have tried to show that we have no reason to suspect them. On the contrary, we owe them a great debt of gratitude for work done in peril of their lives, in the face of social ostracism, in the face of malignant false charges, and virulent abuse. And this is the reward that we are asked to give them, namely, to cause an inquiry to be made into their conduct, because we are doubtful whether their conduct has been satisfactory, although the Hon'ble Member has not put forward one single instance, or given one single reason for such an inquiry. My Lord, I submit that nothing could be more inopportune, more capable of misrepresentation, or more injurious to the administration, than the inquiry which the Hon'ble Member proposes, and I earnestly hope that the Members of this Council, whatever doubt they may feel as to various recommendations in the report, will not support this motion. They will have an opportunity to object to any specific proposal later, but for their own credit, for the credit of this Council, I earnestly hope that this Resolution will meet with no support from any reasonable Member.”

The Hon'ble Sir Verney Lovett :—“My Lord, I must begin by expressing my great obligations to the Hon'ble mover for giving me an opportunity of saying something about the work of the Committee on which I had the honour to serve. For three months we have been subjected to a heavy bombardment from guns of various calibres, but our trenches are still in excellent preservation. Nevertheless, until to-day, I have found their air a little cramping.

“The Hon'ble mover proposes that the consideration and disposal of our Report should be postponed to a remote and nebulous date and that, in the meantime, the work of the Criminal Investigation Department should be subjected to a strict inquiry on the part of a new Committee. He presumably thinks that the result of that inquiry would be to consign the Rowlatt Report to the scrap heap. I do not share these anticipations, but I think that it would be a very great pity to postpone to any remote date consideration of a Report which deals with matters of such vital and such pressing importance as does the Report of our Committee.

“I am in no way surprised that our Report has been received by a number of Indians with expressions of disapprobation and incredulity. I expected nothing else. Quite apart from the fact that persons who merely see particular crimes chronicled from time to time in newspapers obtain comparatively small opportunities of tracing them to a general movement of outrage and intimidation, there is, and naturally must be, a reluctance both on the part of Indians and on the part of persons who, like myself, have eaten the salt of India for the best years of their lives, to believe that any sons of India should be capable of the strange and nefarious courses which are the subject of our narrative. But, my Lord, reluctance to believe disagreeable things to be true is no proof that they are not true, and is no security against their recurrence; and I would ask Hon'ble gentlemen who dislike the idea of precautionary measures to take some thought for those of their own countrymen who have suffered or are suffering now from the absence or inadequacy of such measures in the past. These people are not bureaucrats; they are not Moderates, nor are they Extremists, nor are they politicians at all; but I should like to say a word for them. Who are they? They are fathers and mothers who have seen their sons decoyed away by revolutionary societies. They are shopmen, who have been cruelly robbed and shot. They are poor schoolmasters and policemen who have been murdered in the execution of their duty. They are the bereaved widows and children of these men. They are the many innocent persons who have suffered from what I have seen euphemistically termed in a book written by one of its apologists 'guerilla warfare' against the British Government, or what the Hon'ble mover apparently calls 'political phenomena.'

'It was, curiously enough, of these people that we were mainly thinking when we told our story and proposed certain precautionary measures, when we traced and pointed out the history of the ideas and propaganda which had brought sorrow and calamity upon them.

"The Hon'ble mover says we did not investigate the causes of these things. I think that if he would only take the trouble to read our Chapter on the beginnings of the revolutionary movement in Bengal, he would find a very careful analysis of the causes of all the trouble that has come on Bengal; and I think if he were to look at some of the other Chapters a little more carefully, he would find there explanations of causes.

"I return, however, to the people who were our main preoccupation. What their sufferings have been is best exemplified by our Chapter IV, every incident in which was separately examined and considered by all the members of our Committee sitting together, before the Chapter was written. I cannot believe that if the Hon'ble Member had himself been one of these sufferers, if he had lost one dear to him through revolutionary crime, if even he had been robbed of a large sum of money, he would have moved this Resolution to-day. I hope at any rate, that when he looks at this side of the picture, which seems to me worthy of some attention, he will feel that I am talking of matters which deserve a consideration that cannot be postponed to a more convenient season.

"But it is said, how did we know that such a state of things existed? And much of the criticism which our Report has evoked is founded on the idea that the documentary evidence on which it is largely based consisted mainly of secret correspondence, cyphers, 'silk letters' and statements to the police. I should like to undeceive our critics on this point. I would invite their attention to the careful description of the evidence on which our conclusions regarding Bengali revolutionary crime were founded, which is given in Chapter III of our Report. Judgments and evidence contained in judicial records came first and foremost. We state that our general conclusions as to the character of the revolutionary movement, its aims and methods, have been affirmed again and again in the Courts. We devote a special annexure to illustrating this statement. I could give many other illustrations besides those detailed there, but I should be wasting the Council's time if I did this now. All that I need say at present is, that whenever we possibly could, we took our facts from judgments, judicial records and exhibits. Regarding the whole subject of evidence, I would like to recommend a careful and unimpassioned perusal of our Chapter III.

"I am prepared to answer the question put the other day to the Hon'ble the Home Member by the Hon'ble mover. He inquired if we had examined Messrs. Tilak and Bepin Chandra Pal, and if not, why not? We did not examine either of those gentlemen, and I will tell the Hon'ble mover why. The particular acts on the part of Mr. Tilak to which we refer in our Report belong to the years 1897, 1908 and 1914. For his actions in 1897 and 1908, Mr. Tilak was prosecuted and tried in Courts of law. He offered explanations, but notwithstanding those explanations, the Courts decided against him. We saw no reason whatever for asking him to tender further explanations to us. His declaration of loyalty in the year 1914 required no explanation, and we only mentioned it in fairness to him. Again, our brief account of Babu Bepin Chandra Pal's tour in Madras in 1907 is based on the strongest and clearest evidence. Our account of his speech at Calcutta, after his return, is the version given by his own newspaper. We were not trying Babu Bepin Chandra Pal. We ascribed no motives to him. We were merely considering the action which he took and its consequences on subsequent events. Of these we had no doubt whatever, and it would have been wasting his time to have asked him to appear before us.

"I would like to say a few words about our recommendations. The Hon'ble Member is not pleased with these. I would remind him that we were concerned merely with legislative remedies; but I will not now discuss in detail the remedies which we proposed. What I wish to point out is, that our proposals give ample margin for the application of a very potent cure-treatment which we have ventured briefly to suggest in our paragraph 106. It seemed to us that the spread and continuance of the propaganda and ideas which give rise to revolutionary crime would be more effectively combated by a widespread, determined, persistent, concentrated non-official effort than by anything else. We do indeed propose legal remedies; but we have expressly stipulated that the more rigorous thereof—those permitting internments, for instance—should only operate if exceptional circumstances require them. I would ask the Hon'ble mover and all who are concerned at the prospect of future internments to consider whether nothing can be done on their part to ensure that such circumstances shall never arise, whether nothing can be done to stop the poisoning of young minds, which is the original, the primal cause of all the trouble, of all the repression, of all the internments. If they say that they are helpless in this matter, and can do nothing, I would ask them to try. There is no reason why on this occasion the Hon'ble mover's head and his heart should not work together.

"The Hon'ble mover is anxious for an inquiry into the methods and working of the Criminal Investigation Department. As we saw much of the work of the officers of that Department, I would like to express my conviction that to them and to the labours of the Police Force, in general, India owes a heavy debt of gratitude. Had it not been for the courageous, loyal and faithful labours of these men, the plots and crimes which stained our record during the first period of the war would have multiplied exceedingly, the Bengal and Lahore conspiracies would have produced bloody outbreaks which would have caused incalculable mischief, and would have damaged confidence in the loyalty of the country, as a whole, to the great cause of Britain and of her Allies. There are, my Lord, various kinds of loyalty in India. I need only speak of two. There are those who follow loyalty to the battlefield, and live for her or die for her there. We all admire and applaud these men. There are also men who follow loyalty through evil report and good report, who follow her into dark places of great danger where their fidelity has hitherto procured them at the best a life of constant obloquy from a section of their countrymen, and at the worst, assassination. I confess, my Lord, that these men seem to me to deserve as much gratitude as those whom we all acclaim and applaud as heroes. Their faithful and courageous services attract little public attention, but bear strong testimony to the quality of the British officers who lead them.

“ I am far from wishing to assert that officers and men of the Criminal Intelligence Department are always right. Who is always right? Does the Bar consist of a phalanx of perfect individuals? Does the Civil Service? Does any Service, or any Department? Which of us is there, my Lord, who will not ask of his fellow-men that they should judge him fairly and generously in the light of his difficulties and temptations, that they should take his work as a whole? ”

12-21 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri:—“ My Lord, I must acknowledge that it is difficult for me, considering the first part of this Resolution, to accord my vote in favour of it. Apart from the difficulty of the case which involves many considerations which only lawyers of experience can unravel, there is the consideration that the Report deals with matters of serious import, and that it has the support of two of my own personal friends, Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri and Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter to whose character testimony has been borne to-day which I heartily endorse. In the circumstances, I find it difficult to vote for the first part of my Hon'ble friend's proposition. I take it that, when measures are brought before this Council to carry out the recommendations of the Rowlatt Committee, it will be time enough for us to scan them closely. But for the present I will not follow the Hon'ble Member and ask for the shelving of this Report. With regard to the second part, I take the line which the Hon'ble Sir William Vincent took, that it seems to bear no organic connection with the first part of the Resolution. But I cannot hide from this Council my personal feeling that, if it had been brought forward as a separate and independent proposition and if your Lordship puts it to us later in the course of the proceedings as a separate and independent proposition, I may vote in its favour. I am one of those who believe in the great work of the Criminal Intelligence Department. I fully endorse every word of the eloquent testimony borne to it by the Hon'ble Sir William Vincent and the Hon'ble Sir Verney Lovett. But there is a side of their operations to which perhaps the proper attention of the authorities has not been called. It is the way in which a certain section of them, probably the Intelligence Department, dog the foot-steps of and shadow those persons whom they suspect. There is a list, I am told, which I have never seen and probably am never destined to see, the entrance to which is like a valve, opening only inwards. The authorities take your names down readily enough in that list, but I am told it is exceedingly difficult to get out of that list. Your Excellency, I am one of those who have been subjected for a considerable time to the persecution of this branch of the service, and if I speak to-day, it is to unfold a plain unvarnished tale of the sufferings that I have borne at the hands of this service. Their activities are manifold. Your Excellency would find it difficult to believe that two men were always following me for a certain period, for two or three years; they sat outside my house when I was in, and the moment I got out they got out also; when I engaged a jutka (in the Madras Presidency we call the lowest class of conveyance by the name of jutkas), they invariably found out where I was going by inquiry, and they engaged another jutka and came with me. The astonishing thing is that, if they did not find a jutka fast enough, they found some means of telling my driver not to go so fast. Once in the town of Coimbatore, when I had important engagements to fulfil and was in the act of engaging a conveyance, these persecutors of mine, unwilling perhaps to forego their afternoon siesta, told every one of them not to drive me. The result was that my engagements had to remain unfulfilled. My Lord, there are other ways in which one has been made to feel that one is a suspect in one's own country for doing nothing worse than loving it. Once I remember being handed over by the railway police to the ordinary police. A humorous experience, will perhaps interest this Council. We are handed over like chattel. A man came and pointed me out to the ordinary police to take charge; unfortunately I then happened to be mixed up with a number of people who were more innocent, so to say, than I was. The ordinary police mistook one of my friends for me, with the result that his house and compound were for a whole week haunted by the two people who were after me. I thought I had a permanent release, but my friend told me afterwards that he had complained to the head of the police, with the result that they came back to their proper victim afterwards. But there is another funny thing about these people. Not many days ago, in this very town of Simla, where I stay, a friend of mine, a member of the bar, chanced to come to me as my guest. Within half an hour of his arrival came a person whom I mistook to be a beggar, for he took out a note-book and was turning over its pages. I thought he was a beggar and would ask me to read some testimonials. He stood at the gateway and had a suspicious leer which ought to have put me on my guard, but being during the last few years free from espionage, it did not strike me immediately how the land lay. In a minute the man came into my room, opened his book and presented it to my guest asking him to sign his name and address at a particular spot. My guest naturally resented it and asked him 'who are you to ask me to sign.' He said 'Police, Sir.' My friend refused. 'What business have you to come here and ask my friend to sign' I asked? 'If you do not sign,' he replied 'I can get an order.' 'Very well', I told him, 'go and get the order.' He went but has not yet returned, which shows, that there is really some intelligence in the Intelligence Department.

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Mr. Srinivasa Sastri.]

"My Lord, I wish to ask, how many of my Hon'ble friends on the official benches would have borne a thing of this kind? I am perfectly certain if it happened to either of the Hon'ble Members who have spoken, they would go to the Secretariat and indulge in language unbecoming the dignity of Members of this Council.

"My Lord, what was my offence that I had to undergo these strange experiences? I had given up my professional job and joined the Society founded by Mr. Gokhale, whose bust, subscribed for by many of our official friends, your Excellency unveiled the other day. He himself was not free from the attentions of this body of people, but I leave that alone. They are always not sure of the names of their victims. Once I remember Mr. Gokhale himself relating to a predecessor of this Council how they gave trouble to Sir Vithaldas Damodardas Thackersey, for the reason that his name had a Das in it that was suspected to have a Bengali sound. I myself happened often to be confounded with a gentleman in my province who bears my name, and with whom, for various reasons, I do not much like to be confounded. Your Excellency, I remember reading in the life of Mazzini that the Austrian Criminal Investigation Department followed him in his younger days in the same way, and the reason they gave was, 'We know nothing against this young man, but he goes about of mornings and evenings in a contemplative sort of mood. Our Government does not want young men to develop a contemplative mood.' I am afraid some members of the Criminal Intelligence Department have taken it into their heads that they do not want any men to give up their professional jobs and take to doing public duties in the missionary spirit. If a man is inclined to do that and wishes for ease and peace, I should advise him to go to Sir Charles Cleveland first and tell him of his intentions and ask him 'what precisely, Sir, are the ways of patriotism that you would tolerate? What are the activities which a man, minded like me to devote himself to the service of the country, would be allowed to pursue?' If he asks these questions and then sets about his business, he will at least enjoy peace and ease. Now that is an experience which is common to many men in this country. I have heard it said, your Excellency, that no man among us, not even the highest, is free from the attentions of these officers. If you would ask redress from a higher authority, as I know you would at once ask us to do, I know very well what the result would be, for many have told me from personal experience that if there is an authority higher than the Criminal Intelligence Department, it is not on this earth. I should be told that my petition had been received and would receive attention, and if on a convenient date after giving notice I put a question in this Council, I have no doubt the Hon'ble the Home Member will read a printed answer in his blindest manner—'The Government have no wish to make further inquiries into this matter' Now that is, as I said, a state of things which I would request the Government of India, if they can, to look into. I think the head of the Central Intelligence Department ought to have some method of sparing those people who lead honourable and high-aimed lives. Your Excellency, I make these remarks, as I said, with no intention to disparage the very useful work done by this Department, but a branch of its work requires very careful examination and considerable overhauling. It is because I strongly feel, as a former Chief Secretary to the Madras Government once told me when I complained to him, that even if a man is not inclined to be seditious at first, six months' attention from the Central Intelligence Department might convert him into a seditionist, it is because I feel that their methods have caused great humiliation to many young men of fine sensibilities in Bengal and elsewhere, it is because I feel, your Excellency, that in this way disloyalty may be hardened and sedition may even be created where it does not exist, it is because I feel these things that I wish to draw the attention of the Government, the earnest attention of the Government, to look after the ways in certain directions of the Central Intelligence Department, and I propose, as I said in the beginning, if the second part of the Hon'ble Member's Resolution be put to the Council as an independent proposition, to vote for it."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"My Lord, it seems to me that if we have an opportunity, as I am sure we shall have, and probably the Hon'ble the Home Member will be able to give us that assurance, of discussing the recommendations of the Rowlatt Committee, there is absolutely no reason for the acceptance of the first part of my Hon'ble friend's Resolution. Indeed, that Resolution seems to me to be inopportune looked at from that point of view. My Lord, those who have followed the debates in the House of Lords must be aware of the fact that one of the things that Lord Sydenham and those who support him urged, was the publication of the Report of the Rowlatt Committee and of the papers connected with the Secretary of State's delegation to this country. In the mind of Lord Sydenham and others of his way of thinking, the Reform proposals and this Report are linked together. The Reform proposals are to Lord Sydenham and his party gall and wormwood, they are poison, and this Report they regard as the antidote, and I cannot help regretting that my friend should have brought forward this matter at a time like this when the Reform proposals are being discussed, and every one of us here is determined to see that these proposals are carried through Parliament in a way favourable to the best interests of India.

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[23RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjee; Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru.]

"I do maintain that the first part of the Resolution is inopportune, and not only inopportune, but that it is calculated to do harm to us so far as the successful passage of the Reform proposals through Parliament is concerned. My Lord, I entirely associate myself with the observations which have fallen from my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri in connection with the activities of the Criminal Investigation Department. I do not like to swell the list which he has presented to this Council, but one case does occur to my mind at the present moment in connection with a young man who had been interned, and who afterwards was released. He was shadowed by the Criminal Investigation Department, so shadowed, that his life was made a burden to him, and he committed suicide. He made the statement that he perpetrated this foul deed because life was so intolerable to him under the surveillance of the Criminal Investigation Department. I think this is a matter which deserves the serious consideration of the Home Member and the Government of India. I bear testimony to the pluck and devotion that certain members of the Criminal Investigation Department, especially the Bengali members, have exhibited, nevertheless their activities need to be controlled and guided by superior authority, so that they may not make the lives of others, especially of young men, a misery to them. It is the young who are shadowed, and this process of surveillance has added to the discontent and the dissatisfaction which prevails in connection with the activities of this Department. This is a matter to which I desire to call the attention of the Hon'ble the Home Member. Therefore, my Lord, in view of these suggestions, I do hope that, if not now, at any rate on some future occasion, an inquiry will be made into the working of the Criminal Investigation Department. There may be difficulties at present. The Criminal Investigation Department are now engaged in matters relating to the war. As my Hon'ble friend has pointed out they spy aliens; they have duties connected with the war; possibly an inquiry would be inopportune at the present moment. But I trust my Hon'ble friend will bear in mind that this is a matter in regard to which there is a great deal of public excitement and unrest, and the unrest can only be allayed and removed by an inquiry such as has been proposed by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde. But I maintain that the time for such an inquiry is not now, but hereafter, when the Criminal Investigation Department are not so engaged with war activities as they are now."

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru :—"My Lord, I regret that I am unable to support the first part of the Resolution, and so far as the second part of the Resolution is concerned, I shall presently say what I have to say with regard to it. Now, my Lord, I have carefully studied this interesting Report from cover to cover. I have made an attempt to study it as I would study a legal brief, and I have asked myself as to whether many of the statements to be found in the various Chapters read like fiction, or whether they read like facts. I must say, my Lord, that I have come to the conclusion that they do not read like fiction, though they are as interesting as fiction, sometimes is. I find, my Lord, that a great portion of the Report is based upon judgments delivered by the highest Courts of Appeal in India, and I also find that the Report refers to admissions and confessions made by members of the Revolutionary party which have been found to be perfectly true by the highest Courts of appeal in India. It is perfectly true, my Lord, that the Report is open to the objection that the Committee carried on their proceedings in camera,

OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

but, my Lord, we all know that it was not a Judicial Committee, that the Committee was not appointed to act as a Court of Justice is appointed, to record evidence, to allow the accused an opportunity to cross-examine witnesses or to submit any explanation. That was not the object of the appointment of the Committee, that was not its purview, that was not its scope. It was really an administrative inquiry, conducted subject to certain limitations. My Lord, I am not prepared to discard the findings of this Committee, a Committee consisting of men of the highest integrity and honour, both among the European members and the Indian members. I do not wish, therefore, my Lord, to say more with regard to the functions of the Committee. As regards the recommendations, my Lord, I myself have considerable doubt as to the propriety or efficacy of some of the recommendations, but I do not think this is the occasion when I can go into those recommendations. I reserve to myself the right and liberty of making any suggestions that I have got to make with regard to some of those recommendations. In fact, if my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde had not adopted this flank movement, but had directly attacked those recommendations on the present occasion, possibly I would have had to submit what I have got to say with regard to those recommendations, but until that opportunity arrives, I do not think it would serve any useful purpose to say anything with regard to them.

“With regard to the second part of this Resolution, my sentiments are more or less the same as those of the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri. I am not one of those who are prepared to condemn the Criminal Investigation Department so far as their useful activities are concerned, and I am prepared to endorse the tribute which has been paid to it by the Hon'ble the Home Member and by my Indian friends on this occasion, but let it not be understood that there is not a strong feeling in the country with regard to some of the activities of the Criminal Investigation Department. I believe there is scarcely one among us, at any rate one among us Indians here, who has not been subjected to humiliation or harassment, or annoyance at the hands of the Criminal Investigation Department. I very well remember, my Lord, when a large number of Congressmen, after the Surat split, met at Allahabad and held a private Conference at my house.—Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjee was there, and the late Mr. Gokhale, and Sir Dinshaw Wacha—a constable turned up and insisted on my giving him the names of my guests. Now, my Lord, every one of us has had to put up with those humiliations, and our position in public life is no security against them. It is these harassing, annoying tactics of the Criminal Investigation Department which require to be brought under control, if it really means to serve a useful purpose in our various towns. My Lord, so far as its useful activities are concerned, I have nothing but praise for them, but I wish the methods of work, especially in the smaller towns, were carefully looked into and examined. I do not wish to multiply those instances; some of them have been brought to the notice of the various Local Governments, and it would be a long tale, but I do endorse all the remarks of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Srinivasa Sastri in regard to the methods of the Criminal Investigation Department.”

12-40 P.M.

His Honour Sir Michael O'Dwyer :—“My Lord, I have two reasons for wishing to say something on this subject. In the last five years it has been my misfortune to have a good deal to say of the various Revolutionary conspiracies mentioned in the Rowlatt Report. At the same time it has been my good fortune to have had the assistance of the Criminal Investigation Department in that task.

“I cannot claim any knowledge of their operations outside my own province and I will not, therefore, refer to the instances which some Hon'ble Members have mentioned of the undue attentions of certain members of the Criminal Investigation Department, but within my own province, I think I can claim that my knowledge is fairly accurate, for it is based, not on vague allegations and hearsay, but on judicial findings and on my own personal experience.

[23RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

[Sir Michael O'Dwyer.]

"As we know, the Central Intelligence Department and its branches in the provinces have been organised within the last ten years to assist Government in combating seditious movements from without and also within India. Speaking for myself, I can say with confidence—and I welcome this opportunity of being able to say so—that, without the assistance of that agency during the last five years, we should never have been able in the Punjab to repress the various disorders, which threatened the public security, and if we had not repressed those disorders, we should not have been able to raise the 350,000 or 400,000 Punjabis who have rallied to the cause of the Empire since the war began.

"I will endeavour to prove my contention by a few illustrations of the help which we have received from the Central Intelligence Department and from its local agency at critical periods.

"The Ghadr movement was organised in 1911 on the Pacific coast of America, and that place was selected because several thousands of Punjabi emigrants were working there. These were as a rule ignorant but sturdy men of the peasant type, who had gone abroad to better their lot. By working on their ignorance, their credulity and their grievances (some of which were genuine) Har Dyal and his associates sought to enlist them in the movement, the object of which was to subvert the British Government in India. The infamous Ghadr newspaper was started in 1913 and circulated widely among Indians in Canada, America and the Far East, and also in the Punjab, spreading the gospel of murder and rebellion. The Council may remember that in that same year, 1913, three Indian delegates from Canada, all of them former residents of the Punjab, came to India to arouse public opinion as to the hardships of the Canadian immigration laws. The Punjab at that time was in a rather disturbed state, but as these delegates were outwardly at least carrying on a constitutional agitation, which had the support of many loyal men in the Punjab, and as we were then ignorant of the real intentions of the delegates, we did not in any way interfere with their mission. They held meetings throughout the province at some of which, in addition to quite reasonable criticism of the immigration laws, many inflammatory and violent speeches were made. They held a meeting in Simla in September 1913. That meeting was attended by several Hon'ble Members of this Council and, it need hardly be said, the tone of the meeting was quite reasonable. A few days later the delegates came to see me, and at my suggestion they were received by the then Viceroy, Lord Hardinge. In sending them to Lord Hardinge I warned him particularly in regard to one of them. They returned to Canada soon after. A year later, when our Criminal Investigation Department was organised and the Ghadr movement came out into the open, we discovered that those three men, who were outwardly conducting a legitimate constitutional agitation, were really advance agents of the Ghadr movement, and were secretly but actively all the time spreading that movement in the Punjab. On their return to Canada in 1914 one of them who had a knowledge of bomb-making was arrested by the United States authorities for smuggling arms to Indian revolutionaries in Canada. We next heard of him in the Far East where he was acting as a Ghadr leader and a German agent in pushing the revolutionary movement in Burma and India. He was finally arrested by the Siamese Government in August 1915, deported to India, tried in the second Lahore Conspiracy Case and sentenced to death.

"Another of the trio, a plausible and well-educated man, we discovered was one of Har Dyal's trusted lieutenants. We also discovered—and it was the irony of fate—that this man who waited on Lord Hardinge in September 1913 had been present at the banquet held in San Francisco on the 25th of December 1912 to signalise the outrage on Lord Hardinge two days before ; this was the very man I had warned Lord Hardinge against. I mention these facts only to show the difficulties and dangers we ran in 1913 owing to the absence of a properly organised Criminal Investigation Department.

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Sir Michael O'Dwyer.]

" In 1914, we set ourselves to organise our Criminal Investigation Department, and I will give you a few illustrations to show how both the Imperial and Provincial Departments were able to assist us. Early in 1914, we received information from loyal sources in the Punjab that trouble was brewing from abroad. The extent and nature of that menace we in the Punjab were not then in a position to appraise. We turned to the Central Investigation Department, and received from them the most convincing proofs that the Ghadr movement had already captured thousands of our Punjabi emigrants abroad, that it had linked up with the various seditious movements in the province which had been working secretly since 1907, and which had been responsible for the Delhi and the Lahore bomb outrages, and that the Punjab had been selected for the first outbreak. Our next step was to ascertain how far the movement had spread within the province. The Imperial Criminal Investigation Department and our local Criminal Investigation Department set to work. They made very thorough inquiries, and they satisfied us that the movement, apart from the small band of seditionists already mentioned, had made no real progress, and that our people as a whole were perfectly loyal and reliable. That information was most valuable to us ; it prevented us from harassing the people and causing irritation by widespread preventive action. At the same time, it opened our eyes to the real source of the danger and enabled us to prepare for the coming storm.

" The first step to meet that storm was the passing of the Ingress Ordinance in September 1914. We were not a moment too soon. The war had broken out in the meantime, and our enemies were quick to capture the Ghadr movement and turn it to their hostile purposes. From September 1914 every ship that returned to India from America and the Far East brought back scores, in some cases even hundreds, of desperate revolutionaries who, confident in the early triumph of Germany, thought it would be an easy matter to overthrow the British Government in India. I will take the case of one of these ships only, the 'Tasu Maru.' The 'Tasu Maru' arrived in Calcutta in October 1914 bringing about 200 Indian emigrants from America and the Far East. Among them there was a small sprinkling of down-country seditionists, but the vast majority were Punjabis and included, fortunately, many of the revolutionary leaders. These men had been absent from the Punjab for years. We knew very little about them, we knew still less about their intentions. Here again the Central Investigation Department came to our aid, and long before the 'Tasu Maru' arrived in Calcutta had furnished us with full details as to the bearing of these men, which was violent and truculent, and as to their intentions, which were openly revolutionary.

" Armed with this information we intercepted the Punjabis on the 'Tasu Maru' at Calcutta, and brought them under a guard by special train to the Punjab. Their attitude both on the voyage to Calcutta and on their way up-country was so hostile, that we found it necessary straightway to intern 100 of them in jail ; 74 more who were less violent we sent to their homes and told to stay there. Our action at the time was stigmatized as oppressive, but subsequent events showed that we acted not only in the best interests of the province, but in the best interests of the men themselves, and that our only mistake was in not interning the whole lot. Of the 74 less dangerous men, who were not interned, many at once disobeyed the order of restriction to their homes, joined the revolutionary movement which had already begun, and at once started the Ghadr campaign of murder and outrage. Several of these men were speedily brought to justice. Six were convicted and hanged for murderous outrages in the Punjab that winter; six more were convicted of complicity in the Ghadr movement, outside India and after their return to this country, and were sentenced to transportation. Six more, with regard to whom we had strong suspicions but not positive proof of such complicity, were arrested and interned. Two more, who were among the leaders of the movement, became approvers.

[Sir Michael O'Dwyer.]

"I turn now to the case of the 100 men whom we interned as specially dangerous and thus kept out of mischief. We found it necessary to prosecute only six of those men for their share in the Ghadr movement outside India. Those six men were convicted and sentenced to transportation. We might have prosecuted many more, but our object was preventive rather than punitive; and I ask the Council to consider what would have been the state of the Punjab that winter if those 100 men, including many of the Ghadr leaders, had been at liberty during the height of the Ghadr troubles. For in the meantime several thousands of men, more or less imbued with the Ghadr doctrines, had returned to the Punjab and, having secured local adherents among the lawless element in the Province, whose object was however, plunder rather than revolution, were openly prosecuting a campaign of violence and murder in the Punjab. In the absence of the special measures which we had asked for some months before, the state of the Province was steadily going from bad to worse.

"At this serious crisis the Criminal Investigation Department again came to our assistance. A general rising in the Punjab and in other parts of Northern India had been planned for the 21st February 1915. Our Criminal Investigation Department got inside the plot, whereupon the revolutionary leaders, among whom were Rash Behari Bose and the Mahratta Pingle, hastily decided to antedate the rising to the 19th February. Emissaries were at once sent from the Headquarters at Lahore all over the Punjab to precipitate matters. The programme in the Punjab was that on that night the Ghadr party should concentrate on the various cantonments where they expected to find adherents among the troops, with their aid raid the arsenals and magazines, secure arms and raise the standard of mutiny. All that was to happen on the night of the 19th February. At 4-30 on that afternoon our Criminal Investigation Department raided the Ghadr Headquarters at Lahore, seized several of the leaders and found all the panoply of revolution in full array. There were firearms, bombs, bombing materials, incendiary literature, maps, and lists of troops, and, last but not least, the new revolutionary flag. It took an hour or two to sift the information, but at 6-30 on that afternoon we were in a position to wire to the various outstations where an attack had been planned for that night, and warn the authorities. Again, we were only just in time. We found subsequently that at various centres—I need here only mention Lahore and Ferozepore Cantonments as they are named in the Rowlatt Report—revolutionary bands had already begun to assemble, but finding that the troops on whose assistance they had relied were on the alert and were under arms to resist them, they saw that the game was up and rapidly dispersed. Several of these men subsequently fell into our hands, and the facts I have cited in this Council are based entirely on the judicial findings in their cases.

"Well, my Lord, the disclosures following on the Lahore seizures showed the wide ramifications of the conspiracy, and influenced the Government of India to propose, and this Council to pass in March 1915, the Defence of India Act for which we, in the Punjab, had long been pressing. That Act, at once restored public confidence. It rallied to the cause of law and order the great mass of the loyal population. It enabled us, with their co-operation, and with the active assistance of the Sikh community and the Sikh States—Patiala, Jhind, Faridkot and Kapurthala—to deal promptly and speedily with the subsequent Ghadr manifestations. No doubt murders and other outrages continued well into the summer, but in every case our Criminal Investigation Department was able to bring the offenders to speedy and stern justice under the new procedure, and the movement as a whole rapidly collapsed. It had aimed particularly at capturing the Sikhs, but to show how thoroughly that brave and loyal people repudiated it, I may say that it was with their assistance that we were able to crush the conspiracy, and that in the last four years the Sikhs, who number 2½ millions in all, have provided 80,000 recruits to the Indian Army.

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Sir Michael O'Dwyer ; Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi.]

"I only mention these instances, my Lord, to prove the deep obligations which we in the Punjab are under to the Imperial and the Provincial C. I. D. I hope I have made it clear that we should not have succeeded in crushing these conspiracies without the combined operation of three forces—firstly, the loyalty and the courage of our own people; secondly, the vigilance of our C. I. D. and, thirdly, the special measures for which we were armed for the term of the war.

"But we know that the seditious activities of which the Ghadr, the Silk Letters and other conspiracies were merely temporary phases, were in force before the war; and that they will remain in force after the war. We also know that it is our duty to endeavour to suppress them and to prevent them from interfering with the political and social development of this country. The Rowlatt Commission has advised us what action should be taken, and their conclusions have received striking corroboration from the recent report, of the Bengal Advisory Committee. I am glad to see in this Council to-day a general disposition to accept as a basis for action the findings of that Commission. I hope that the Hon'ble Member who moved the Resolution will be convinced by the arguments that he has heard to-day and the scant support his Resolution has met with. But I gather that the Hon'ble Member is not convinced. He reminds me of the schoolmaster in one of Goldsmith's poems of whom it was said :

' In arguing too the Parson owned his skill,

' For e'en though vanquished he could argue still '

The Hon'ble Member will argue still; but I trust and I am confident from what we have heard to-day that the Council will convince him that he is vanquished, and will prove by their votes that they consider the Criminal Investigation Department, throughout a period of extreme strain and anxiety, has deserved well of the country, and that the Report of the Rowlatt Commission furnishes a sound and reasonable basis for legislative action which is necessary to secure the peaceful progress and the political development of this country—ends which every one in this Council desires."

1-7 P.M.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi:—

"My Lord, my Hon'ble and learned friend has appealed to our legal instincts and legal experience in desiring us to offer a pronouncement on his Resolution. I can assure him that I am going to deal with his Resolution from the point of view of a lawyer and a lawyer alone. There is a proverb in Persian, which says

' Pesh az marg vavaila,

" Bewailing before the moment of death."

I could have well understood my Hon'ble and learned friend moving a Resolution in connection with any action that the Government of India actually proposed to take on the Rowlatt Committee's Report. But before the Government have formulated any proposals or placed before this Council anything in the shape of legislative action, my Hon'ble and learned friend comes forward with this Resolution which he has put before us to-day.

"My Lord, I contend that this Resolution should be rejected on this ground, that it is entirely premature. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri, the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea and the Hon'ble Dr. Sapru have been unanimous in expressing the opinion that, with reference to the first part of the Resolution, they are absolutely unable to give my Hon'ble and learned friend their support. I do not propose to repeat what has been said by them, except simply to say that I entirely and heartily endorse what they said.

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi.]

"But with regard to the second part of the Resolution, when I look at it from a lawyer's point of view, I find that, really and strictly speaking, I need not say anything in opposition to that part of the Resolution, and would be justified in asking the Council to reject it without any further ado. For my Hon'ble and learned friend knows that when a complaint is presented to a Court of justice, and even the complainant himself does not support that complaint with a statement justifying the complaint which he makes, nor does he adduce any evidence in support of that complaint, the only action which a Court of justice can, under those circumstances, take—and rightly take—is to reject the complaint in limine. I listened with patience and attention to the arguments—the lengthy arguments—addressed to this Council by my Hon'ble and learned friend this morning and to hear what he had to say in support of the second portion of his Resolution. But I must say I was surprised when my Hon'ble friend, having taken up almost the full half-hour which is allowed to him under the rules with the first part of his Resolution, quite quietly sat down without saying a single word in support of the proposal that a Committee of inquiry should be appointed into the working of the Criminal Investigation Department. As I have just said, under those circumstances, it is hardly necessary for me to deal with that part of his Resolution. For even my learned friend himself was unable to support the request embodied in that part of the Resolution by means of either any facts or by any argument. But one thing I would like to say, that even if the second part of the Resolution were put to the Council as an independent proposal, I am afraid that I would not be able to support my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri in voting in favour of that portion of the Resolution, for the reason which my venerable friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea has placed before the Council, the reason being that even that portion of the Resolution is, to say the least, in the highest degree inopportune. We are all in this country engaged in two things just at this moment—in devoting our best energy and attention to supporting the Government to defeat the enemies not only of the British Empire, but of civilisation in the aggressive lust for world dominion which lies at the basis of their desire in plunging the whole world into discord, and, in the second place, we are so far as our domestic political activities are concerned engaged in supporting your Excellency's Reform Scheme. And I am entirely at one with my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. S. N. Banerjea, that in diverting our attention to inquiries of the character which my Hon'ble friend asks the Government and the country to make, we should be doing an immense amount of injury to the two main objects which the whole of this country has at this moment in view. My Lord, so far as the working of the Criminal Investigation Department is concerned, there may be some over-zealous members of that department who have shadowed even Hon'ble Members of this Council who occupy prominent positions in the public life of the country. I confess that on one occasion when I was engaged in defending certain accused persons in Jammu, I myself was shadowed by a member of the Criminal Investigation Department into Jammu territory. But surely these are very petty matters when compared with the immense services which that department has rendered to the cause of law and order, as well as to the detection of serious revolutionary movements of the kind of which the Hon'ble Sir Verney Lovett and His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab have spoken to-day. It seems to me that the working of the Criminal Investigation Department does require looking into, but not at this critical juncture. After the war possibly there are certain phases of that work which may require attention on the part of the Government of India. For these reasons, my Lord, I am unable to support the Resolution which has been moved by my Hon'ble friend."

OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah.]

1- 16 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—" My Lord, the Resolution as it is worded embarrasses one's position very much. I take it that the most important question to-day, is the question of the Rowlatt Committee Report. Now, the Resolution seeks this, that the Report or the consideration and disposal of it be kept in abeyance. I really cannot understand with the utmost possible respect for the mover what his object is in asking this Council to vote that the Report should be kept in abeyance. The second part of the Resolution is, that a Committee should be appointed consisting of official and non-official Members into the working of the Criminal Investigation Department, including the Central Intelligence Department. My Lord, I fail to see what connection there is between our dealing with the Report of the Rowlatt Committee and the working of the Criminal Investigation Department or the Central Intelligence Department. Possibly, there may be some connection so far as certain information or evidence might have been placed before the Rowlatt Committee by it. But the important question, as I understand it, is about the Rowlatt Committee Report. Now, the Rowlatt Committee, as you will find from the terms of reference to that Committee, were appointed to investigate and report (1) on the nature and extent of criminal conspiracies connected with the revolutionary movements in India. (2) To examine and consider the difficulties that have arisen in dealing with such conspiracies and to advise as to such legislation as would enable Government to deal effectively with them. I take it, my Lord, that the sole purpose of appointing the Rowlatt Committee was not to discover that there were criminal conspiracies in the land ; they are there and they have existed. But I take it that the real object of appointing that Committee, was to determine how to deal with this kind of offences when we return to normal times ; for the extraordinary remedies and powers which are now placed in the hands of Government by what may be termed war legislation will only last during the period of the war and no more, and their main purpose was to suggest what measures, legislative, should be adopted with a view to deal with these conspiracies. The Government had the evidence before them, they had all the papers before them, and they knew perfectly well that this kind of offences were being committed every day. The object was to find out what methods and measures could be adopted to deal with those offences. Now, therefore, I do not attach much importance to that part of the Rowlatt Committee Report, which does no more than put in readable form the narratives of various conspiracies that have existed, the various crimes that have been committed. But we are concerned more with the part which recommends the measures that we should adopt. Now, my Lord, it was said by the Hon'ble the Home Member that these are not political matters, but crimes. With the utmost respect I beg to differ from him. These are political matters and very much so. You must remember that, in India before 1906, there was no such thing as criminal conspiracies of revolutionary character. I believe that the first bomb that was thrown in India was after 1906, not before that. Therefore, my Lord, the question that we have to consider is this, what has happened to India, why was there all of a sudden in 1906 this signal of a bomb-throw given, and why is it that since 1906 up to 1918 you have these vast developments of this anarchical movement ? What is the cause of it ? It is no use for those who represent the Punjab to come forward and make a defence of their policy ; it is no use coming and saying that these dangers existed and that they have dealt with these dangers in a most magnificent manner. But I would urge upon this Council and the Government to find out what is the cause of it. Surely it cannot be that all of a sudden these men became regular criminals. The cause is this, my Lord, that there is discontent ; there is dissatisfaction ; there is unrest. Might I say, my Lord, that it is partly, if not wholly, due to your policy. What has been your policy ? You might consider it a little. The Hon'ble Sir

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Mr. M. A. Jinnah.]

Verney Lovett says that you recognise that unless the people of this country will co-operate with the Government, unless they will help, there will be no other method so effective,—I hope I am correctly reproducing the effect of his speech but just as you ask us, the people of India, to co-operate with you, we ask you to consult us,—and mind you,—and believe me, and I believe I am speaking on behalf of a very large body,—that nobody is more anxious than we are to prevent these crimes. But you cannot ask us to help you to prevent crimes when you lay down the policy without consulting us. If you want us to co-operate with you, then associate us with you and give us a certain amount of control, responsibility in the policies which you are laying down for the government of this country. My Lord, that is an aspect which no speaker has put before the Council. The whole question has been dealt with on the footing, as if some criminal tribes had sprung up in our midst and were a source of danger which it was the duty and business of everybody, without considering any further or anything more in connection with it, to lay down laws, and the moment you enact laws on the Statute-book, you think you have solved the problem. I say, my Lord, that no amount of laying down of laws on the Statute-book will solve this problem. You will have also to change your policy, and considerably, before you can remove the causes. Well, my Lord, with some of the recommendations of the Rowlatt Committee I may agree, but there are others which I am quite sure no civilized Government will accept, no civilized Government will ever dream of putting those recommendations in the form of laws, and I refer particularly to the preventive measures which the Rowlatt Committee has recommended. I will only give some instances, although I quite see that to-day that question is not before us. The Rowlatt Committee while they made their recommendations, have particularly based them on, and invited our attention to, what they call important documents attached to their report as an Appendix. I feel that it would be very difficult for any one to deal with these recommendations of the Rowlatt Committee which are based on materials, which are not published, which are not before us, and to which the Rowlatt Committee attach the greatest importance and invite our attention most earnestly. Those papers, those documents, those materials are not before us because the Government decline to publish them. Therefore, I confess, my Lord, that it is not possible for me to criticise their recommendations without having access to the materials which are the foundation of their recommendations. But, my Lord, can you imagine measures of this kind being enacted which they put forward as preventive measures, and I will only read this :—

'The first group of powers should be of the following nature :—

'(i) To demand security with or without assurance from anybody,

'(ii) to restrict residence or require notification of change of residence ;

'(iii) to require abstention from certain acts such as engaging in journalism, distributing leaflets, or attending meetings ;

'(iv) to require that the person should periodically report to the police.'

I have no doubt in that case my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri will not be followed or shadowed by any officer of the police to which he so much objects. He will be relieved of the persecution that he described here, for then he may have to go and report himself to the police.

'The second group,

'(i) To arrest ;

'(ii) to search under warrant ;

'(iii) to confine in penal custody.'

"Now, my Lord, I say that on the face of it these are measures which not only will not put an end to the crimes that you want to see ended, but will lead to further crimes, and no civilized country, I make bold to say in this Council, can tolerate much less sanction measures of this character which are called preventive measures. But at the same time I wish to make my position clear. Whether the Government ultimately realises the point of view which I have put forward to-day or not, one thing is certain that these crimes must be dealt with, whatever our differences may be as to the policy which the Government pursues in this country. I myself think that it will be much better to adopt judicial procedure instead of having the laws which exist at the present moment and instead of continuing them, which give full powers to the Executive. In other words, to make this clear, instead of giving the power to the Executive, I would rather that the power was given to the Judicial, and I would rather even that these offences should be tried in a summary way, by judicial tribunals, because in my opinion, it is lesser evil than the Executive, I would rather that a proper bench was constituted and that these offences were tried by a special bench. But, my Lord, this is not the time for me to go into these matters. When the Government decide to bring any Bill or proposal I have no doubt this Council will have to deal with those measures. And then will be the time for us to think of it and give our verdict. Therefore, I regret I cannot support the Resolution because it says that this report should be kept in abeyance. I cannot see what useful purpose can be served by keeping this Report in abeyance. If the Government choose to take action on the recommendations of the Rowlatt Committee, let them do so. Let them put before us a definite measure, and we shall deal with it.

"I will say one word more, and I have done. I cannot agree with my Hon'ble friend Mr. Banerjea. I really, my Lord, cannot see what the recommendations of the Rowlatt Committee have got to do with Reforms. If anybody chooses to use the Report against us, you cannot prevent it

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"May I rise to a point of order to correct a mistake my friend has committed. I did not say in my speech that the Reform proposals have anything to do with the Rowlatt Committee, but what I did submit was, that Lord Sydenham and others are trying to make capital out of this Report as against the Reform proposals "

The Hon'ble Mr. M.A. Jinnah :—"Then, my Lord, I hope that they will miserably fail in their attempt, I trust, therefore, that my friend Mr. Khaparde will not press his Resolution in the form in which he has put it."

10-30 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes :—"My Lord, I desire not to let pass certain remarks which have fallen from my Hon'ble friend who has just sat down (Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah). It seems to me to be self-sufficiency indeed which will allow an Hon'ble Member of this Council to say with regard to recommendations which have been made by a Committee of five gentlemen of the standing and position of those who sat on the Sedition Committee, that they are recommendations 'which no civilised Government could ever dream of putting into effect.' I quote my Hon'ble friend's words. —Those are words which my Hon'ble friend, himself a lawyer, uses in this Council, of a legal Committee of that standing,—I say the words condemn the argument. It may be perfectly reasonable to disagree with their recommendations, and it is certainly open to my Hon'ble friend to disagree, but to suggest that a Committee of that standing has put forward recommendations which no civilized Government in the world could even consider

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—"The recommendations I read out."

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes :—The recommendations he read out ! My Hon'ble friend carefully left out the preface to the recommendations ; he carefully left out the conditions under which those recommendations were put forward ; he did not read them to the Council.

"There is only one other point I desire to refer to, and that is, the suggestion which has been made to the Council that this Resolution might be conveniently put in two halves. With regard to the second half of it, my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri, and, I think, more than one other Member, suggested that if there were a separate motion asking for a Committee to inquire into the working of the Criminal Investigation Department, he would be prepared for the reasons he gave to support it. I venture to suggest that it is impossible to divide this Resolution in that manner, because the innuendo, which it is true, my Hon'ble friend the mover has not said much about, but which he has obviously intended by the Resolution, is that we cannot consider the Rowlatt Committee's recommendations until we have first considered the circumstances and working of the Criminal Investigation Department. It is not two separate recommendations, it is the single definite suggestion that, before we can take up the Rowlatt Committee's Report, we must deal with the Criminal Investigation Department. You cannot convert that into a request for an inquiry into the reasons why certain unwelcome attentions have been forced on my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri and others. I submit, therefore, that though another motion may be made for such a Committee upon proper materials, it is impossible to divide the present Resolution into two halves to attain this object."

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Sir George Lomdes ; Rai Bahadur Krishna Sahay.]

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Krishna Sahay :—" My Lord, 1-34 P.M.
I feel that I cannot support either the first part of the Resolution, or the second. It seems to me that a vicious principle underlies the first part of it, and it would be highly inopportune, if not positively dangerous, to adopt the suggestion which is contained in the second part. It does not quite clearly appear what my friend Mr. Khaparde really means by the first part of his Resolution. It runs thus : -

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the consideration and disposal of the Report of the Sedition Committee of 1918 be kept in abeyance'

I do not understand what he really wishes the Government to do. Does he wish the Government not to consider the conclusions which have been arrived at by such an important Committee as the Rowlatt Committee, consisting of such distinguished lawyers as that Committee did consist of, and to withhold their hand altogether in taking action upon the recommendations which have been made by that Committee? I do not know whether there is any evidence before my friend that the Government is actually at the present moment engaged in formulating any legislation with respect to the recommendations of that Committee. However, if the Government is engaged in such a task, it would be time for us, when their recommendations come before the Council, to take them on their own merits.

"As to the second part of the Resolution, the mover has said nothing, and it seems to me that, in spite of the fact that my distinguished friend Mr. Sastri has spoken in support of it and some other of my Hon'ble colleagues have followed him in giving instances of certain actions taken by the Criminal Investigation Department, concerning themselves, it seems to me that those illustrations may be regarded—those actions on the part of the Central Intelligence Department may be regarded—as mere eccentricities on the part of some of the officers of that Department. Surely that does not make out a case and I emphatically say that that does not make out a case for an inquiry by a Committee formed of official and non-official Members of this Council into the whole working of the Criminal Investigation Department, as also of the Central Intelligence Department, all the more so because the Members who gave instances in their personal lives of the worry and bother they had at the hands of some of the officers of the Criminal Investigation Department also bore eloquent testimony to the excellent work that has been done by that Department. I feel, therefore, that I cannot support either the first part, or the second part, of the Resolution."

RESOLUTION ^{re} SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

[23RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

1.00 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"I have listened to this debate with great interest, my Lord, and I am glad to say that the points that I made have not been answered at all. My first point was that this was an ex parte inquiry, and nobody has made a reply to say it was not. I said that those persons concerned were not represented by counsel. No negation of that has been made. I said that those witnesses that were called were not cross-examined with the knowledge that was necessary. That point also has not been negated. I said, your Excellency will remember, that I have the highest respect for the gentlemen who constituted that Committee, but human nature being what it is, they cannot do the impossible. I suppose I am not saying anything disparaging if I say that they cannot do the impossible. The English theory of jurisprudence and law, as I understand it, is that the Judge sits in the middle and each party tries to induce him to side with him by such arguments as he can deduce and by such evidence as he can put forward, and these two forces are acting upon that single individual sitting as a Judge, or individuals sitting as Judges, and those Judges take the matters into consideration, and weighing them carefully, they decide one way or the other. That is the theory as I understand it

"Now, in this instance, what happened was, that there were these eminent Judges no doubt, but there was nobody to represent those people who were charged with these offences, no body to pull the judges to their side. On the Government side or the prosecution side, there were probably the most able officers of the Civil Service, and here is where the difficulty came in. I am perfectly willing to believe that the Judges did their best for these people who were charged, but, in the absence of information that they had not effectively cross-examined those people, I still submit that I am not wanting in respect when I say that their judgment does not readily command my credence. I should still like to see the evidence on which it is based, should still like to examine it and make up my mind. I generally do not like in matters of this kind to take official authority. If I am asked to believe it, I should like to see the evidence, examine it and then make up my mind. I do not like to believe because one of the greatest people in the world says it is so. That is my frame of mind, and I suppose every judicial officer has that frame of mind.

"This point being conceded, I proceed to answer the second objection. It has been said that my Resolution is very inopportune. My friends have not been able to see why I put it forward at all, and then they made the very courteous request to see if I would not withdraw it altogether or drop the matter, or if I could not divide it. Now I shall answer all those questions, with your Excellency's permission, as briefly as I can. I say now what are the elements on which this Report has been based? It is based on the statements of witnesses that are not given to me; they are based upon reports that are not given to me. The whole judgment is not before me, only portions of it. What is the element that I can examine with a view to testing the conclusions that have been arrived at? My Lord, I thought that these reports of the police formed a part of the evidence on which the judgment was given. The statements are not there, the names are not there, only these reports are there. They are official, and, if they are correct, I ask if they could be put at my disposal. All that remains is to examine these and make sure how far they will take us. If I have not got all the materials, I suppose I am right in making the most of the few materials that are given to me, and I wanted to see if I could not agree with this report even on an examination of these little reports or whatever they are. For myself, I believe that this Report is mainly based probably on the statements made before the Commission and also on the reports that were submitted to it. It may have been, as I say, that it was not mainly based on the reports, but still the reports do form a part of that evidence on which this judgment was given; and, if I ask to see them or if I ask for a Committee to examine the Commission's findings, I do not commit any act of disrespect or do not show any want of reverence.

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

"Then, as regards the next point My friend the Hon'ble Mr. Shafi said that he was discussing it as a lawyer, and that as I had not given any reason for the second part of my Resolution, it should therefore be dismissed at once. Well, I thought that having mentioned all those circumstances that I did, it was not necessary to adduce further reasons for the second part. There is, also another reason why I did not like to say much about it, and that reason is, that my friends the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri and the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea and all those gentlemen have mentioned it, and it annoyed them tremendously. Unfortunately, I am a peculiar natured man and it pleases me to have these detectives follow me. I used to call them my orderlies. I had four of them in England but only two in India. The India Government do not look after me so well as the Home Government. These four orderlies in England and two in India followed me about wherever I went. I did not mind it in the least. I rather liked the publicity of these men following me and watching my movements. It was all right and very pleasant; it did not annoy me at all and I did not feel angry about that matter in the least. Then, why did I put my Resolution forward? It was for the reason given in the passage which I read out to your Excellency that if the Commission say that their conclusions had to be formulated within a certain time to be useful, and that they formulated those conclusions with so much earnestness, and I suppose some amount of haste, they themselves admit that they did not inquire into this point. I thought this was an urgent matter and that these recommendations might be taken up at any time. One does not know what these recommendations may lead to if they remain unchallenged, and I therefore took the earliest opportunity of bringing them to the notice of your Excellency and this Hon'ble Council. If Government hereafter undertake any legislation, if I am here, I shall be able to discuss it. It is not prejudicing their case in any way; if anything it helps Government, because Government, knowing what I and some of us feel about it, will, in putting forward their measures, take these matters into consideration, and probably the measure which comes before us will be more acceptable because of this discussion than it would otherwise have been.

"Now, disposing of all these matters, there still remains the question of my Resolution being in two parts. I said it consists of two parts and they are interdependent. Some of my friends suggested that I had better drop the first part and let the second part stand. But the first part is the important part, because of these recommendations which are partly based on the reports of the Criminal Investigation Department. In my humble judgment the second is an integral part of the first as the first is of the second. They make an undivided divided whole, and in this respect I agree with the Hon'ble the Law Member, and I also do not ask your Excellency to divide it. Put it as a whole proposition and let the whole proposition go down.

"Lastly, it was said that if these injuries had been done to me, probably I would not have moved this Resolution, and that my immunity from any trouble caused by the anarchists emboldened me to bring this Resolution. If I understand matters rightly, the more trouble they gave me the less inclined I would be to bring this Resolution, for the reason that I would be suspected of having a personal motive, an axe to grind. I have no grievance, my province has not been given a bad name. I am not a Chitpavin Brahman so it does not affect me in the least, and I have no personal reasons for moving it. But there is a point I should like to mention. I did not mention any names in moving my

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde; Sir. William Vincent.] [23RD SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Resolution. Unfortunately names have been mentioned. Mr. Tilak's name has been mentioned, and they say it is a judicial finding. But it is also a fact that, when Mr. Tilak brought a civil suit against Sir Valentine Chirol in the Queen's Bench, a Commission came to Bombay to examine witnesses there. Mr. Tilak asked to be shown the Chapekar papers on which certain allegations were based. He said 'Kindly produce these papers, and I shall rebut the allegations made therein; I have nothing whatsoever to do with it.' The Bombay Government claimed privilege and said they would not produce those papers. Of course they have the privilege of not producing the papers, and the papers were not produced. Yet they appear to have been laid before the Commission and allegations made in those papers have come out in the Report. Now, what is the remedy that a poor man can have? As children have the remedy of crying, so the poor man has the remedy of talking about it and agitating about it. Now, Mr. Tilak is a friend of mine, there is no doubt about it. I felt it as a grievance, but I was unwilling that that grievance should be put forward or that his name should be mentioned. Similarly, Babu Bepin Chandra Pal is a friend of mine. I do not want to make any grievance of that. I only based it, as I do base it, on considerations of both parties being represented and everything being done fair and above board. These reasons have not been, so far as I can see, refuted, so I expect that this Hon'ble Council will decide in my favour. In any case I hope your Excellency will kindly divide the Council, recording the votes 'Ayes' and 'Noes' separately.'

1-40 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"My Lord, I do not propose to say anything in reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde, because there seemed to be very little to call for answer in his speech. There were, however, one or two things which fell from Mr. Sastri to which I think I should advert. He began with a description of a book in which names apparently of suspected characters were, as he said, entered and never expunged, something like the book of the 47,000 we heard of recently in a celebrated trial in England, and he went on to complain that respectable men were harassed by surveillance. But I do not understand that he had any very serious complaint to make against the investigations of the Central Intelligence Department into revolutionary crime. I am aware that in minor details overzealous officials are at times obtrusive and cause great inconvenience - at least I have been told so—and I much regret that Sir Charles Cleveland, who is the Director, Central Intelligence, and could have given us fuller information on details as to the rules on such matters, is not here. For myself, I am certainly no friend of police rule. Indeed, I believe it to be the negation of all good government. At the same time, I felt it my duty to-day not to allow that view to prevent me from defending the Police from what I conceive to be unfair attacks in regard to admirable work done in connection with the revolutionary movement. I am, however, as I said, aware that complaints have been made of the methods of the C. I. D. in shadowing particular people unnecessarily, and I will make it my duty to inquire into this matter and, so far as may be, to ask the proper authorities to put a stop to it. I trust that this will meet the wishes of my colleagues in this Council, and that they will not press for an inquiry into the whole working of the Central Intelligence Department and the Criminal Investigation Department on account of these minor inconveniences.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah, in his speech, told us that the revolutionary movement was a matter of politics and not of crime. My Lord, I cannot assent to that proposition for one moment. The cases to which the Report refers are cases of dacoities, of murders and of other offences often of a most brutal

RESOLUTION re SEDITION COMMITTEE'S REPORT AND WORKING OF THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Sir William Vincent.]

Lord. There are those possibly who call such offences politics: I call them crimes of the most dastardly character. The Hon'ble Member then said that we ought to go into the causes of all this sedition. His idea, as I understand it, is that no repressive measures alone will effectually eradicate such crime. To that extent I accept what he says, and that is one of the reasons for our Reform proposals. We do not propose to effect our object by repression alone, but simultaneously, as in the past, we intend to make a reasonable advance in political matters along safe lines. As, however, he asks me what are the direct causes of this revolutionary movement, I answer that there are misguided people, who wish to destroy the Government of this country before they are ready to substitute anything in its place. It is due to the entire failure of certain political leaders to control the non-politically minded masses. Certain members—not Members of this Council—but members of this party, have by their influence been able to excite visions in the minds of young men which lead to these crimes. They are able to rouse violent feelings, but when these develop into violent and criminal acts, they are absolutely unable to exercise any kind of control over those whom they have roused. That, my Lord, is one of the chief causes of revolutionary crime in this country. I have only to add that I hope, as I said before, that this Council will, by a large majority, reject this Resolution, because the acceptance of it would, in my opinion, be a great disservice to the country and would bring grave discredit on this Council, the good repute of which I cherish very jealously."

The Resolution was put and the Council divided as follows:—

The Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Tuesday, the 24th September, 1918.

PRESENT :

The Hon'ble SIR GEORGE LOWNDES, K.C.S.I., K.C., Vice-President, presiding, and 49 Members, of whom 48 were Additional Members.

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE INTO THE ECONOMIC CONDITION OF AGRICULTURISTS.

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul :—“ Sir, the Resolution that I wish to move for the acceptance of the Council reads thus :—

‘ This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the Government of India be pleased to call upon the Provincial Governments to appoint Committees consisting of officials and non-officials to inquire into the economic condition of the agriculturists in a few typical Government, Zemindari and Inam villages or areas in the different provinces, and submit their report.’

“ Sir, I need not apologise, I think, for bringing forward this Resolution before the Council at this juncture, when the war clouds, which burst upon Europe in the fateful year of 1914, have not yet cleared up and the Empire is still in the throes of a deadly struggle. I am fully alive to the gravity of the present situation and the magnitude of the task that it imposes upon us. But the subject, to which the Resolution relates is of so important a nature, and of so supreme a consequence to our material and moral well-being, that its consideration cannot, in my humble opinion, be any longer deferred.

“ In the first place, this is the period of political transition for India. We stand at the dawn of a new era of political progress, and all of us are determined to carry India ahead on the path of political progress. But, Sir, the political progress of a country, I need not say, is indissolubly

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE INTO THE ECONOMIC CONDITION OF AGRICULTURISTS.

[Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul.]

bound up with its economic development. The Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State and His Excellency the Viceroy have referred to the two dominating conditions in their joint Report on the Indian Constitutional Reform, one of which is that 'the immense number of the people are poor, ignorant and helpless far beyond the standard of Europe.' This is a fact, which educated India has always been cognisant of and the voice of criticism has never been silent, but to no effect, and I feel sure that if the counsel of perfection had prevailed, the authors of the Report would have had no occasion to speak of the incapability of the present régime to successfully cope with the complex problems of 'mass education, sanitation, peasant indebtedness and technical education' in such disparaging terms.

"Next, Sir, immediately after the glorious termination of the war, many questions of vital importance will press themselves upon the attention of the Government. The war has only deferred some of them. The introduction of various post-war reforms will naturally involve a very heavy expenditure, and the question of finding out ways and means will have to be seriously considered. I submit, therefore, it behoves us to make up our mind before we come to that stage, to institute a thorough and sifting inquiry into the economic condition of the people of the country, with a view to enable us to ascertain definitely their taxable capacity, which has such a close bearing upon the subject. India is essentially an agricultural country, over 80 per cent of its population are engaged in agricultural pursuits as against about 20 per cent. in England and Wales, and about 55 per cent. in Germany. It is upon the economic development of these agricultural classes that the stability of the economic prosperity of the whole country will mainly depend, and it is an inquiry into the economic conditions of these people that is sought for, half of whom according to Sir Charles Elliot, the late Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, 'never know from year's end to year's end what it is to have their hunger fully satisfied.' Within the past few months, the pinch of war has begun to be still more acutely felt by them, giving us a forecast of what is yet in store for them hereafter, and I hope that the Resolution which I have the honour to move will not for these reasons be considered premature.

"The complaint of the growing poverty of the people of India has been made times out of number, not only in the press and on the platform, but even within the sacred precincts of the British Parliament and the Indian Legislative Councils. It was so far back as 1886 that the Indian National Congress stated as its settled conviction that 'it regarded with deep sympathy and viewed with grave apprehension, the increasing poverty of vast numbers of the population of India.' Since then, it has been repeatedly urged 'that fully fifty millions of the population, a number yearly increasing, are dragging out a miserable existence on the verge of starvation, and that in every decade several millions actually perish by starvation'.

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill :—"I did not quite follow the Hon'ble Member. Did he say that every year several millions perish by starvation?"

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul :—"This is the opinion of the Congress. I said that they are dragging out a miserable existence, a number yearly increasing and not perishing by starvation every year. It was in the year 1900 that the Congress unanimously passed a resolution that 'having regard to the oft-recurring famines in India and the manifestly decreasing power of resistance on the part of its population to face a single failure of harvest, leading as it frequently does to human suffering, loss of life, destruction of live-stock, disorganization of rural operations and interference with the legitimate work of the administrative machinery

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE INTO THE ECONOMIC CONDITION OF AGRICULTURISTS.

[Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul]

it earnestly prayed that the Government of India might be pleased to institute, at an early date, a full and independent inquiry into the economic conditions of the people of India, with a view to ascertainment and substantial adoption of practical remedies'. Nearly 18 years have passed and this important inquiry has not yet been instituted. In the House of Commons also a Resolution was moved demanding 'an inquiry to be made into the conditions and the want of the people of India and their ability to sustain the enormous cost of Government' but to no purpose. The late lamented Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale also stated from his seat in this very Council, while speaking on the Budget in 1908, that no one would be better pleased than he himself 'if the Government of India were to order a regular and careful inquiry into the condition of a few typical villages, so as to ascertain whether the resisting power of the people was increasing or diminishing,' and his sound and sober advice too fell upon deaf ears. It was only lately that I interpellated the Council on the subject on 8th February 1917, when I suggested the appointment of a Committee for the purpose, but the reply received was, in the negative, and what was still more disappointing to me, was the strong exception taken by my friend the Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill to my references, in my last Budget speech, to the helpless condition of the agriculturists which, he said, was in conflict with mine, and which was quite pleasing to him by reason of the fact that 'when travelling he observed better houses, better agricultural implements and greater prosperity.' It is this spell, Sir, under which the official mind exists, that has to be dissipated, and on this point I respectfully join issue with my Hon'ble friend for whom I personally possess a high regard and for whose genuine sympathy with the agriculturists of the country I have not the least doubt. In this connection I feel it my duty to draw the attention of my friend to what Mr. W. H. Moreland, I.C.S., for some time Director of Agriculture, United Provinces, observes, namely, that 'while the masses of the people are provided with the necessities of bare existence they are in far too many cases badly housed, badly clothed, badly doctored and badly taught, often overworked and often underfed.'

" Well, so far as I am concerned, I do not know how to reconcile these two official statements. I do not propose here to challenge the accuracy of either. For the purpose of the Resolution, it is quite sufficient to show that two conflicting views exist as to the actual conditions of the agricultural classes. While, on the one hand, the improvement in communications and rise in prices are mentioned, as factors contributing to the growing prosperity of agriculturists, and while increase of trade returns, favourable balances, the imprest of gold and increase in the capital of Joint Stock Companies are pointed out as indications of the increased prosperity of the people, there are circumstances on the other hand, the stern actualities, too many to enumerate, which cannot fail to strike, as being most deplorable to any one like myself, living in the interior and being in constant touch with the everyday life of the indigent ryots and which are regarded as contributing to the growing deterioration in the economic conditions of the people, such as, the unarrested exhaustion of the soil caused by the repeated cultivation of the same soil, the more frequent damages to crops caused by the ravages of wild animals owing to a large diminution in the number of fire-arms, handled by villagers, the growing shortage of labour due to steady emigration to the urban areas, the diminution in the supply of cattle and the gradual deterioration in their condition for want of grazing facilities, due to the rigour of forest rules and regulations, the ever-increasing high rates of assessment, the repeated visitation of plague, cholera and other epidemics and the high rate of mortality as an outcome of insanitary and unhealthy surroundings, the oft-recurring famines and the manifestly decreasing power of resistance on the part of the people in the face of a single failure of harvest, and above all the widespread ignorance which have all combined to affect seriously the material and moral progress of the bulk of our population.

“ Sir, I cannot help stating that during a close and constant touch with the everyday life of the masses of the people extending over 30 years, I have been irresistibly convinced that the condition of the rural population in India is but deplorable, ‘40 millions of whom,’ says Sir William Hunter ‘pass through life with single meal a day.’ Is it not a pity, Sir, that even after 150 years of settled and enlightened British rule, India should stand at the lowest rung of the ladder of world’s prosperity. According to the most optimistic official estimates the average income per head of population does not exceed £2, i.e., Rs. 30 as against £37 in the United Kingdom, £39 in the United States, £27 in France, £22 in Germany, £40 in Australia, £26 in Canada, £16 in Spain, £11 in Russia and £4 in Turkey the sick man of Europe. In spite of the security of life and prosperity which British rule has brought about, and which we gratefully acknowledge, the question still remains, as to whether there has been any substantial advance in the economic conditions of the masses, and there could only be one reply to it, and that is the negative. The recent investigations into the problems of poverty conducted by Dr. Harold Mann, Principal of the Poona Agricultural College, have disclosed a painful situation of affairs. It conveys an impression in the words of Sir Frederick Treves ‘of poorness and melancholy and that of a little below the most meagre comfort and a little above the nearest reach of starvation.’ Dr. Harold Mann is emphatically of opinion that ‘The position of an average cultivator has become very awkward. The debt which the villager incurred now hanging round his neck to the extent of 13 per cent of its total value and paid about 20 per cent on the average in interest.’ ‘The cultivation of a dry area,’ in his opinion, ‘could never pay for that.’ Rao Sahib A. L. Patro of the Madras Presidency whose special study of village economics entitles him to our respect and admiration, conducted similar inquiries in the Madras Presidency and has given in his extremely valuable pamphlet ‘Studies in the Village Economics’ four typical family budgets with the result that in the case of one there is a deficit of Rs. 22-9 per annum, in the case of the second a deficit of Rs. 52 per annum, in that of the third a deficit of Rs. 5-6 per annum, and it is only in the case of the 4th that a credit balance of Rs. 68 is discovered.’ It might be questioned as to how these recurring deficits are met. That question has been effectively met by Dr. Harold Mann himself who observes that, ‘They had seen how this was met firstly by the incurring of debt which now hangs round the neck of the villager to the extent of 13 per cent of its total value. The next step had been the going out of nearly 30 per cent of the whole male population to work on non-agricultural work that enabled the balance to be kept for the moment’ Such a state of affairs cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be regarded as conducive to the real welfare of the teeming millions, and is incapable of being tolerated any longer, if India has to stand upon her own legs, and if peace and prosperity are to be established permanently all over the country. Then, Sir, this inquiry, I hold, ought to be made. Poverty and discontent go hand in hand. Remove the one and you remove the other.

“ I am not unaware, Sir, of the measures which the Government have from time to time adopted with a view to better the conditions of the people. The introduction of various legislative and executive measures such as (1) the institution of special Courts and agencies for the cheap and summary disposal of suits against agricultural borrowers, (2) restrictions on the alienation of land, (3) the establishment of co-operative credit banks, and (4) the introduction of a large measure of elasticity in the collection of land-revenue, are all standing reminders of the various efforts on the part of the Government to secure the well-being of the masses for which we have every reason to be grateful. But, Sir, after all, there are palliative measures, and the fundamental question of poverty yet remains to be solved. The blue books of 1813 and of the preceding years and the reports on the Permanent Settlement are replete with references to it. But, it was not till 1875 when the agrarian situation in the Deccan assumed such serious proportions that the Government was compelled to have recourse to immediate legislation. The Deccan Agriculturists Relief Act was passed and has since been followed by a series of similar legislative measures, all having for their aim and object the relief of the Indian peasantry. The system of Co-operative Societies alone is a measure which is capable of infusing into the cultivators a spirit of co-operation and creating and fostering in them qualities of prudence, thrift, endurance and resourcefulness which can help them in their economic struggle for existence, but it would be a mistake to rely upon it, as the sole panacea for all the economic evils, and I think the time has come, when the Government should be prepared to adopt a bolder and more courageous policy and not be satisfied with palliative measures like this.

“ Sir, I think I have said enough to convince the Council that there cannot be any two opinions as to the existence of deep-rooted poverty in India. And after the weighty pronouncement to the effect, namely, that ‘ it is evident that the curve of wealth descends very steeply and that enormous masses of the population have little to spare for more than the necessities of life ’ which has been made by the Secretary of State and the Viceroy in their joint report (paragraph 135, page 67), I do not think it would be presumptuous on my part to assume ‘ bal, so far as the existence of the evil is concerned, all of us are at one. the only difference now being, as to the degree and the cause and effect and extent of poverty in India and as to the remedy which we have to apply. This in itself is a fact which emphasises the need for an inquiry of the nature I demand.

“ We are already aware that whenever the Government took up any measure of a mere palliative nature for the purpose, the political leaders of India, not only shook their heads and expressed their own doubts and misgivings about their success, but suggested quite a different type of measures of far-reaching consequences, with a view to strike at the very root of the evil, such as the introduction of free and compulsory education, the establishment of a large number of agricultural banks, the opening of an equally large number of agricultural and cattle-breeding farms, the relaxation of forest laws, the abolition of the indentured labour, the adoption of an improved excise policy, the revision of the present Settlement policy of over-assessing the land and not leaving enough margin of profit in the hands of the cultivator to enable him to tide over the difficulties of a bad year, the necessity of enforcing rigid economy in the administration, encouraging the growth of indigenous and local trades and industries, the introduction of a large element of popular control in the administration of Indian affairs, and the granting of fiscal autonomy for India ; but unfortunately the cry of the political leaders proved to be a cry in the wilderness.

“ I have only one word to add and I have done. The war has been an eye-opener with regard to several matters, and has taught us lessons which we cannot afford to forget with impunity. It has most prominently brought to the forefront the military importance, attached to the economic development of a country, to which India can no longer remain indifferent. To use the words of Mr. Montagu ‘ the economic development of India is more important than even an alteration of the machinery of development.’ It is for this reason that I say if in the competition of the world’s progress you wish India to occupy and maintain her position as a self-governing unit of the British Empire, she must be made self-contained and self-reliant, within a definite period of time. A weak and unprepared India will always mean the weakness of the British Empire. Strong and prosperous, she is bound to be a source of additional strength to her. And it will have to be remembered that it is a happy and contented peasantry alone, that can contribute to India's permanent strength and prosperity. It is for this reason above all that I have ventured to bring forward his Resolution, and in doing so I have tried to present it in as modest a form as I could. I only wish that an impartial and independent inquiry into the economic condition of the agricultural classes be made so that a definite conclusion may be arrived at as to the real cause of their economic depression. The Resolution, if accepted, will not prejudice the cause of either the Government or the people; rather it will throw a lurid light upon the whole subject and will have the distinct advantage of bringing about that complete harmony, mutual understanding of each other's motives and actions, unanimity of opinion, and mutual goodwill that is so desirable and essential in the best interests of the people, and that of the good and peaceful government of the country. The world is moving fast, and this is not the time to be satisfied with half-hearted palliative measures. In my humble opinion, it is high time that the Government should make up their mind to courageously grapple with this problem and find out a sovereign remedy. If my Resolution is accepted and inquiry made, the Government and the people will both have before them reliable data to proceed upon, otherwise I am afraid if an early attempt is not made to inquire into the conditions of the agricultural classes of the country and measures not taken to substantially improve their material conditions, the wheels of the administration will be hopelessly clogged and the real progress of the country will be found to be seriously at stake, for who knows what might prove to be the last straw to break the camel's back. I will conclude by appealing to the Council in the oft-quoted words of the Poet that :—

‘ Princes and Lords may flourish and fade ;
A breath can make them a breath has made ;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once destroyed can never be supplied.’ ”

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi :—

11-20 A.M. “ Sir, a new era of constitutional renaissance is bound to dawn upon us when the Reform proposals formulated by His Excellency the Viceroy and Mr. Montagu come into operation. That certainly will be the beginning of a new Chapter of our political life, but, before we are led into it, we are certainly entitled to know how the land lies about us and how we stand economically. Unfortunately, there is no sufficient light available to us at the present moment for a proper and accurate appreciation of the economic conditions of India. In this matter also, as in politics, there are two schools of opinion among the public men of India. One maintains that, under the Pax Britannica, India has attained a period of prosperity not dreamt of in any previous age in the story of our land. The enormous absorption of the precious metals in this country during the last quarter of a century, the great rise in the prices of all agricultural produces, and the rise in the standard of life among all classes of the people are set down by this school of opinion as sure indices to the great prosperity of India at the present day. On the other hand, a different school holds that the golden age of India is a thing of the past, and that she is growing poorer and poorer every day. The progressive indigence of the upper and lower middle classes, the enormous increase in her population without equivalent openings or new occupations, the unprecedented rise in the prices of things, together with the practical disappearance of all old-time arts and crafts are believed by this school of publicists as unmistakable proofs of India's poverty. I will not take the Council over the ground covered by such inquiries as the late Mr. Dadabhai Naoroji, the late Mr. Romesh Chandra Dutt, or the late Mr. William Digby, made into the subject, nor is it much good at this time of the day to refer to the examination of it made from an official point of view by Lord Curzon. Much water has flown down the Ganges since the above examinations were made, and, no wonder, the conditions of India have changed a good deal since the beginning of this century. It is, therefore, incumbent on all public men of India to know exactly how we stand economically at the present moment. John Bright used to say that 'let me know the financial position of a country, and I will tell you how its government may be like.' Indeed, there is an indissoluble connection between the condition of the people and the government of a country. It is, therefore, essential that, before we make a move towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in this country, we should have an exact idea of the real condition of our people. Such a knowledge should be an indispensable guide, both to the people and the Government to enable India to proceed on the right lines in her way to responsible government. Leaping into the dark or jumping into the unknown can never help any of these parties in the right solution of India's many complicated problems, for politics, after all, is a twin sister of economics. Such a knowledge, therefore, being essential, it can only be obtained by the acceptance of my friend's Resolution. A careful inquiry conducted by a competent Committee composed of official and non-official Members in every province of the Empire, going carefully into the economic conditions of all classes of people in some typical rural areas, may give us all the light and illumination that we desire on the subject. I have, therefore, very great pleasure in according my whole-hearted support to the Resolution moved by the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Bishan Dutt Shukul."

Sir Verney Lovett ; Mr. E. H. C. Walsh.*]

The Hon'ble Sir Verney Lovett:—"Sir, I am afraid that acceptance of the Hon'ble mover's Resolution would not be agreeable to the United Provinces Government at the present time. A great stress of work is now oppressing our official ranks. They have been largely depleted by the deputation of various of our officers to war work and military duty, and those who remain are very heavily worked indeed. I may say that their main duties and their main preoccupations are connected with the welfare and the prosperity of the agricultural classes. It is with the well-being of these most important classes that they are principally concerned. Any villages which are in a particularly precarious condition receive their special attention, and are made the subject of special reports to the Commissioner and the Board of Revenue. It is obvious that any failure in paying attention to these important matters would be very soon visited by some break-down in payment of revenue or by agrarian unrest, which would speedily reveal any serious dereliction of duty. Our officers are doing their best. They are assisted by special departments such as the Agricultural Department and the Co-operative Department, and by experts of considerable experience. What is really wanted to raise the condition of the agricultural classes is, improved methods of agriculture and more money. I am afraid that the need of more money is one which is not likely to be supplied by the appointment of such a Committee as my friend the Hon'ble mover has asked for. At present I would strongly deprecate the acceptance of a Resolution of this kind by His Excellency the Viceroy in Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. E. H. C. Walsh:—"Sir, after what the Hon'ble Sir Verney Lovett said with regard to the United Provinces, I think that I need say nothing more with regard to the province which I represent, than that the condition of the case in our province is exactly the same as Sir Verney Lovett has stated for the United Provinces, and that I entirely endorse what he has said. It would not be possible at the present time to spare any officer for an inquiry such as is proposed in the Resolution."

11-39 A.M.

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill :—" Sir, I congratulate the Hon'ble mover on the way in which he has presented his proposal before the Council to appoint this Committee of non-officials and officials to inquire into the economic condition of typical villages ; and I have no complaints to make whatever on the score of the arguments which he has used, so far as they are based on abstract principles, some of which he enunciated with great force, e.g., that political progress goes hand in hand with economic development, and so forth. I think those propositions will command the acceptance of this Council, and that I need not refer to them in greater particularity. But I should like to point out that, after all, the Hon'ble Member has made a specific proposal, namely, that Local Governments shall be asked to appoint Committees of a particular kind to inquire into the economic condition of selected areas—what he calls 'typical' villages—and that, in regard to this proposal, I hope I shall be able to show the Hon'ble Member and the Council that we could not hope for the comprehensive results which he anticipates from the adoption of such a course.

"The case for the Government was stated in very general terms in reply to a question put by Mr. Rama Rayanagar, when a Member of this Council, in which he asked 'if Government had under consideration the economic condition of the rural population in India. If not, will Government be pleased to consider the desirability of holding an inquiry into such condition.' To this question, I replied in March 1916: 'The economic condition of the rural population is one of the most intimate concerns of the Government. It is a matter on which they possess very full and continuous information, and it is the governing factor in many lines of administrative activity. There is no particular aspect of it, however, which in their view calls for special inquiry at the present moment.'

"Well, Sir, that proposal of Mr. Rayanagar related to a roving inquiry into economic conditions generally throughout India, and I readily admit that the Hon'ble Mr. Shukul's Resolution, which asks this Council to agree to recommend that Local Governments be asked to appoint such Committees, is, to that extent, a more reasonable proposition. I hope, however, to show that, even in its restricted scope, it should be held to be undesirable to adopt it. And I should like, first of all, to explain to the Council what has happened, and what continually happens, in regard to investigations into the economic condition of India as a whole. First of all, however, in reference to that, I should like to refer to two occurrences of 1902.

"In April 1902—Council will recall that that was about three years after the inception of the great famine of 1899 when we were all greatly concerned with the economic recovery of India—a Conference held in London recommended as follows :—

'This Conference is of opinion that it is urgently necessary that detailed local inquiries should be made into the economic condition of typical villages in the famine areas with a view to ascertaining the facts upon which preventive as well as remedial measures suited to the various provinces may be safely based.'

That Resolution was referred to the Government of Lord Curzon for consideration by the Secretary of State, and the Government of India for various reasons held that it was undesirable to adopt the proposal then made, especially with reference to the inquiry into 'typical villages' which were adverted to in the Resolution. Lord Curzon's Government in expressing this opinion pointed out the various measures which were continuously in motion ECONOMIC CONDITION OF AGRICULTURISTS.

[Sir Claude Hill.]

for the ascertainment and, as far as possible, when adverse, for the remedy of the economic condition of rural India. They pointed out, for example, that the Conference appeared not to be aware of the existence of a Department of Land Records and Agriculture whose business it was continuously and without intermission to obtain data regarding the economic condition of rural India, and who have a continuing record of that condition. They further pointed out that in the temporarily settled tracts of India, after periods varying between 15 and 30 years, an inquiry of the most comprehensive character, extending over several years, was held by a specially qualified settlement officer into the economic condition, in all its aspects, of the whole of the area which was concerned with the inquiry into the proposals for re-settlement. It is also the case, I may add, that in regard to the permanently settled tracts of India there has of recent years been an endeavour made, as my Hon'ble friends from Bengal are aware, to establish a record of rights, and a continuing record of rights; and I am sure the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea will bear me out when I say that the officers who are appointed to investigate those matters have made the most careful and comprehensive inquiries into the economic conditions of the districts with which they have been concerned. I should like to cite, as an example, a most interesting report on the Backarganj district by the late Major Jack, who was most unfortunately killed in France, whose report on that district reviews, in the greatest possible detail, the whole situation of that district from the economic standpoint; not of typical villages here and there, but of the whole area which was the subject of his investigation in due perspective.

" My Hon'ble friend Mr. Sastri the other day complained—I forget what his exact words were—of our 'delight in secrecy.' Well, I should like to describe the attitude of the Government of India in that regard not as a delight in secrecy but as a shrinking modesty which prevents their adequately advertising their goods. But, for the information of this Council, and in case I should be asked whether Major Jack's report is available to the public or not, I should like to observe that it has been published and that any Members who are interested in this kind of literature have only to refer to the general catalogue of all the publications of the Government of India and of the Local Governments to find out where those publications are and where they can be obtained. This report of Major Jack's I commend very cordially to the perusal of my Hon'ble friend who has moved this Resolution and to every other Member of this Council who is interested in the economic development of India.

" Well, Sir, in 1902 there also occurred a discussion, at the instance of my late friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale, later than that referred to by the mover, Mr. Shukul. In 1902, in one of his most eloquent Budget speeches, Mr. Gokhale drew attention to the economic condition of the ryots in India and made almost verbatim the same proposal, but relating to the whole of India, as that which the Hon'ble Mr. Shukul has laid before the Council to-day. After giving a description of his understanding of the situation he said :—

' These and similar facts, taken cumulatively, lead, and lead irresistibly, to the conclusion that the material condition of the mass of the people in India is steadily deteriorating.An inquiry into the condition of a few typical villages has been suggested, and, if undertaken, will certainly clear many of the prevailing misapprehensions on the subject. It is urged on behalf of Government that no such inquiry is needed because similar inquiries have been already made in the past. There is no doubt that inquiries of some sort have been made and Government have in their possession a large body of valuable information on the subject—information which unfortunately they insist on withholding from the public.'

My Hon'ble friend, Mr. Sastri, has reiterated that charge and I plead guilty to our inability adequately to illumine the mind of the public in regard to the voluminous information which Government has collected from time to time. But, Sir, in regard to the first part of the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale's remarks it is interesting at all events to note that on the same day one who was quite equally capable of judging of the economic condition of India at that time, namely, Sayyid Husain Bilgrami, who was then a Member of this Council, made the following observations :—

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE INTO THE ECONOMIC CONDITION OF AGRICULTURISTS.

[Sir Claude Hill.]

' On the other hand, observation ' (and by this he meant personal observation) ' leads one to conclude that the level of domestic comfort has risen within the last fifty years among peasant proprietors and cultivators. They are better clothed and live in better built cottages and are altogether in better plight than their fathers. It has been observed that they resort oftener to law-courts and spend more on their weddings and other ceremonies.'

Well, Sir, I will finish with that side of the argument on which Mr. Shukul laid great stress from his personal observation, by referring him, if he is interested, to a series of articles (I regret that I am not able to furnish him with the exact dates) which were written by a great friend of mine, the late Mr. Sitaram Pandit, an eminent Barrister, between the years 1906 and 1908, in the course of which Mr. Pandit showed on his own observation which was close and to my personal knowledge exact, that there had been a very great increase in the material well-being of the people. He was referring particularly to that tract of country with which I am well acquainted and my Hon'ble friend Mr. Kincaid is also well acquainted, namely, Kathiawar and Guzerat; and I can endorse, without any fear whatever of contradiction, the statements made by the Hon'ble Mr. Sitaram Pandit that the condition of the people in Kathiawar and Guzerat is out of all recognition improved in comparison with what it was when I came to India 30 years ago. In place of thatched roofs we have tiled roofs: in place of mud walls we have brick walls, and in place of earthen-ware utensils we have brass utensils. That seems to me to be on that side of the question an answer at all events sufficiently worthy of consideration by my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Shukul, to his observations regarding the tract of country with which he is most acquainted. But if I understood him correctly it was not his contention that the condition even of his part of the country had deteriorated, but that it was deplorably bad. Now, in regard to that I am entirely at one with my Hon'ble friend. We should all like to see the economic condition of the ryot in every part of India very materially raised, and we hope it will be raised. Referring now to the precise proposal to have an examination into the condition of ' typical villages,' I should like to refer to what Sir Denzil Ibbetson, regarding whose authority there can be no question, said in reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale in 1902, because this is very relevant to the form of the Resolution which has been moved. Sir Denzil Ibbetson said :—

' He (the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale) proposes an inquiry into ' the conditions of a few typical villages.' But who is to decide what villages are typical? Do villages indeed exist which can safely be assumed to be typical? I can imagine nothing more misleading, nothing more dangerous, than an inquiry of this nature, conducted with the avowed intention of arguing from the minute particular to the enormous general—of basing a huge pyramid of conclusions upon the slenderest apex of facts.'

Well Sir, I do not wish to dilate further on that side of the question which depends for a correct appreciation upon the results of personal observation as to whether there has been deterioration or not. I wish only to say in passing, and I am sure the Council will accept it without any hesitation whatever, that if, ten or fifteen or twenty years ago, India had been faced with the level of prices which obtains to-day starvation would have been rampant throughout India; and the fact that India, although with great trouble in some parts, is able to carry on with the level of prices as they stand at present, is surely a testimony to the very great advance in the material well-being of the rural population. In regard to that well-being, I should like to read one more quotation which is from Mr. Datta's Enquiry into the effect of the rise of prices in India, which was published, I think, in 1910. Mr. Datta says:—

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE INTO THE ECONOMIC CONDITION OF AGRICULTURISTS.

‘There has undoubtedly been a real progress, an increase of wealth and a general diffusion of it, in consequence of an increase in the profits of agriculture, and a remarkable increase in wages greater than the cost of living in almost all parts of India during the period of rising prices. There has indeed been a very great increase in the annual income of India.’

And in paragraph 443 he goes on to say:—

‘The standard of living among all classes of the population, especially among the landholders, traders and ryots, has increased very considerably in recent years, and extravagance on occasions of marriage and other social ceremonies has seriously increased. The average villager lives in a better house and eats better food than did his father; brass and other metal vessels have taken the place of coarse earthen ware and the clothing of his family in quality and quantity has improved.’

Now, Sir, reference has been made by the Hon'ble Mr. Shukul to the great authority of Dr. Mann. (I hope, Sir, if I exceed the time-limit by a minute or two I shall have your indulgence.) No one has greater respect of Dr. Mann than I have, nor for his indefatigable labours on behalf especially of the well-being of the Deccan ryot. But I have in Dr. Mann's labours in one direction an admirable argument for contending that this Council should not accept the Resolution in the form in which it has been put. Dr. Mann with that zeal which characterises him entered upon, with three of his assistants, a meticulous examination of what he regarded as a typical Deccan village close to Poona. That inquiry extended over a long period of time and was the subject of great devotion on his part, and the conclusions at which he arrived were in many respects most valuable. But in one respect his conclusions, I suggest, demonstrate the danger of concentrating inquiry upon a typical village as was done by Dr. Mann in this particular case. I should like here to borrow a simile from my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde, who, the other day, I think, in less appropriate circumstances, perhaps, demonstrated the drawback of taking a brick out of a house in order to judge of the condition of the house. Dr. Mann, I suggest, took a brick out of the rural house of India, held it up for examination, and came to certain conclusions. I suggest to this Council that those conclusions were not of conclusive value in reference to the economic condition even of that particular village; because I would now draw the attention of the Council to a review of Dr. Mann's book by Mr. Keatinge, whose authority is perhaps co-equal to that of Dr. Mann. In a most appreciative review of it published in the Agricultural Journal in July last, and with full recognition of the enormous value of the work done by Dr. Mann and his three assistants, he concludes, in the latter part, at page 477 as follows:—

‘The final conclusion of the authors is depressing, for they maintain that two-thirds of the families in the village are unable to attain to even the low standard of comfort which is considered essential by the people of such a village. To any one who knows what such a standard is, this can mean nothing else than that there is actual starvation in the village, or something very like it. Surely this is a matter which would have admitted so actual verification on the spot; but there is no word to show that any attempt was made, by observing the condition and health of the people, to verify this inference which the figures given so strongly suggest. The low standard of comfort in Deccan villages is deplorably evident even to the most casual observer, but if there is in this village anything like the actual starvation that is implied, this fact is more remarkable than any other which has been recorded; because it may be stated with confidence that in this village there is no able-bodied family the members of which are prepared to work, which could not, without going 20 miles afield, obtain wages which would not only maintain them in comfort, according to their own standard, but which would also allow them to save money.’

Well, the fact is that those two-thirds are not starving and yet the conclusion, the theoretic conclusion, is that they must be starving. I suggest that, if we were to apply that conclusion broad-cast to the conditions in the Deccan generally, (and it might quite easily be come to by an examination of a typical village without reference to its surroundings), in that case we might be very seriously misled.

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE INTO THE ECONOMIC CONDITION OF AGRICULTURISTS.

[Sir Claude Hill.]

"There is a further aspect of the question, and that is, the political aspect of the matter. It is, as I have said, more reasonable of the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Shukul to propose that the Local Governments be asked to institute this investigation because that does bring the inquiry into a more reasonable compass than the suggestion that the examination of typical villages should be undertaken with a view to furnishing deductions for the whole of India. I admit the great desirability that there is for a further ascertainment of the economic condition of agricultural areas, but the examination of typical villages would not give us the required information. Even though we get results in the Settlement Reports to which I have already referred, I agree that they might with advantage be supplemented, and I am quite ready to draw the attention of Local Governments to the subject-matter of the Hon'ble Member's Resolution. We know that Local Governments all recognise the vast importance of the question, but I am willing to draw their attention to the discussion which has taken place on this Resolution, and to invite them, when an appropriate time comes and suitable circumstances present themselves, to take into consideration the question whether such inquiries should not be held in particular areas. In view of the coming evolution of provincial autonomy, I suggest that that would be more in consonance with the policy of this Council that we should leave the Local Governments to exercise their discretion in the matter. It is to be anticipated that my Hon'ble friend will be able, within a few years' time perhaps, to bring greater pressure to bear on Local Governments than is possible at the present moment to take action on the lines suggested in particular areas, and I suggest that the action which I have said I am willing to take should for the moment suffice.

"I am not quite clear as to what the opening remarks of my Hon'ble friend the Maharaja of Kassimbazar were intended to convey ; but if I understood him correctly, he said that it is only right that the information to be obtained as a result of the proposed investigation into the economic condition of typical villages should be made available to us all before there was any question of political reform. I do not know whether I have interpreted his words correctly, but he certainly said that he was entitled to this economic investigation before any political reform. I do not know whether I have interpreted his meaning quite rightly, but I should like to point out that even on the smallest scale a thorough investigation into the economic condition of an area, such even as a taluka or sub-division of a district, is likely to take a competent body of persons a period of years. I feel quite certain that my Hon'ble friend did not intend the literal acceptance of what he said.

"Well, Sir, in conclusion, if I may summarise, I have suggested for the consideration of the Council that the selection of typical villages is extraordinarily difficult, that, though the Hon'ble Mr. Shukul's Resolution suggests a smaller scale investigation than was suggested by the late Mr. Gokhale, yet it is open to the objection which I have indicated, namely, that the results of such an inquiry, as illustrated by the results of Dr. Mann's inquiry, are liable to be misleading. A far greater value should be attached to reports to which I have drawn the attention of the Council, such, for example, as that of Major Jacks, when they deal with a whole homogeneous district. Theoretic conclusions, such as those arrived at by Dr. Mann, are liable to be misleading and are likely to give results contrary to facts. Finally, as my Hon'ble friend Sir Verney Lovett has indicated, we do think that this juncture is the most inappropriate one that could be selected for the diversion of the energies of our depleted staff to investigations of this nature. I doubt very much, though I am quite sure, that Hon'ble Members are in general aware of the fact, I doubt very much whether this Council as a body appreciates the extraordinary strain under which the whole of the revenue staff of every province in India is at present labouring. The numbers which have been spared for the war have reduced the cadres and staff to a minimum, while the activities resulting from the war have placed upon the remainder a burden which, if it had been predicted before the war, it might well have been said that it could not be borne. Leave has been stopped, and those who remain are heavily over-worked. They have to carry on the ordinary administration in addition to their work of recruiting and to the concentration of their attention upon the development of the war resources of the country; and I suggest that, even though this proposed additional inquiry may seem a small matter, we should bear in mind that it is the last straw that breaks the camel's back. It is, however, not a light thing that this Resolution would impose upon the revenue staff of the various provinces. I, therefore, venture to hope that this Council will see their way to decline to commit us to inviting the Local Governments now to divert their energies to the investigation suggested in the Resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"Sir, I think I speak the sense of this side of the Council when I say that we are all very thankful to the Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill for the very sympathetic speech which he has made in connection with this Resolution, and my advice to my Hon'ble friend Rai Bahadur Shukul would be to withdraw his Resolution on the assurance which has been given by the Hon'ble Member in charge that his Resolution and the discussions which take place to-day will be forwarded to the Local Governments for such action as the Local Governments may think fit to take. But, Sir, there are one or two observations made by the Hon'ble Member in charge which seem to me to call for criticism and comment. My Hon'ble friend does not dispute the necessity of an inquiry into the economic condition of our agricultural population. The debate to-day has disclosed the fact that there are two conflicting schools of thought, which have been in existence for a number of years ever since the question of the economic condition of our agricultural population has come under discussion. There being these two schools of thought, it does seem to me that an inquiry of the character suggested by my Hon'ble friend behind me would be very useful. Possibly the result of that inquiry would not be decisive, but at any rate it would help to clear the atmosphere and to promote possibly a general unity of feeling and of opinion on the subject. My Hon'ble friend has observed that the Government has always been making inquiries into the economic condition of the agricultural population. In the permanently settled tracts we have the cadastral survey, the record-of-rights, and careful inquiries are made, and I bear testimony to the care, the conscientiousness and the devotion which the late Major Jack exhibited in making these inquiries, and I understand that he has left behind a book which contains a valuable treasure of information regarding the economic condition of Bengal. I hope and trust that that book, if only as an honour to his memory, will be published by the Government and made easily available.

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill:—"It has been published as I explained in my speech."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"I am very glad to hear it, but will the Government be pleased to send a copy to Hon'ble Members, at any rate the book might be sent to proprietors and editors of newspapers, so that they may enlighten the public on the subject. However that may be, I thankfully admit the fact that there are these inquiries, and very careful inquiries, carried on by the officials of the Government when making the record-of-rights. I also admit 'render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's'.—I also admit that in the temporarily settled areas when the revision of the settlement takes place, the inquiries are careful and exhaustive. But, Sir, we must bear in mind the character and the complexion of these investigations. They are all official inquiries. They are not aided or assisted by popular enlightenment or popular opinion. The public are getting aggressive and militant in these days. Popular leaders and the representatives of the popular party want to have their opinions expressed in connection with this vital problem of the economic condition of the agricultural population. You have not associated them in these inquiries. We demand that we should be so associated, and that seems to me to be the most important point in connection with my Hon'ble friend's Resolution. He suggests that the inquiry, whatever it be, in respect of typical villages, should be made by a Committee of a mixed character consisting of officials and non-officials. Hitherto we have had the official version of the case. I do not dispute its correctness. I do not challenge its soundness. But it is official and non-official opinion may differ, and may even modify the official view. Therefore, the point of my Hon'ble friend's Resolution is that, whatever inquiry is made in regard to this most vital of all problems, it should be an inquiry in which the non-official voice should be heard.

"Sir, I have heard it said by the official representatives of the United Provinces and Bihar, and I respect the view that has been put forward, that the officials are at the present moment engaged in war work. They are heavily engaged in war work, they are over-worked, I freely admit that. But the point to be borne in mind is that the scope of the inquiry which my Hon'ble friend suggests is of a very limited character. He does not recommend a comprehensive inquiry, but an investigation confined to a number of typical villages. Surely that cannot take away a large number of officials from their accustomed work. Surely it is possible to limit the scope of the inquiry so that it may be confined to a limited time, and to certain specific villages, which may be finished, say, in three months' time. Therefore, it seems to me that that argument will not stand the test of scrutiny. At any rate, Sir, I rejoice that the Hon'ble Member in charge has consented to forward this Resolution and the debate which will take place to-day to the Local Governments, and I hope and trust that some of them will at any rate see their way to direct an inquiry into a few typical villages, so that this very vital question of the economic condition of the agricultural population, in respect at any rate of a limited area, may be determined and a solution may be found. Sir, you have embarked upon the great consideration of industrial development. The economic condition of our agricultural population has an intimate bearing upon the industrial problem. The two are indissolubly linked together. Therefore, I say for the great purpose of industrial development, for the great purpose of political advancement, an inquiry of this kind is necessary.

"I think my Hon'ble friend, Sir Claude Hill, somewhat misunderstood the observations of the Hon'ble the Maharaja of Kassimbazar. He did not mean to suggest that economic development must precede political advancement. All these are inter-linked, bound up together. They are not divided into separate compartments, but progress in one direction means progress and advance along the entire sphere of all human activities. The human mind is an organic whole. We cannot confine progress to one department without making the impulse of progress felt along the entire line of human development."

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE INTO THE ECONOMIC CONDITION OF AGRICULTURISTS.

[24TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

[Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul ; Sir Claude Hill.]

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul :—" Sir, in view of the 12-15 P.M. sympathetic attitude adopted by my Hon'ble friend Sir Claude Hill, I do not think I need say much. I am glad that he has accepted that my Resolution is a reasonable one, and that he has assured us that he will draw the attention of the Local Governments to this important point.

"I am particularly obliged to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Banerjea for replying to many of the points referred to by my Hon'ble friend Sir Claude Hill and by my Hon'ble friends from the United Provinces and Bihar, and I do not think I need say anything more on those points.

"Sir, great stress has been laid on the inquiries made at the time of the settlement in the temporarily settled areas. With regard to this, I have but one remark to make. The inquiries which are made at the time of the settlement are not made from an economic point of view. They are generally made with the object of bringing in more revenue. The ascertainment of the taxable capacity of the people is rather a very technical and difficult process.

"I do not think (and I hope my Hon'ble friend on the opposite will corroborate me when I say so) that the figures collected in a rough and ready manner by the local settlement staff such as patwaris and revenue inspectors, on whom the revenue officers have invariably to rely, can afford reliable data on which an inquiry from economic point of view could be conducted, with any accuracy.

'The notion of taxable capacity, says Mr. Charles S. Dewar, 'is of great importance and is not the absolute limit in each country of what can be extracted from the people by taxation, but rather is that limit of taxation which, if habitually exceeded, indicates over-taxation. To judge of this limit, we must recall the chapter on the theory of consumption regarding the limitation of human wants, the distinction of necessities and superfluities, the meaning of absolute and conventional necessities and of the standard of life.'

"The settlement patwaris and revenue inspectors, it will be admitted, are not the proper persons to conduct inquiries on these lines, and a more expert staff would be necessary. It has been further said that at present all the Government departments are overburdened. I fully recognise this, and I do not wish to place the Government in an embarrassed position. I am glad that the Hon'ble the Member for Revenue and Agriculture has given the assurance for which I am grateful and, in view of that assurance, I will not press my Resolution. I will withdraw it and hope that the assurance which the Hon'ble Member has given will go a long way to satisfy the people and to remove the general impression that the Government is fighting shy of this inquiry.

"With these words I beg to withdraw my Resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill :—"There are just one or two points 12-19 P.M. which I should like to clear up. First, I should like to say that all Settlement Reports are published. In the second place, with reference to what my Hon'ble friend Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea said, I should like to explain that a three months' inquiry would be perfectly valueless. Any inquiry into the economic condition of agricultural tracts in India must be extended over at least a whole agricultural year to be of the smallest value, and this was fully realised by Dr. Mann, who spent more than a year over his investigation. And finally, with reference to what fell from the Hon'ble Mr. Shukul, I should like to assert most emphatically that every Settlement Officer personally verifies by visits and inquiries in every village with which the settlement is connected the figures which may be submitted to him by his subordinates. The figures are not the figures of revenue subordinates, but the figures arrived at by the Settlement Officer after the most meticulous examination."

The Resolution was, by leave of the Council, withdrawn.

APPOINTMENT OF AGENT GENERAL FOR INDIA IN LONDON.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

APPOINTMENT OF AGENT GENERAL FOR INDIA IN LONDON.

12-20 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—" Sir, the Resolution which I have the honour to move reads as follows :—

' This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the Secretary of State for India be moved to take into his favourable consideration the appointment in London of an Agent General of the Governor General to discharge for India the duties that are performed by Agents General for Colonies, and to adjust the existing machinery of the India Office accordingly.'

As it has happened in the case of nearly all my Resolutions, there are two questions which come under consideration, as I observed when speaking this morning. The first question is, the appointment of an Agent General in London, and the next is, the adjustment of the machinery of the India Office to the conditions that would be introduced by the appointment of the Agent General. The first part of this inquiry is rather easy, I should think, for this reason, that all British Colonies have up to this time, and have for a very long time, maintained an officer in England, variously called Agent General or High Commissioner, or something of that kind. This expression ' Agent General ' has come into a little disrepute just now, because in London one Agent General requested his painter to put those words on his windows to indicate his title, and the painter unfortunately did not think that ' Agent General ' was the right title, and he put ' General Agent,' and that created some amount of amusement all round, and that expression is now gradually going out and the proper words now, I suppose, are ' Resident Minister.' That is the latest. That is a good term, I quite agree. Now, these Agents General and High Commissioners in the case of British Colonies have both kinds of duties, political as well as financial, or fiscal as we now call it. Now it happens that India has got a history of its own with regard to its political relations, so I propose that this officer, who, if the Council consents and the proposition is accepted, may be appointed, may be relieved of his political duties. At any rate I do not propose to assign him any political duties, more especially as our political relations are in a somewhat fluid state. They are being considered and probably they will be settled gradually, because we are gradually being led from the position of a dependency to the position of a partner, so these relations will remain in a fluid state for some time. What principally I would propose to assign as duties of the Agent General would be something in the direction in which a beginning has already been made. In the earlier part of this Session I put a question about the Report of the Trade Commissioner. He will have to be something of that kind in the beginning, but I trust and hope that in course of time his office will develop and it will be the office, to give it its proper name, of the Resident Minister in London. The departments that I would like to make over to him—and when I speak of these departments to be made over to him—I am inevitably led to mention the establishment that we maintain at present in England in the India Office. There are something like 463 human beings whom we employ at the India Office, and we spend upon them £317,000, or, roughly speaking, about £318,000 we spend on maintaining them. And we have twelve Councillors to help the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State. I may say, and I think none of my friends will dispute the statement, that we have never liked this India Council that sits in England, and at the Congresses and elsewhere we have always asked that it may be dispensed with. One portion of this India Council is what is called the Finance Committee, and that Finance Committee is, I believe, composed of some members and experts. I will not speak about that. We have made our proposals about reducing the number of twelve Councillors. That is a different matter. What I propose is, that this Agent

APPOINTMENT OF AGENT GENERAL FOR INDIA IN LONDON.

[24TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. G. S. Khaparde ; Sir William Meyer.]

General, or Resident Minister, if he will be called so, will take the place of this Finance Committee, and he will look after the Stores Department. I wish to say one word about this Stores Department. We annually make purchases of something like £4½ millions roughly, about £4,000,000. This is rather a large sum to spend; and the Indian Empire is also large, so we need not complain about that. But the point is that, out of these 463 persons that the India Office employ, the Stores Department alone takes up 136 persons, more or less well paid and in the higher grades. This establishment will probably, at least in a great measure, be saved if it is taken from the India Office and made over to the proposed Agent General. The advantage of that will be, I suppose—I am not aware of it personally certainly, but I imagine—that it must be rather inconvenient to ask a superior officer to explain why a particular article was not purchased cheaper, or why it was not supplied in larger quantities and so on. This matter will become easy if we have got an Agent General, and even the Government of India will be in a position to call him to account, to pull him up and to ask him to go to cheaper markets, and so forth. So that if this Stores Department was removed from there and brought to India it would, I should sincerely hope, support our home industries and afford scope for a good deal of economy. It may be that scientific instruments and many other things which we are not able to produce in this country, would have to be always sent for from England, and for that purpose a department on a very small scale might have to be maintained, and this would be made over to this Agent General. Then the newly-established Department, which looks after students who go to England to study, may also advantageously be made over to this Agent General. Then, of course, he will do what our Trade Commissioner does now. I have not seen a report from that officer, but I believe he will give commercial information, he will advertise our products, bring our manufactures to the notice of English consumers, and also advise us where to purchase our machinery and so on. Then there is a great matter. We purchase a great deal of silver and a great deal of gold now-a-days I suppose to coin into our currency here, and this purchase is not carried out every year in a particular manner, but from the figures which have been kindly supplied to me, I see that in some years we do not purchase any silver or gold at all, but in the years that we do purchase we do not appear to purchase anything less than £4 million or £4½ million—the figures for silver alone; I have not got the figures for gold. But the silver figures I have got for the ten years from 1905 to 1915. Out of those in the years 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1912, we made no purchases at all, but in other years, when we purchased, we never purchased less than £1½ millions, and in one year, 1906, our purchases went up to £12 millions, or nearly up to £13 millions

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer:—" May I make clear to the Hon'ble Member that we made no purchases of gold in these years, and that we have never purchased gold in England?"

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—" I am glad of that information, but fortunately my figures do not cover gold, so it is all right; it is only silver and we do purchase a great quantity of silver anyhow occasionally, and I propose that this duty of purchasing silver may be made over also to the Agent General whom I have proposed. Then we own a number of railways in India and for them a great many things have to be purchased and we appoint a Government Director. I trust that this Agent General will be our Director in London always sitting on the Directorates of all Companies that have got railways here, so as to supply that element of unity and continuity that is needed and a certain amount of inter-relation between us and the railways themselves.

APPOINTMENT OF AGENT GENERAL FOR INDIA IN LONDON.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde ; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy.]

[24TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

" I do not think that this project is likely to come off, but there was a project for establishing a State Bank, and this matter probably has attracted the attention of many Members of this Hon'ble Council. Also that there were large banks in England which were now mostly combined and they intended to include India also in their combination, but that our bankers here opposed that proposal. I am not going into the technical part of that discussion, but, I believe, the project is still there, and I hope it will fructify and come off, because if English capital comes to India and combines with the capital of the bankers here, it will mean that we shall get capital at a cheaper rate; and in India one great point is the want of cheap capital. So, I trust that this combination of bankers will extend its operations to India and establish branches in this country, so that our people will be able to borrow at cheaper rates.

" Now, this is the proposal which I submit for the consideration of this Hon'ble Council. I believe, incidentally, that this proposal of mine has another side to it also, not a political side but another side, which is that, as our fortunes are linked to the fortunes of England, the more links we establish to come together and work together, the better it will be for us. At present, our links with England consist only in students going there and coming back to this place and of the officers who come out here to serve, and that is about all. I should like that these links should be increased, and one of the increased links is the merchants who come out from England and trade here, and make their homes here, I hope some of them do. That establishes a third link. A fourth link I want to encourage and put in is one which I believe will be acceptable. At present there are 463 gentlemen whom we employ in England. I think some of these appointments might fall to the share of Indians, so that we shall have a colony of Indians there, we shall send about 100 or 200 Indians to go and settle in London. Where I was staying, in Earl's Court, there were something like 20,000 Germans staying round about me. I should like to see at least 20,000 Indians settled in London. I want to have an Indian colony in England. That is my ambition as I conceived it, and one way of bringing it about would be to find some appointments for Indians in this large establishment that we keep in the India Office. I also trust that another measure will be taken, i. e., that those who serve in the India Office will be compelled or encouraged to come to India and spend some time here before they take up their duties at the India Office. At present such people, I suppose, have never seen India and have merely earned their pensions in the India Office for generations perhaps. That is not a pleasant state of affairs. I should like those recruited for the India Office in England to be compelled to come to India and serve in the Government of India secretariats and be employed hereabouts and then be retransferred to England. Similarly, our people will also be engaged in the India Office and some of them, I hope, will settle there; others will return to this country, and in that way an intercommunication between England and India will be established. There is a fourth factor also. I suppose some Englishmen, when they retire, will settle down in some of our hill stations, and I trust that some of our people who go to England will settle there. In that way greater intercommunication and stronger links will be established between India and England. So my proposal, though I originally perhaps conceived it merely as a financial or fiscal measure, has, incidentally, another aspect, which may be called a quasi-political aspect. These are my reasons for putting it forward. I believe it will lead to links between England and India, and I certainly believe that it will lead to greater solidarity in this way. I trust, therefore, that this Hon'ble Council will be pleased to accord its assent to this proposal which I have put forward."

12-97 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy :—" Sir, I am surprised to hear the Hon'ble Member protest in one breath that we have got 463

APPOINTMENT OF AGENT GENERAL FOR INDIA IN LONDON.

[Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy ; Sir George Barnes.]

gentlemen, whom he calls human beings, in the India Office, to which number he objects, and in the next breath to hear him say that he wants to add to their number.

“Then, Sir, I also do not understand what are the functions which he prescribes for the Agent General. He wants him to buy stores and at the same time to purchase bullion. Can we get a man who will be an authority on bullion and at the same time be a subordinate officer buying these stores?”

“Sir, I am in a very difficult position with regard to this Resolution. The Industrial Commission have made certain recommendations which have a bearing on the subject of the present Resolution, but, unfortunately, as the Report has been delayed, I am not in a position to divulge any of the recommendations of the Report. But there is one recommendation which appears in the Report on Constitutional Reforms, and that is with regard to the establishment of a Stores Department in India. Now, I think, the establishment of a Stores Department in India is much more essential than the appointment of an Agent General in London. We want to buy stores in India as much as we can so that we may be able to improve our economic condition. The appointment of an Agent General in London without having the Department here will lead to the result that he will be more influenced by the people nearer to him, and in that way our stores will be purchased more in England than in India. I am not in a position to divulge more secrets, and, therefore, I would only ask my friend to withdraw his Resolution at present. In the meantime, the Report of the Industrial Commission will be published, and then he can bring the Resolution again in the Delhi Session, when Members will have a full opportunity of discussing this matter.”

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—“Sir, I took down a list of the 12-39 P.M. duties which the Hon'ble Member thinks that the Agent General whose appointment he desires should undertake when appointed:—

- (1) he was to take over all the work of the Finance Committee of the India Council ;
- (2) he was to undertake the control of the Students Department, to look after the welfare of the students ;
- (3) he was to undertake the purchase of all sorts of stores needed by the Government of India ;
- (4) he was to undertake the work of collecting commercial intelligence;
- (5) he was further to act as the Indian Trade Commissioner in London ;
- (6) he was also to undertake the purchase of silver for the Government of India ;
- (7) he was further to be a Director of each and every one of the Indian Railways ; and
- (8) he was to be a Director of the State Bank when started, and I presume that he would also have to be the promoter of that institution because, so far as I know, it is not on its way.

“Well, Sir, I think that the post of Agent General will be what we might call a full-time job. I think that probably what the Hon'ble Member had in his mind more than anything else was the transfer of the Stores Department from the control of the India Office to the control of somebody who is responsible to the Government of India. Well, with regard to that, I agree entirely with what has just fallen from the Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy. The principle which the Hon'ble Member aims at is, that the purchases should be made in England. Sir Fazulbhoy has pointed out that that will not help India. The Hon'ble mover's proposal seems to entail, or at least to encourage, the continuance of the past practice which was to indent upon England for nearly all the Government requirements, without due inquiry as to whether those requirements could be met by manufacturers in India. We hope, and I feel sure, that my Hon'ble friend shares that hope, that India in the future will be far more independent and far more self-sufficing than she has been in the past. We hope that the industries of India will grow, and I can hardly imagine anything which would be more certain to encourage the growth of industries in this country than a fertilising stream of orders for as large a proportion as possible of the commodities which the Government may require. We have not, as I told the Council a few days ago, and as Sir Fazulbhoy has reminded us, yet received the Report of the Industrial Commission, but the Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy referred just now to the forecast of their Report on this question which is contained in paragraph 340 of the Reforms Report. This forecast referred to a recommendation by the Industrial Commission that a new Department of Government should be set up in India to undertake control, among other things, of the purchase of Government stores. I would ask the Hon'ble Member whether this suggestion, if it materialises, is not much more attractive from the Indian point of view than the proposal that all purchases on behalf of Government should be made by an Agent General sitting in London. I would ask him whether it is not probable that any purchasing authority is most likely to look first to the sources of supply which are nearest to him, and whether an Agent General in London is likely to have the full knowledge which he ought to have of Indian sources of supply. I would further ask him whether the suggestion, which we believe from the forecast to which I have referred, is likely to find a place in the Report of the Industrial Commission is not certain to lead to as large a proportion as possible of Government orders being placed with producers and manufacturers in India, the consequence of which orders must be the encouragement of Indian industries. It is difficult, I think, to imagine any better form of Government subsidy for Indian industries and Indian manufactures than Government orders, assuming of course that the Indian product is as good value as the imported article both in price and quality. Government has great power, or ought to have great power, to help Indian industries by reason of the fact that Government can be their largest customer. In my opinion this power would be largely diminished if the Hon'ble Member's Resolution was accepted. I am sure that my Hon'ble friend has the same end in view which we all have, and that he is as anxious as we are to encourage the growth of Indian industries, and I believe that he will on reflection agree that this end is not to be attained by setting up an Agent General in London as our general purchasing authority. Of course, however, rapid the progress of development of industry in India may be, it will be a long time before India is able to supply all her own needs, and it will be necessary during this period to make some purchases in England, that is to say, purchases of such commodities as India does not manufacture and consequently cannot supply. Through what agency these purchases should be made is a matter for future consideration in consultation with the Secretary of State.

[Sir George Barnes.]

"One possible solution would be that the necessary purchases should be made by skilled agents acting under the direction of the purchasing authority in India if the latter comes into existence.

"Then I want to refer to one suggestion that the Hon'ble Member made. He suggested that Mr. Chadwick, our present Trade Commissioner in England, should be entrusted with the work of making purchases in England. To this suggestion I must in present circumstances entirely demur. Mr. Chadwick has been sent to England as Indian Trade Commissioner, and his duties are to further Indian trade by every means in his power. He is from all accounts that we hear doing quite admirable work, and to load him at the present time with work of a perfectly different character would, I think, be a most unwise step, and detrimental to the interests of Indian trade. For instance, and here I really think that the Hon'ble Member will agree, it would be an absolute waste of Mr. Chadwick's time if he should have to look after Indian students. That is work for which different qualities and different experience are required. We want his whole energies at the present time to be devoted to the work of his own office, and to the furtherance of Indian commercial interests.

"The Hon'ble Member will, I think, gather from what I have said that the Government cannot accept his Resolution, and I hope that, if what I have said has satisfied him at all, he will consent to withdraw it, in accordance with Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy's advice."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"I am very glad, indeed, 12-48 P.M. Sir, to acknowledge that the sentiments of the Hon'ble Sir George Barnes are entirely in accord with mine so far as the Stores Department goes. In my opening remarks I suppose I made it clear that if the Stores Department was transferred to India, I would certainly be very glad, and I am very glad to learn that there is in this respect at any rate the support of the Industrial Commission. I also agree that Government orders if properly given here are really very fertilising, and I hope that this fertilising process will increase day by day. I quite agree to that; in fact it is my creed, the Swadeshi creed, as we say

"Then, as to the other duties which I tried to impose upon the Agent General, if he is created, there is a little difference of opinion. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes thinks that asking Mr. Chadwick to look after the students would be a very onerous task and a difficult one. I had some experience of that when I was there, and it was nothing beyond really corresponding with the principals of the schools and colleges at which they are attending and so on, and that will be rather easily done and very willingly undertaken, because old people generally like to have young people in their charge and look after them and make them get on and so on, and that is rather easy and pleasant.

"That the other duties which I mentioned might impose a great deal of labour I quite agree. But I do not propose that this Agent General or Resident Minister will be a person without any establishment at all. I think we can afford it. On the Stores Department alone we spend in establishment (I had the figures somewhere here, but unfortunately I cannot find them now) and salaries something like £85,000 and odd or roughly speaking, £86,000. So, I think, we shall easily be able to put a few thousand pounds at the disposal of this Agent General, and he will employ persons whom he thinks fit; and if I have a chance I would ask him to take up some of our Indians also, young men who are promising and old men who have got experience and wisdom to advise, and out of this £85,000 spent annually we shall be able to maintain a small Indian colony in England.

"As to the rest of those duties about the purchase of things, etc., they really are matters of detail, the principal matter being whether we shall be represented for all purposes in England by the India Office, or whether we shall have an Agent General of our own who will be directly under the orders of the Government of India. That appears to me to be the principal question, and what his duties are to be would be a matter more or less of detail. This is all, I suppose, that requires a reply, and with these remarks I submit my proposition to the judgment of this Hon'ble Council. I am very sorry that a request for withdrawal is made in the case of almost all my Resolutions. I suppose somehow it is a fault of my nature that I generally do not like to withdraw. Having put a thing forward I like to take the consequences whatever they may be, pleasant, unpleasant or indifferent. I suppose if this is rejected it would not much matter, and if accepted it would not lead to immediate action. Having put it forward, let it be judged in the light of the experience which this Hon'ble Council possesses."

The Resolution was put and rejected.

POSTPONEMENT OF LEGISLATION GIVING EFFECT TO REFORMS IN LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

12-54 P M

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel:—"Sir, the Resolution which I have the honour and the privilege to move reads thus :—

This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council to rule that all legislation necessary to give effect to the reforms indicated in the Local Self-Government Resolution dated the 16th May 1918 shall be undertaken by the Provincial Legislative Councils to be constituted under the Chelmsford-Montagu Reforms and not by the existing Provincial Councils.

"I feel confident that the Government will welcome this Resolution, inasmuch as the Resolution, if accepted, will relieve Government officers of at least part of their work which they would otherwise have to do, and they would thus be free to attend more and more to the duties connected with the war. There are two sets of suggestions in the Government of India Resolution referred to in my proposal, one, those suggestions which could be given effect to without any further legislation, that is by executive orders, and secondly, those suggestions to give effect to which legislation is necessary. It is to this second class of suggestions that my Resolution applies. What I want really is, that all legislation that may be necessary to give effect to the recommendations contained in the Resolution of the Government of India in regard to local self-government should be postponed till the new Councils come into existence. I remember last September my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Sarma, moved a Resolution on somewhat similar lines. He moved that administrative sanction to proposals for legislation in regard to local self-government and primary education be withheld till the Reforms were finally settled. That Resolution was opposed by Government on three grounds. They said, firstly, that the Bills which Local Governments had already prepared were prepared after long and careful consideration. The second ground alleged was that they did not know what the reforms were going to be; and the third ground was that it was open to any Member of the local Legislative Council in which the Bill was introduced to move for postponement of the further consideration of that Bill. The first two of these grounds fortunately do not subsist now. As regards the first, Government said that those Bills which were then likely to be introduced in the local Councils were the result of a good deal of care and consideration by the Local Governments. I submit those Bills, if they are not already introduced by this time, will have to be materially recast on the lines of the suggestions contained in the Resolution of the Government of India on local self-government. That ground therefore no longer subsists. The second ground alleged was that the Government of India did not know what the reforms were likely to be. Now, it is known what those reforms are, and in the light of those reforms the Bills are to be prepared. So that ground also does not subsist. The third ground alleged was that it was open to any Member of the local Legislative Council to move for postponement of further consideration of the Bill. Although that ground does subsist now, my submission to this Council is that in the present constitution of the Council, it is impossible that a motion of that character would be favourably considered. But the real ground which has actuated me to bring forward this Resolution is, that local self-government is to be developed in the provinces by, if I have understood the Report on Constitutional Reforms aright, the Indian Minister and the newly constituted

POSTPONEMENT OF LEGISLATION GIVING EFFECT TO REFORMS IN LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

[Mr. V. J. Patel ; Sir C. Sankaran Nair.]

Legislative Councils, and the authors of the Report have in fact in so many words suggested in one of the paragraphs of their Report that local self-government should be developed by the new Councils taking the proposals of the Government of India as their basis. I would draw the attention of this Council to paragraph 197 of the Report, where the authors say :—

‘ If we are sincere in our advocacy of a policy of provincial autonomy, we must leave the work mainly to Local Governments. It would be highly inconsistent to insist on provincial autonomy, and simultaneously to leave no latitude of action to Provincial Governments in a field which is so peculiarly a matter for local development. But the proposals will constitute a basis on which those entrusted with the responsibility for such matters in future can build; and we expect the reformed Legislative Councils to carry forward the work thus begun.’

So the reformed Legislative Councils, if I understand the Report aright, are to take the proposals of the Government of India for the advancement of local self-government as the basis and on that they must build, and if they are to build as they like, they should be allowed full scope for undertaking such legislation as they may consider necessary for the development of local self-Government within their areas. It may be contended that the proposals for reforms in local self-government are clearly put before Local Governments, and they will, if they propose to undertake any legislation, follow the lines laid down. To that my reply is, our experience of some of the Local Governments towards the question of local self-government is unfortunately not very encouraging, in the past, and I beg to submit, therefore, that if, after all, the development of local self-government is to be placed in the hands of the Indian Minister and the newly constituted Legislative Councils, there are chances that the measures which will now be passed by the present Provincial Legislative Councils and the Provincial Governments will have to be materially modified afterwards. If, however, I am assured by the Government that they will take good care to see that proposals for any legislation regarding the advancement of local self-government submitted to them for sanction are not in any way repugnant to the spirit of the proposals contained in the Reforms Report, I do desire to press this Resolution. The Council will, therefore, first hear my Hon'ble friend Sir Sankaran Nair on the point, and if no assurance is forthcoming, I trust the Council will accept this Resolution. ”

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair :—“ Sir, if there was any 1-5 P.M. hesitation on the part of Government to accept the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma's Resolution last year, there is no hesitation now to reject the Resolution which has been moved by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel to-day. The Resolution moved by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sarma last year was opposed by me mainly on two grounds, first, that it was open to any Member of the local Legislative Council to move for the postponement of the consideration of any Bill that might be introduced into that Council till the publication of the Reforms Report, secondly, that if any Bill was introduced into the Council which was repugnant to the spirit of the reforms that were likely to be introduced, then it was not likely that the Government of India would accord their sanction to such a Bill. On these grounds, the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma withdrew his Resolution. Now when my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel says that it is not likely that any request by a Member of a local Council for the postponement of the consideration of a Bill will be of any use, he is wrong. After that Resolution, there was a Bill brought forward in the Assam Legislative Council in March this year. One of the non-official Members moved that the consideration of the Bill be postponed till the Reform proposals were formulated. The Government, though very anxious to have the Bill passed, left the voting to the non-officials, and among the non-officials there was a considerable difference of opinion, but by a majority of eight to six, the motion for the postponement of the consideration of the Bill was carried and the Bill was not taken into consideration. In the same month another Bill

POSTPONEMENT OF LEGISLATION GIVING EFFECT TO REFORMS IN LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

[Sir C. Sankaran Nair ; Mr. V. J. Patel.]

came up for consideration before the Central Provinces Legislative Council. There also there was a Resolution by a non-official Member to the same effect, the non-official Members wanted the consideration of the Bill to be postponed and the Government postponed the consideration of that Bill. Now, after that we have got the Resolution of the Government of India, of May 1918. If then the Assam and the Central Provinces Legislative Councils thought it fit to postpone the consideration of those Bills last year, even before they knew what the reforms were, or what they were likely to be, there is no reason now to consider that any Local Government would go against this Resolution. The Local Governments are bound by the resolution of the Government of India, and they have to see that that Resolution is carried out. There is no reason, therefore, now to imagine that any Local Government will depart from the spirit of our Resolution, and if they depart from that Resolution, then when any measure comes before the Government of India for sanction, they will see whether adequate reasons have been adduced by the Local Government for departing from our Resolution. If adequate reasons are not adduced for departing from our Resolution, it is not likely that the Government of India will accord their sanction to any measure. I submit, therefore, to the Council that there is no reason whatever now why such a resolution as the one under discussion should be passed. There is no reason to think that the Local Governments will do anything against the Resolution of the Government of India. I am glad to notice that my Hon'ble friend by his resolution wants the local Councils to act according to the Resolution which we issued in May 1918. He does not want them to go beyond this Resolution. He does not tell the Council that he wants the matter to be left over to the future Councils on account of the inadequacy of this Resolution, nor does he want the Local Governments to go beyond our Resolution of May 1918. I can give the Hon'ble Mr. Patel the same assurance that I gave the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma last year, that if the Local Governments go against the Resolution, then unless we are satisfied that there were adequate reasons peculiar to that province which justified them to depart from this Resolution, it is not likely that the sanction of the Government of India will be given. On the other hand, if we tell them now not to go on with any Bills on local self-government, the result of it would be that any legislation, which may be absolutely necessary to carry out administrative reforms or which may be necessary on account of financial considerations, will have to be held up. Therefore, it appears to me that this Council ought not to pass this Resolution.

"Then there is one other reason to which the Council might not attach great weight, but to which I have no doubt the Hon'ble Mr. Patel will attach a good deal of weight. The special session of the Congress which met in Bombay a few weeks ago—my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel was Chairman of the Reception Committee—objected to the proposed reforms unless they were considerably modified. We do not know therefore whether those reforms will ever come into operation if my Hon'ble friend and his friends have their way. That would be an indefinite postponement of the matter, but it may be that that reason will not weigh very much with the Council. For these reasons if he does not withdraw his Resolution, I ask the Council to oppose it."

1.15 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—"Sir, I am glad to know that the Assam and the Central Provinces Governments considered favourably proposals of non-official Members recommending postponement of legislation in the matter of local self-government. But let me also point out that a similar request was made by an Hon'ble Member of the Madras Legislative Council very recently recommending to postpone the Madras City [Municipal Bill], but that request was negatived.... .."

POSTPONEMENT OF LEGISLATION GIVING EFFECT TO REFORMS IN LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT; RESOLUTION re INCREASE OF PAY OF INDIAN SEPOYS.

[24TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

[Sir C. Sankaran Nair; Mr. V. J. Patel; The Vice President; Mr. G. S. Khaparde; Major General J. H. Bingley.]

The Hon'ble Sir C. Sankaran Nair :—"The Hon'ble Member did not refer to it."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—"However, that may be, the non-official Members of the Central Provinces and the Assam Legislative Councils seem to be exceptionally lucky. I am glad the Hon'ble Sir Sankaran Nair has given the assurance I asked for and, in view of that assurance, namely, that if any proposals or any measures which the local Governments will submit for sanction of the Government of India are repugnant to the spirit of the Reform proposals contained in the Government of India Resolution, the Government of India will not accord their sanction to those measures or those proposals. In view of that assurance, I propose to withdraw this Resolution, and I hope the Council will allow me to do so."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—"Does the Hon'ble Member withdraw his Resolution?"

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—"I beg to withdraw it."

The Resolution was, by leave of the Council, withdrawn.

RESOLUTION re INCREASE OF PAY OF INDIAN SEPOYS.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde : "I suppose I ought also to 1-15 P.M. withdraw my Resolution if the Council permits it."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—"I may suggest to the Hon'ble Member that he is entitled to withdraw his Resolution without leave if he does not desire to move it. It is only after he has moved the Resolution that he requires the leave of the Council to withdraw it."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"Sir I want to move my Resolution, and if one answer which I expect is given by Government, then I will withdraw it, otherwise it will take the usual course. The Resolution which I wish to move reads thus :—

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the recommendations of the Delhi War Conference as regards the pay of Indian sepoys be carried out at an early date.'

Since I sent in this Resolution it has been kindly pointed out to me that the emoluments of the Indian soldiers have been raised to Rs. 17 and odd annas, not as pay but as allowances during the war. Well, it does not matter whether we call that increase pay or allowances so long as the poor sepoys get the money, because everywhere one rupee sells for 16 annas and that does not make any difference. But if I know that this measure is not temporary and that after the war the whole question will be taken into consideration and a permanent amelioration of the conditions will be made, then I shall ask the Council leave to withdraw my Resolution. But if that is not so, then I will submit that proposition for the judgment of this Hon'ble Council."

The Hon'ble Major General A. H. Bingley :—"Sir, I am 1-16 P.M. unable to give the Hon'ble Member a categorical assurance such as he seems to demand, but I can tell him that after the war the whole question of the organization and strength of the army, which will involve the consideration of various questions such as pay, will receive the attention of Government. When these points are examined, the points which the Hon'ble Member has referred to to-day and the necessity for generally improving the conditions of the Indian soldiers' service will no doubt also be considered. But in view of the re-organization which may ensue, it is obvious that the Government cannot commit themselves to any statement on such a point.

"The Hon'ble Member may be certain that His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, who is greatly interested in the welfare of the soldier, and who has done so much to secure the concessions which the sepoy is now enjoying, will not overlook the point to which he has referred."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :- "In these circumstances, I ask, Sir, the permission of this Hon'ble Council to withdraw my Resolution."

The Resolution was, by leave of the Council withdrawn.

RESOLUTION re DEVELOPMENT OF AN INDIAN MERCANTILE MARINE.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma : "I have the honour to move the following Resolution

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that immediate steps be taken which would enable the Government to assist and develop the building of an Indian Mercantile Marine at as early a date as possible.'

I move, Sir, this Resolution with the confident hope that the Government will see their way to accepting it. The principle underlying this Resolution was accepted by the Conference which met at Delhi on the recommendation of a Sub-Committee which was appointed to inquire into the resources of India to assist the Empire in the war. The Resolution which was then accepted, and to which I have made reference, was the second part of the first Resolution: -

'This Conference recommends that for the purpose of minimising the serious hardships to the public and the dislocation of trade caused by the congestion of traffic on railways it is necessary that the Government should, with as little delay as possible take measures for the construction by itself of river-craft for inland transport and of sailing ships for ocean transport, and also, as far as possible, of steamships, and should by the grant of subsidies or concessions encourage the construction of the same by private agencies.'

"Now the Resolution that I have the honour to move is, as I have said substantially founded upon similar grounds and upon the same policy as dictated the acceptance of that Resolution. I want this Legislative Council as a Council to determine the policy for the Government and to recommend the policy to the Government for adoption, so that there may be a continuity of policy, not merely for the purposes of the war, but after the closing of the war. Hon'ble Members must have already received considerable assurances on this point with regard to the attitude of the Government from the statement a very interesting and enlightening statement and an encouraging statement too made by the Hon'ble Sir George Barnes in reply to a question put by the Hon'ble Mr. Shukul. The statement shows that special facilities are being provided for payment for timber bought for shipbuilding, and about 77 lakhs of rupees were spent during last year on supplies with reference to river-craft. I therefore begin my Resolution under very encouraging auspices, and I may state, Sir, that the practical solution of the problem underlying my Resolution would encourage the people to understand correctly the industrial policy of the Government and allay, to a large extent, the unrest which I make bold to state is largely founded upon suspicion as to whether the Government of India are in a position to defend the true Indian interests. Well, with reference to ship-building the remark may be made that, having regard to the extremely inferior position which India occupies at the present moment, it is a very large order to ask the Government to take very early steps

1.18 P.M.

RESOLUTION re DEVELOPMENT OF AN INDIAN MERCANTILE MARINE.

[Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.]

to establish the Indian Mercantile Marine at early date, and I know several persons are somewhat sceptical as to whether India does possess the facilities in men, materials and otherwise to embark upon this enterprise with any hope of success. But I do not think that any one who has paid any attention whatsoever to the past history of India could for one moment hesitate in answering the sceptical questions that may be put in this respect. We are not asking the Government to embark upon an enterprise for establishing an industry which is not of indigenous growth, which is not peculiarly Indian, which had not taken root for centuries in Indian soil. We are not asking for the artificial establishment of an industry in the hope that we also might claim to be a shipping power in the world. A short reference to ancient history, a very short reference, will convince Hon'ble Members that for 30 centuries India was a maritime power, that she had colonies in Sumatra, Borneo and even the countries of the Far East as far as Japan. She had trading centres in Southern China, the Malay Peninsular and in all the chief cities of Persia and all over the east coast of Africa. She cultivated trade relations, not only with the countries of Asia, but also with the whole of the then known world, including the countries under the dominion of the Roman Empire. What a maritime power India was in those days is shown by the fact that the people printed the figures of ships on their coins. And Burma was largely colonised from the east coast of India. These facts are clear indications that India was a maritime power. And even during the early British days the position was exactly the same. It was not merely a matter of antiquarian interest that India was a maritime power. Lord Wellesley said :—

'The Port of Calcutta contains about 10,000 tons of shipping of a description calculated for the conveyance of cargoes. From the quantity of private tonnage now at the command of the Port of Calcutta and the state of progress which the art of ship-building has already attained in Bengal promising a still more rapid progress, and supported by abundance of supplies of timber, it is certain that this Port will always be able to furnish tonnage to whatever extent may be required for conveying to the Port of London the trade of the private British merchants of Bengal.'

And the tonnage then was much larger than the Indian tonnage now available. And it was also found that ships could be built in Bombay and in Calcutta at a much lower cost than they could be built in London. Ships could be built in Bombay one-fourth cheaper than in London, and whereas the English ships required to be renewed every 12 years, the Indian ships required to be renewed only after a period of 50 years. It is interesting also to remark that in regard to Bombay the Admiralty ordered men-of-war for the King's Navy to be constructed at this Port. They intended to have sent out a European builder, but the merits of a Parsi, Jamsetjee, being made known to their Lordships, they ordered him to continue as Master Ship-Builder. Well these few facts are enough to show that the industry is an indigenous industry; that it had taken firm root, and that the people of India are a maritime race, especially those living on the coast, which is about 4,000 miles in length, a coast much longer, I think, than any other country can boast of. We have vast resources in timber, we have a vast sea-faring population, and consequently I submit that the first part of the proposition, namely, as to whether we have the necessary facilities and have the necessary instinct, I think must be answered in favour of India, in favour of this proposition. Then the second question would be, as to whether there is any need for this Mercantile Marine. I think on this question there need also not be any very lengthy remarks to convince Hon'ble Members that the need is very great indeed. It is a sad tale, this tale of the sinking of ships, but it has brought into prominence the question as to whether India can any longer rely entirely and exclusively upon foreign shipping for the carrying of her trade. Hon'ble Members will notice that countries, such as Australia, Canada, Japan, Italy, Russia, China, not to mention many others, have far less foreign trade than India, but they possess, curiously enough with a far less foreign trade, a much larger tonnage of their own to carry their foreign trade. It is not necessary to repeat the figures; they are to be found in 'Trade in India' for 1916-17. That is one established fact. Then the second point is, that a large part of the shipping of the world is missing owing to these sinkings. I believe it is estimated that about 5 to 6 million tons of the 12 million tons of shipping of England have been sunk. I know it is being replaced, and the enormous financial and ship-building power of Great Britain will, I am sure, replace the lost shipping. But there is the fact that the total tonnage of the world would be absolutely insufficient at the close of the war to meet the requirements of the trade of the world. And how cruelly have we not suffered during the war? We have not to complain because we have escaped perhaps much more than many others, but still that we have suffered is clear from the fact that in almost every article the freights have gone up four times, eight times, and ten times. For instance, from Calcutta to London the freight in respect of rice per ton was 11s. 7d. in 1896; it was only 18s. in 1906; £1 4s. in 1914; it is 18£ now, that is more than twelve times what it was at the commencement of the war. Similarly, with jute, it was 15s. 7d. in 1896; it was £1 6s. in 1914; it is very nearly the same now. With regard to freight by cubical measurements also it will be the same. Freights are not likely to be very considerably reduced having regard to the fact that we have bloated currencies all over the world, and that the shipping facilities are not as large as they were before. Consequently, we shall have to see how we can re-establish our export and import trade on a satisfactory basis with our own ships. Hon'ble Members will be interested to know that if we had the same export trade with regard only to two items, grain, pulse and seeds, etc., as we had in 1913-14, and with regard to jute and cotton, we would have had a larger trade balance of more than 78 crores if we had proper trading facilities. Now, that India would, therefore, suffer enormously if she does not take steps to re-establish the maritime trade which was peculiarly her own, needs no further argument to demonstrate. And it is a matter for considerable regret that even with so much encouragement, the number of ships that we built in the various dockyards was not very large. Dealing with this point, I may also point out to the Council that, whereas our shipping tonnage with cargoes in the inter-port trade was about 31 million tons in 1913-14, it became reduced to 15 million tons, or nearly half in 1916-17; and the number of ships generally and the tonnage which was built is remarkably small having regard to the requirements of the country. In 1912-13, it was 5,032 tons that we built; in 1914-15, it was only 4,265 tons; after the war it was in 1915-16, 4,695 tons; in 1916-17, there was a slight increase, i.e., which amounted to 7,020 tons. So that we cannot say we have been making very rapid progress, having regard to the recent figures which I have been able to obtain.

RESOLUTION re DEVELOPMENT OF AN INDIAN MERCANTILE MARINE.

[Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma.]

" Now the question is what are the steps which can be taken by India, a question that I ask the Government specifically in this Resolution. The policy, as I have said, has been accepted in a way at Delhi. Now, Sir, there may be difficulties, and I expect there will be difficulties, for sometime to come, during the currency of the war, with regard to getting all the iron and steel appliances and machinery for the building of steamers, and it is a good thing that we have started with wooden ships. But we had wooden ships in 1840; we had wooden ships in 1857, and we know to our cost how useful those wooden ships have been to us the moment they had to compete with steamers. Therefore, it would be a wrong policy, it would be a mad policy, to rely upon this wooden ship-building as in any way suited to our needs, except perhaps that it would encourage people to revive the art of ship-building for a time. As regards the correct position which we shall have to assume in regard to ship-building, India need not compete with England in regard to this part of the trade, in fact she cannot compete with her. There is more than 2 million tons of foreign shipping entering the ports of this country every year, and therefore there is ample scope for an improvement in the ship-building of India without competing in the slightest degree with Great Britain. I lay great emphasis on this particular aspect for this reason, that, unfortunately for us, in 1801 and later also, it was felt by Great Britain or by people in authority in Great Britain that the encouragement of ship-building in India or the encouragement of ships going with lascar crews from India would be detrimental to their interest. We see the fruition of this policy in the complete elimination of the ship-building industry from India, and it is this that has excited considerable mortification in Indian minds. It is the feeling that there is this industrial jealousy that is at the bottom of the whole policy, and I am glad therefore to see distinct signs that a new policy is going to be the supreme policy of the hour and for sometime to come.

RESOLUTION re DEVELOPMENT OF AN INDIAN MERCANTILE MARINE.

"Now, Sir, there has been a growth of about 25 per cent in ten years in the Indian merchant shipping. It was only 13·8 millions in 1904-5 and it increased to 17·3 millions or about 25 per cent. Far from keeping to that figure, the tonnage now entering and clearing from India is only about 10 million tons. Therefore, there has been a considerable fall, and, consequently, there is ample scope for the activities of Indians in the matter of ship-building. But we find that in almost every industry where a beginning has to be made, the trusts, the combines, and the large industrial capitalists will be able so to arrange their industries as to lose for a time in some branches or places, and thus to kill nascent industries which may prove rivals. That is a danger we shall have to guard against in India. I may make a specific allusion to one incident in the Madras Presidency, which has a direct bearing upon this. Feeling how miserably low we were in shipping, and seeing that Tuticorin was a port very near to Colombo, the capitalists, merchants and enterprising men there thought of encouraging Indian shipping on a small scale. I do not say that they did not make mistakes, but the net result of that enterprise was a considerable lowering of freights on the part of competing shipping owners, and the killing of that movement, with the result that there was industrial unrest in Tinnevely, and some of those incidents to which reference has been made in the Rowlatt Committee's Report were the sequel to this unhappy episode which filled the people of the Southern Presidency with suspicion as to the fair treatment they would obtain from British Officers and British merchants in the matter of industrial enterprise. But it will not be necessary, I hope, to feel nervous about British attitude. Foreign merchants would have a free change, if unprotected, to try to crush this nascent industry, because it is impossible for us to build on such a large scale as to defy such competition. We shall have to purchase ships also, and Government must undertake the organization of this industry just as they have undertaken the organization of the railway system, because the two are intimately connected. Inasmuch as the Government are the carriers of Indian merchandise in respect of railways, I do not see how they can logically object, in the interests of India, to be the carriers of Indian merchandise in respect of shipping also for a time until they can hand over that branch of the industry to Indians. I think there are signs that Indians themselves will be able to step in, if the Government would give the necessary guarantees and if they would see that their enterprise is not nipped in the bud.

"I therefore ask a straight question as to what steps Government intend taking to protect this infant ship-building industry which the Government as well as the people have so keenly at heart to promote. I ask that they should assist in the building of an Indian Mercantile Marine at an as early a date as possible. If private effort is not forthcoming, then, as far as I can see, I think it is the incumbent duty of the Government that they should develop this industry, having regard to the fact that all the materials are here and that they are not bolstering up a trade which is not indigenous to this country, but which is one peculiarly Indian. The steps that I would therefore suggest, Sir, would be that in addition to the facilities which the Government have already so graciously granted to these ship-building owners, they should continue the policy after the war, of doing whatever may be needed to encourage it make a declaration of such policy with His Majesty's Government's approval and thus undertake the duty of starting a Mercantile Marine in India at as early a date as possible.

"The question may be raised by some people as to whether, if we have ship-building in India, we shall not also require a navy to protect the carrying trade. At present, of course, all our shipping trade is in the hands of Foreign merchants and so it is their look-out as to whether their ships are sunk or not; we have very little to do with it. Certainly, the position would be different if we carried our merchandise in our own ships, but I submit that the problem would not be difficult of solution, because the shipping profits would be larger than the cost of protection. They are larger than what is spent on the navy in England, and after all the total capital expenditure in England with her large fleet was only about £ 45 millions. We have raised in one year £ 35 to £40 millions in India in the shape of loans with the organisation of the Government, and I am certain that Government would be able to raise whatever capital may be necessary in this respect. If only they set their heart on it, capital will not be wanting, men will not be wanting, material will not be wanting. It is in their hands to see that the machinery is imported or manufactured here, and I do not see the slightest difficulty in the way of embarking on this enterprise. If only the Government has the will, they will have the co-operation of the people, and I am sure they will have the co-operation of the whole Empire. I hope, therefore, that it will be possible for the Government to accept this Resolution."

1-45 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"The Hon'ble Member has moved a Resolution to the effect that immediate steps be taken which would enable the Government to assist and develop the building of an Indian mercantile marine at as early a date as possible. As he has told us the need of India for tonnage is great at the present time is certainly acute, but before the shortage of shipping had become anything like as acute as it is now, the Government had carefully considered what they could do to encourage the establishment of the ship-building industry in India, and a ship-building branch of the Indian Munitions Board was formed. We borrowed the services of an Officer from the Admiralty, and he travelled round India examining the possibilities of ship-building in this country. The results of these inquiries have some time ago been made public in Press Communiqués, but I am afraid that they must have escaped the notice of my Hon'ble friend. I can do little more to-day than to repeat what has already been published. Roughly speaking, the conclusion at which we arrived was that the encouragement of wooden ship construction in India was possible during the war, but that it was not possible to make any progress during the war towards the building of steel ships.

"In order to encourage the building of wooden ships, the Government of India promised the following measure of assistance to constructing firms.

"Though no guarantee could be given of general immunity from requisition by Government, an undertaking was given by the British Shipping Controller that in the event of any vessel built in India after 11th July 1918 being required by Government, special rates would be paid taking full account of the conditions under which it was constructed.

"The Admiralty Officer to whom I have already referred is willing to give on application and at his discretion such assistance as he reasonably can in the way of technical advice and the supply of plans and in other ways, moderate fees being charged in respect of any plans supplied.

RESOLUTION re DEVELOPMENT OF AN INDIAN MERCANTILE MARINE.

[Sir George Barnes.]

"Timber will be supplied by the Forest Department in Madras, Bombay and Bengal at moderate rates and on easy terms of payment, on the security of insurance policies on the vessels.

"Help will be given by the Indian Munitions Board in securing the provision of essential requirements of metal parts and accessories of the simplest possible description, as may be procurable in India, but which shipbuilders may experience difficulty in getting without assistance.

"The Board will also support applications for priority for the importation of accessories, such as anchors, cables and the like, and lastly,

"The Finance Department of the Government of India have agreed to grant licenses for the flotation of any ship-building company which has a fair prospect of being able to commence operations in a reasonable time.

"I think that the Hon'ble Member will agree that these promises imply a very considerable measure of Government assistance.

"The Hon'ble Member and the Council generally will. I think, be interested to know what sea-going wooden vessels are now being built in India under the encouragement which has been given to the industry.

"Taking, as I am sure the Hon'ble Member would desire, Madras first, there are 11 ships building each of between 200 and 300 tons at Calicut, and one of 500 tons at the same place. One ship of 700 tons is being built in Cochin, two of 200 tons at Masulipatam, one of 100 tons at the same place and three more at the same place, of which I do not know the tonnage.

"Taking Burma next, there are three ships of 1,000 tons burden building in Rangoon, one of 350 tons and eight more of 250 tons. In Moulmein there are two ships being built of 500 tons burden each.

"In Bengal, six ships are being built in Chittagong, the exact tonnage of which I do not know, but I believe them to be between 200 and 300 tons a piece, and one of 100 tons in Calcutta.

"In Bombay four ships are being built at 'Versova,' the largest being one of 750 tons, the next one of 600 tons, one of 250 tons and one of 125 tons.

"Thus in all there are at the present time 44 sea-going wooden vessels of over 100 tons burden a piece being built in India. This, I think, the Hon'ble Member will agree is not unsatisfactory progress.

"With regard to the building of cargo steamers of steel, the case is entirely different. The conclusion come to with regard to steel ship-building is that under present war conditions the resources of India cannot economically be turned to account. Apart from the insufficiency of steel in this country for the purpose, we cannot unfortunately at the present time in India roll steel plates, and it would consequently be necessary to import from abroad all the steel plates required. It would also be necessary to import boilers, most of the propelling machinery and the greater part of the structural steel work. It will be plain too that steel ships cannot be built without engineers, and the engineering firms and workshops in India on which it would be necessary to rely for the carrying out of any steel ship building programme are already employed in a manner more appropriate to their equipment and experience, and therefore to greater economic advantage on the construction of launches, barges and other small craft, and on the even more important work of repairs to existing vessels. I may tell the Hon'ble Member that during the war a large number of small craft has been either built entirely in India or assembled in India from materials sent from outside. These include hospital sternwheelers, barges, tugs, anchor boats and dinghys, which have been sent out to Mesopotamia and are now plying on the Shat-el-Arab and on the Tigris.

RESOLUTION re DEVELOPMENT OF AN INDIAN MERCANTILE MARINE.

[Sir George Barnes ; the Vice-President.]

[24TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

“ Ship-building as our friend pointed out just now, is a very ancient industry in India, and I hope that immediately after war is ended and circumstances permit, vigorous efforts will be made to revive it. As His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief told the Hon’ble Mr. S. N. Banerjea last March, several wooden vessels were built for the British Navy in Bombay a little more than 100 years ago. The 36-gun frigate ‘ Pitt ’ was built there in 1805. Six ships of the line of 74-guns and 5 of 84-guns were built in the years shortly following that date, and the composite brig ‘ Fame ’ was constructed as late as 1889.

“ I feel quite sure that there are no more steps which the Government can take at the present time, but signs are not wanting that private enterprise in various directions is ready to embark on the establishment of a ship-building industry in India as soon as circumstances permit and materials are available. Whether any Government assistance will be required in the matter or not is a matter for consideration when the time arrives. If and when any application is made to Government, I may assure my Hon’ble friend that the application will be considered very sympathetically, but it will be perfectly plain to him that I cannot make any promise of a more definite character.

In its present form I cannot accept the Hon’ble Member’s Resolution, but if he likes to amend his Resolution (I do not know, Sir, whether leave can be granted) the wording I would suggest would be :

‘ That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that as soon as circumstances permit the Government should consider in what way the industry of ship-building can best be encouraged in India ’

Now, if he will accept that wording, I will accept his Resolution.”

The Hon’ble the Vice-President: “The Hon’ble Member will have an opportunity of considering it. The Council will now adjourn till 11 o’clock to-morrow.”

The Council then adjourned till Wednesday, the 25th September, 1918.

MERCANTILE MARINE—contd.

The Hon'ble the Vice-President:—"The Council will now resume 11-4 A.M. the discussion on the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma's Resolution of yesterday. I propose to read out to the Council the amendment which was suggested by Sir George Barnes yesterday for Mr. Sarma's consideration. It reads thus :

'That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that, as soon as circumstances permit, the Government should consider in what way the industry of ship-building can best be encouraged in India.'

I hope the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma has considered it."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma:—"Sir, In speaking on 11-5 A.M. the Resolution yesterday, I expressed my hearty appreciation of what was being done to improve the ship-building industry. I take it, Sir, that this amendment means, subject to correction, that the policy of the Government will be to encourage the industry of ship-building, only they wish to have time to devise ways and means how best to do it. I accept the amendment with pleasure."

The Resolution, as amended, was put and accepted.

The Hon'ble the Vice-President:—"I must remind the Hon'ble Member that he should commence by moving his Resolution."

RESOLUTION re CONGRATULATIONS TO THE ALLIED ARMIES.[Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi.]

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi :—

" I did not know, Sir, that the Resolution must necessarily come in the beginning, and that a Member may not wind up his speech with the words of the Resolution.

" Sir, the Resolution which stands in my name runs thus :—

' This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the thanks and congratulations of this Council be conveyed to the Allied Armies now so successfully operating on the various fronts. '

As I said just now, never before in the history of the world has there been a war of such vast magnitude, so terrible in its methods and so far-reaching in its consequences, calculated to change the destinies of mankind. In the air and from the air, on the land and under ground, on the sea and under the sea, scientific weapons of warfare, some of them previously unheard of, are destroying the manhood of nations, devastating some of the fairest lands on God's earth, and bringing untold misery to millions of the human race in all parts of the world.

" Sir, on whom does the grave responsibility of bringing about this world catastrophe rest? To this question there can be but one answer. Fired with an unrighteous lust for world-dominion, confident in the extent and strength of its secret preparations, German militarism, and German militarism alone, has plunged mankind into this unparalleled conflagration. And the horrible acts of frightfulness with which the onward march of the modern Hun has been characterised are such as one hesitates to dwell on. Trampling under foot sacred obligations arising out of solemn International Treaties as mere scraps of paper, the modern Hun has carried fire and sword across poor little Belgium into the heart of France. Bombardment of undefended towns, wanton incendiarism resulting in the burning of thriving villages and of prosperous towns, massacre of innocent women and children; bombardment of even sacred places of worship, sending down to the bottom of the sea ships carrying innocent passengers from Continent to Continent, and in their retreat poisoning of wells, propagation of tubercular germs in prisoners' camps and acts of brutality, even on sacred persons, persons that ought to have been sacred to this so-called nation of modern Kultur, have sent a thrill of horror and indignation throughout the civilized world, and gradually brought on the side of the Allies almost every nation, barring a few, great and small in the old world and new, knitted together to smash this horrible military machine which has brought such unlimited misery to the human race.

" Sir, a consideration of the forces which are ranged on the opposing sides is calculated to convince, if proof were necessary, every reasonable person of the righteousness of the Allies' cause. Modern States are divisible into Republics, constitutional monarchies and autocracies. Consider for a moment who are ranged on opposite sides in this terrible conflict. In Asia, we have only one Republic, that of China, and China is one of the Allies, fighting on the side of righteousness. In Europe, there are two Republics, heroic France and Portugal and both are ranged on the side of the Allies. In America, the great Republic of the United States in the north and smaller Republics in the south are all ranged on the side of the Allies. In Asia, that advanced constitutional Monarchy, which may be said to be the home of liberty and freedom in the East, i.e. Japan, in Europe, that greatest of all constitutional Monarchies, England, and also Italy in the south are on the side of the Allies. On the other hand, who is it that these Republics and constitutional Monarchies are fighting? The forces of autocracy, every one of them without a single exception. I do not speak of Russia whose old autocracy has dearly paid for its past sins, and has been succeeded by another kind of autocracy which is at this moment weltering in its own blood. This one fact, that we have on the side of the Allies ranged all the forces of liberty and freedom, must convince every reasonable being that the cause of the Allies is righteous and true

[Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi;
Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

“ Sir, to such a war as this there could be but one end, and thanks to the Allied Armies, the beginning of that end is now in sight. A succession of hammer blows, dealt in the North, in the East, in the South, and above all on the Western front, is slowly but surely smashing this gigantic military machine with which Germany sought to enthrall the civilised world into a condition of slavery. Day after day we hear of thousands of prisoners taken on almost every front, hundreds of guns, big and small, thousands of machine guns captured in the West and in the South. Only this morning's news, which must have reached the ears of all Hon'ble Members, has brought us the tidings of the capture of 25,000 combatants (which probably means 50,000 combatants and non-combatants), and 260 guns in Palestine. Surely, time and truth are the two most powerful forces which no nation can withstand. Truth is on the side of the Allies and the cause of righteousness, bound to triumph, is now in the process of receiving that triumph which is its due. To us here in India this is a matter for real thankfulness and of congratulations, for in the bringing about of these results our Indian armies are playing a most important part. On one front four-fifths of the forces now engaged in the war are Indians, on another three-fourths of the forces now actually pursuing their triumphant course are Indians, and on the Macedonian front, where the Bulgars are now retreating fast—so fast that I can see the restoration of Serbia looming at no great distance—a very large number of the forces engaged are Indians. Therefore, it is but in the fitness of things, that this Council, in a unanimous Resolution, should offer thanks and congratulations on behalf of this country to our great Allied Armies who are now successfully operating on the various fronts. Hon'ble Members have seen the fate of Belgium, of Serbia and of Northern France. It is to the Allied Armies that the safety of India is due, and that the war has been kept away from our borders by those brave and heroic troops who are fighting for the cause of righteousness. We in India therefore have an additional cause for thankfulness and congratulation that at last this great military machine is in the process of being smashed up, the cause of righteousness and of truth is about to triumph, and the future generations will remember with thankfulness and gratitude the great deeds of the Allied Armies, which in smashing this military machine, will bring triumph to the cause of righteousness and liberty. I therefore ask this Council to accept the Resolution unanimously and with acclamation.”

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—“ Sir, I desire 11-19 A.M. to accord my whole-hearted support to the Resolution which has just been moved. I hope and trust that it will be carried with unanimity and enthusiasm. There seems to me to be a special appropriateness in this Resolution having been moved by a Member representing the great Province of the Punjab, for that Province, above all other Provinces, has made the largest contribution in respect of men to the military forces of the Empire in this crisis. Furthermore, Sir, it seems to me that the stars are auspicious at the present moment, for this Resolution has been introduced into this Council on a day when the good and cheering news of a great victory has been received by us in this country. May the triumphant course of the victorious army which has captured 25,000 combatants and 260 guns continue until the enemy has been cleared from Palestine and Mesopotamia and driven back to Turkey. I am sure that is the sentiment which is uppermost in the minds of us all.

“ Sir, the Resolution thanks the Allied Armies and offers to them the congratulations of this Council on their success, and I am sure in this matter we represent the whole country. For four long years dark clouds frowned upon the fortunes of the Allied Armies. They are now slowly melting away, and, I think, we are within measurable distance of final and complete victory. Sir, the Allies deserve to win, for never was there a juster or a more righteous cause than that for which they are fighting. They have unsheathed the sword in defence of righteousness and freedom, for the protection of minor nationalities, for the vindication of the sanctity of treaty obligations. I ask, is there an Indian here or outside of this Council Chamber, be he a Hindu or a Muhammadan, or a Christian, or a Sikh, who does not feel an added glow of patriotic fervour as he contemplates this titanic struggle in which the best interests of the human race are at stake? Never were graver issues presented for solution to the conscience and the judgment of mankind. Is Prussian militarism to prevail, or are the healing accents of peace, of concord, of amity and good-will among nations, to be the dominating factors in determining the counsels of mankind? That is the issue before us. It is not a war of conquest or aggression, but a war for the vindication of the loftiest principles of freedom and self-determination, so dear to the human race, and upon which the best prospects of the future of humanity so largely depend. To us Indians, as my Hon'ble friend Mr. Shafi has already said, it is a matter of special self-satisfaction to know that our country and our countrymen have borne so large, so honourable, a share in this great struggle for freedom. As an Indian, it is not for me to dilate upon the measure of our sacrifice of which we had an illustration the other day in the practically unanimous vote that we passed in this Council granting £15 millions in aid of the war. But, Sir, I am sorry to have to say, that there are some newspapers in England which are seeking to cast a slur upon our loyalty and our devotion to the Empire in this crisis. The other day an article appeared in one of the newspapers, which shall be nameless for the present, which said that, in view of the revelations that have been made in the Rowlatt Committee's Report, the British public should revise their attitude with regard to the Reform proposals. Sir, I am inclined to reply to these observations in the words of Lord Canning in 1857. When the Indian Mutiny was at its height, Lord Canning wrote to the Maharaja of Nadia saying that, if the rebels could be counted by thousands, the loyal population could be reckoned by millions. If the suspected revolutionaries can be counted only by hundreds—I think their number does not exceed 1,200—we, the loyal portion of the community, devoted to the British connection and the Empire, are three hundred millions. And are the prospects of our political advancement to be blighted by the follies and the crimes of a handful of misguided and fanatical young men? I am sure the verdict of the British democracy will be otherwise. Let me refer to the traditions, the great traditions, of British rule in India. In 1857, in the height of the Indian Mutiny, when the Empire was tottering to its foundations, the Indian Universities were established. In 1910, when the revolutionary movement in Bengal was at its culminating point, Lord Minto introduced the great Minto-Morley Reform Scheme. I am sure the same policy of justice and beneficence will now be followed. I am confident that the British democracy will not permit the follies and the crimes of a handful of misguided young to stand in the way of the fulfilment of England's great mission in India, and the satisfaction of our legitimate aspirations as outlined in the Reform Proposals upon which the future of this great and ancient country so largely depends.

RESOLUTION re CONGRATULATIONS TO THE ALLIED ARMIES.

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; Mr. G. S. Khaparde.] [25TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"I desire, Sir, whole-heartedly to associate myself with this Resolution. It represents the unanimous, the enthusiastic, verdict not only of this Council, but of the entire, the vast, the multitudinous, population of the Indian Empire."

11-28 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—"Sir, I desire to be associated with this Resolution most whole-heartedly, and the reason of it is, first, that we are on the tide of success; and the second reason is, that this war from the beginning has always read to me like one of the passages that we read of in our sacred books. Probably some of you may remember that in the Kali Puran there is a long story of how a large number of demons got together in order to vanquish the goddess Kali, whom we regard as the Goddess of Liberty. Well,

RESOLUTION re CONGRATULATIONS TO THE ALLIED ARMIES.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde; Mr. C. A. Kincaid.]

these demons assembled and she was alone. Then, on coming to the battle-field, other gods and goddesses came to her help to the tune of something like 33 crores. Well, it is more or less the same thing here. In Germany and round about that portion, they sat together and came to the conclusion that they would go and fight England alone and would put her down. Well, England took up the challenge and nearly the whole world is siding with England, as Kali was helped by all the gods and goddesses.

"Similarly, also, in these scientific days, we used to laugh at the old armour and old helmets, and all the other panoply of war, but now we see all those old things are coming back. We have got the helmet now to protect us from gas and so on. Then we are putting on breastplates to prevent us from being attacked in the front. Similarly, also, in old history, in India at any rate, one of our heroes used to be called a mountain rat because he introduced trench warfare. Well, trench warfare has come to the front now, and we are quite as good experts at it as the other people fighting against us.

"Well, there is something more than that, and the whole was illustrated very much as I should like to have it the other day in Poona where they had a pageant. It was something like the Lord Mayor's Show, I suppose, at home. The ancient monarchs marched first, the Moguls came next, and then the British and their Allies followed. It really was a symbolical representation of what we see in the field now, and I am very glad to see that, as in the old Puran the Goddess of Liberty won, so England is also going to win. There is no doubt about it now. We have got everything on our side; there is nothing wanting. In fact, we have got more than we require, I think, in certain ways. More men are coming in than we can train, more ammunition is being turned out than we can spend, and soon the time will come when we shall have more arms and ammunition than enemies; in fact, when there will be no more enemies, just as the darkness disappears when the sun shines out. I expect soon, very soon, all the old conditions of peace will be restored, and we shall have unity, even diversity. We shall preserve our individuality and yet be united in one, like the creation of the Almighty God. There will be a great deal of variety, but that variety will be merged in one beauty, and it will all mix together, like the colours of the rainbow or like the flowers and trees we see all around us. And there will be a beautiful home, a safe home—world made safe for righteousness, safe for goodness, safe for everything we can desire. Now, with this beautiful dream in my mind—a dream partially realised by the news we heard this morning—I most whole-heartedly support this Resolution."

The Hon'le Mr. C. A. Kincaid:—"Sir, I was asked at the door by 11-32 A.M. a Member of the Executive Council of the Government of India to say a few words about a country and a people which, as I have already said in this Council before, are very dear to me,—that is, the Maratha people. I am not one of those who are given to making impromptu speeches of any length, and I would only like to say one thing.

"There has been for many years an impression that the Marathas are a treacherous people, and 'treacherous Marathas,' 'Maratha treachery,' are phrases found constantly in English histories of India. Indeed, a former Member of this Council, the late Sir Herbert Risley, went so far as to draw this remarkable conclusion. He said, Shivaji was a treacherous man: Shivaji was a Maratha: therefore Marathas are treacherous. The Scythians were also a treacherous people: therefore Marathas and Scythians were connected. A certain Mr. Vaidhya asked in reply pointed out, 'assuming that Marathas were treacherous, where was the evidence of Scythians being treacherous?' And, of course, there was no answer. I am glad to say that modern research has shown that the accepted story of the meeting of Afzal Khan and Shivaji is nothing but a pack of lies, and that so far from Shivaji having treacherously murdered Afzal Khan, he acted in legitimate self-defence. Now, Sir, on the lines of Sir H. Risley's reasoning, it follows that if Shivaji was not treacherous, Marathas are not treacherous. Therefore, it also follows that no connection between the Marathas and Scythians has been established!

"Well, Sir, there were other qualities that Shivaji showed—resourcefulness, courage, fertility of invention, endurance. All these qualities, I venture to think, have been abundantly shown by Maratha regiments at the front; and I am sure this Council will agree that the reputation which our Maratha troops have gained on that front has removed a slur on their reputation, which really never existed except in the imagination of incorrect historians."

11-35 A.M. The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Krishna Sahay:—"Sir, on behalf of the people of Bihar, whom I have the honour to represent in this Council, I desire to associate myself whole-heartedly with the sentiments embodied in the Hon'ble Mr. Shafi's Resolution and the eloquent and feeling terms in which he has expressed those sentiments.

"It is but a truism to say that the prosperity and happiness of this country—our own hopes and aspirations, - are bound up with the fortunes of this colossal war in which the British Empire is at present engaged. It is, therefore, with a personal concern, Sir, that every patriotic Indian has watched the progress of events on the battle fields of the East and the West, especially as on those fronts our own countrymen have been taking so honourable and so creditable a part. It is evident now that the tide of affairs has turned in our favour on both the fronts. Every Indian has been filled with hope and buoyancy at the news that we have been receiving for the last few months; and it is in the fitness of things that we, who represent here the various parts of India, should express our grateful thanks to the Allied Armies and offer them our congratulations for the success they have achieved. I support this Resolution."

11-37 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. W. A. Ironside:—"Sir, when the hearts of people are full, few words are necessary to express our thankfulness. Day after day one reads stories of endurance and heroism—heroism by men just like ourselves, - some of them probably men who have gone from amongst us. The future, Sir, is full of hope to-day, though we have still to strive and do our best. The opportunity has been offered to us by the Hon'ble Mr. Shafi of expressing, through this Council and His Excellency on behalf of the people of India, our heartfelt gratitude to the Allied Armies for all that they have done for India and for the world. On behalf of the European non-official community of Calcutta and Bengal, few words, as I have already said, are necessary to express what we feel. I only wish to add my simple and inadequate tribute for all that our men have done,—the men of India the men of the Empire, the men of the Allied forces."

11-39 A.M. The Hon'ble Sardar Sundar Singh Majithia:—"Sir, in rising to support the motion of my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Shafi, I need not go again over the ground that has been covered by him with his usual eloquence. The services of the Indian Army, however humble they may be, in the cause of the Empire, have been a source of pride to us all. It has been our proud privilege to serve the Empire at this present juncture. Every unit of the Indian Army,—Sikhs, Gurkhas, Dogras, Muhammadans and all, -I am glad to say, have done their duty right valiantly in the different theatres of war. In offering our thanks to the Allied Armies—American, French, English and all others (of course with the English I associate our own Indian Army)—I think it is customary not only to give congratulations but something else with it. And that something else, I think, on behalf of India, should be nothing short of our preparedness, or our readiness to fight this war of aggression till victory has been finally achieved on the battle-fields of Europe. Every Indian should be prepared, nay, should be ready, to sacrifice his all till that final goal is reached; till German militarism is crushed and the armies of the British Empire and its Allies valiantly bring the enemy down on his knees. So I would not say that we are satisfied unless and until we see the enemy finally vanquished. So my final congratulations to the army will be at the time when full peace is assured on the battle-fields, probably on the German soil."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy :—" Sir, after the eloquent speeches delivered by the previous speakers, including my Hon'ble friend Mr. Shafi, nothing more remains for me to say, but to accord my whole-hearted support to the Resolution." 11-41 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Malcolm Hogg :—" Sir, on behalf of those whom I represent I desire to offer our tribute of gratitude and admiration to all the fighting forces of the Empire and of our Allies. I need only add that I most heartily welcome and most warmly support this very timely Resolution." 11-42 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur :—" Sir, I beg to support the Resolution on behalf of the Muslim community of the Madras presidency." 11-42 A.M.

The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul :—" Sir, on behalf of the landed aristocracy, not of my province only, but of that of the whole of India. I rise to whole-heartedly associate myself with the sentiments just now given expression to by other Hon'ble colleagues of mine, and I beg that the Council should accept this Resolution unanimously." 11-42 A.M.

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru :—" I do not think, Sir, that it is necessary for me to speak at any length on this Resolution. I think the sentiments of all India, educated and uneducated, of all classes of the people of this country, have been expressed by Mr. Banerjea with his usual eloquence. But I do not think that it will be right for me to allow this opportunity to go without associating myself, on behalf of the province which I have the honour to represent, with this Resolution. Sir, we look upon the Allied Armies as the soldiers of freedom, fighting for the cause of righteousness, for justice and for freedom, and we who aspire to larger freedom in our own country cannot but feel grateful to these brave soldiers who are laying down their lives for the defence of the Empire, and not only for the defence of the Empire, but for those eternal ideals of justice and righteousness for which we do stand, and I hope shall always stand." 11-43 A.M.

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi :—" Sir, I beg to associate myself with this Resolution, and I whole-heartedly support it on behalf of the Zemindars of Bengal." 11-44 A.M.

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill :—" Sir, I had not intended to speak on this Resolution, but I do feel that on behalf of the officials in this Council, it is as well that I should make it clear how whole-heartedly we endorse the vote of congratulations and thanks which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Shafi has proposed. I have an additional reason for venturing to trouble the Council, and that is this; that eloquent as has been the Hon'ble Mr. Shafi's tribute to the Allies, eloquent as has been the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea's speech in supporting that motion, I venture to think there is reason to believe that perhaps we hardly realise the full meaning involved to India in the success of the cause for which the Allies are fighting. India has been, thanks partly to the protection afforded by the Navy, somewhat aloof from the more terrible features of this great struggle. India has not had an opportunity of visualising at close quarters the terrible hardships which are being undergone by the troops to whom we propose to convey our thanks and congratulations to-day, and consequently it seems to me, I suggest with deference, Sir, that we perhaps do not fully appreciate, unless we give considerable thought to the matter, the full effect of the meaning to us, the vital meaning, of success to the Allied arms in this struggle.

“ In regard to that I have no doubt that we are all aware of the existence of literature, partly of a secret and partly of a published character, which gave us some indication of what German ambitions meant in respect of the domination of the world, and what Germany proposed to do to the world when it had dominated it. We have all seen extracts from publications indicating quite frankly and cynically what Germany proposed to do with subject countries when she had obtained the necessary domination. We know of her schemes of conquest in Central Africa with a view to training up and maintaining an army of Central Africans of such enormous size and of such a high pitch of training, that Germany would be able with their assistance alone to dominate the rest of the world. We also know that the Germans had frankly indicated what they proposed to do with India when her penetration through Baghdad should have come to fruition. We know the cynical attitude which Germany adopted in her references to the treatment she proposed to accord to India, her Chiefs and peoples, and we have now, finally, within the last few days, learnt the kind of fate which might have been in store for India had her ambitions come to realization. In the revelations which have recently been published by Dr. Georges, regarding the treatment by Germany of South-west Africa, the Herreros in particular, we have some little fore-taste of what the world might have expected, at all events that portion of the world which was to be subjected to German domination. We have some little fore-taste of what India among other countries might have expected in the way of horrors and barbaric treatment at the hands of a victorious Germany. I suggest, therefore, for that reason, that we can now realise to the full, and should do so in no flippant spirit, the real and essential meaning to us here in India of success to the Allied arms, and that in conveying the thanks which my friend, Mr. Shafi, so eloquently proposed, to the troops which are fighting our battles and which, to our pride, include Indian troops who have acquitted themselves so well, that in doing so, we should fully visualise for what we are giving an expression of our gratitude. In regard to the terrible nature of the struggle, I venture to remind the Council also of the reality of the conditions which the Allies were up against when they entered upon this struggle.

“ For 40 years Germany had been silently preparing the engines of war for the subjugation of the rest of Europe, and consequently for the domination, at all events, of the greater part of the world. It is surely right to realise this, and then on the other side to see how long it has taken the cause of freedom to arm itself, and to fit itself to cope successfully against this world aggression. Four years have elapsed of a gigantic struggle of varying intensity and varying success ; and it is only now, at the beginning of the fifth year, that the forces of the Allies which stood in pre-war days, organized for peace and liberty, have been able to organize their forces successfully with a view to dealing with this vast aggressive preparation of the Central European powers. Therefore, now when we stand, as we hope, at the turn of the tide, it is well that we should, as my Hon'ble friend Mr. Shafi proposed, recognise to the full, and with full gratitude, the great effort that has been made, the great sacrifices in blood and treasure that have been made, in the great cause of the world, and that we, in India in particular, realising what I have suggested, namely, the fate which might have overtaken us had fortune turned the other way, that we, in doing so, should at the same time convey this vote of thanks with a sense of restraint, not too optimistically ; for, let us not imagine that the fight is over. We may have a long way to go yet before success is attained finally by the armies of our cause. But, in conveying this vote of thanks and appreciation to our Allies, let us hope and pray that the turn of the tide is definite and final, and let us show that India, in common with the other nations forming the alliance for freedom, is determined to persist as strenuously as in the past and to go on persisting until a successful issue is finally reached."

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri :—"Sir, last but not least, sincere or glad of heart, Madras through me joins the rest of India in offering thanks and congratulations to the victorious armies of the Allies." 11-52 A.M.

The Hon'ble Khan Zulfikar Ali Khan :—"Sir, the Resolution, which my Hon'ble friend Mr. Shafi has moved in this Council, purports to convey to the Armies of the Empire the congratulations of this Council. The tribute of admiration which is called forth by the triumphs, endurance and sufferings of the Armies of the Empire fighting on the different fronts would be more enthusiastic and more hearty than it is possible to convey by simply making speeches, if only we realised what the extent of sacrifice and suffering that has been entailed by fighting under the modern conditions are. Sir, it is easy in this Council to speak, but it is very difficult even to realise what sufferings and what hardships those brave Armies, which the Empire has sent to fight the Germans, have endured. It was only in March last when the German offensive began on a great scale, and when the valiant Armies of the Empire were pushed back step by step fighting bravely, to the lines behind the original front; it was then that Hindenburg, when a deputation approached him said, that in April he would occupy Paris, and may even get a triumphant entry into that world-renowned capital. It was only after a few days that the Kaiser himself declared in a speech that this would be the last year of the war, and that the Germans would have a victorious peace according to their own conditions. Well, Sir, the world stood aghast as to what was going to happen, as to whether the Kaiser and his renowned Generals were going to sweep everything before them, or whether the Generals of the Allies would be able to stand that mighty on-set. The answer has, in due course, been given by the valiant Armies of the Allies. There is no eloquence required. The eloquence of the cannon, the eloquence of the brave Armies, has been sufficient to demonstrate the cause of liberty for which the Empire is fighting. It was then supposed that perhaps Paris and, if possible, the Channel ports on whose fate perhaps the destinies of this mighty Empire of Great Britain depended, would be captured by the Germans. It is now the predicament of the Germans to save their own capital if they can by any effort still left in them." 11-53 A.M.

"Well, Sir, who has made all this possible? Certainly, our brave Armies going from India, from Australia, from Canada and from Great Britain. All honour is therefore due to these Armies, and if we pay a tribute of admiration to their endurance, it is only a small, an insignificant tribute which we pay. I see that history is repeating itself. On this occasion the great Generals of the Kaiser are ranged against the Generals of the Allies. I see that the peninsular times are coming back to us when the great iron Duke triumphed against the best Generals that Napoleon could send against Great Britain. I see also that, on the one side, the great military talent that Germany could muster is ranged against the military talent of the Allies, and what is happening? It is so clear that the military talent and the military machinery organized by Germany during a period of forty years is already being smashed, smashed to pieces—I hope it will never come into existence again. Well, Sir, the Armies now fighting have deserved the tribute of honour and admiration. But what about those who have laid down their lives,—the young, fruitful, hopeful, lives in the defence of the Empire? They lie in France, in Mesopotamia, in Gallipoli."

"All honour and glory are due to them and our mournful tribute of admiration goes out to them also. Those who have visited Greece perhaps may remember that the epitaph on the graves of those who fought against the Persians in the defence of their liberties at the Pass of Thermopylæ says—'Sparta we lie here in obedience to thy laws.' But those young men who have died in the defence of this great Empire deserve a tribute greater than that which is the source of admiration of the whole world and inspires the Greeks now. Will it not be possible in the case of these people to record an epitaph saying on their behalf, 'We lie here in defence of the liberties of the world.'"

12 P.M.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma :—" Sir, on behalf of Madras and on behalf of the Andhra community, who number nearly 22 millions, I heartily associate myself with the Resolution which is now before the Council. Little did I dream that my words, uttered in 1914, June, in Edinburgh two months before the war began, that the British and Indians would be fighting together against Germany, would come so true and so soon. How unguarded the British were, how hospitably they treated the Germans only two months before the war, will be clear from the fact that the whole of Edinburgh, the whole of the Scottish community and many English towns entertained the Hamburg Jurists who were on a visit to Great Britain at the time. They were shown all over the dockyards; all over the ship-building yards, and little did one imagine from the cordial greetings of the two communities that secret machinations were going on in Berlin to bring the world's peace so cruelly to an abrupt termination and so shortly. Sir, it is clear to any one who understands the German temperament, that there is little of the democratic spirit pervading France, Great Britain and the United States either in Germany or in Austria-Hungary, and if there be Indians so deluded as to imagine for a moment that they would in any, the remotest, degree benefit by any unworthy alliance with, or hopes from Germany, I think they are traitors indeed to the country. My friends the Scotch were so enamoured of the Germans, that they thought that the Saxons and the Germans were going to guard the peace of the world. And I said that the economic jealousy was so great that the British and the Indians would have to be fighting together against German predominance, and I am glad that the soldiers in the East and the soldiers in the West are allied together in this glorious struggle for the vindication of the cause of righteousness and freedom. Our gratitude is due to them, and we are glad that Mr. Shafi had given us an opportunity of expressing it in this Council."

12-4 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. M. A. Jinnah :—" Sir, after Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea had spoken, I thought that on this occasion he expressed the sentiments and the feelings of the non-official Members in this Council, as well as the people of India outside, but the occasion is one which requires that, on behalf of Bombay, I should rise and associate myself with this Resolution. Sir, it is obvious that, however backward the people of India may be, it has been demonstrated during the last four years that the people of India, as a whole, have loyally stood by the Empire. Why is that so? Because we fully realise the principles for which this titanic war is being carried on, those noble principles which have been reiterated by the Premier and by President Wilson. We feel we are fighting for the principles of liberty, freedom and for the rights of, and the safety of, small nationalities, nay international liberty. Those truths which stand for justice appeal to the people of India more than any other at the present moment, because we ourselves are struggling and fighting for those principles in our own country by constitutional methods, and let us hope we shall reach the goal for which we are fighting all over the world to-day."

12-6 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—" My Hon'ble friend Mr. Jinnah has usurped my right to speak on behalf of Bombay. I represent the whole of the Bombay Presidency here, returned as I am by the non-official Members, Hindus, Muhammadans, and Christians, of the Bombay Legislative Council. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Jinnah is returned by the Muhammadan members only. Speaking on behalf of the Presidency, therefore, I heartily associate myself with this Resolution. I do so with the prayer—the same prayer which the authors of the Report uttered in concluding it, namely—that the principles of justice and freedom may be saved to the world by the splendid endurance and self-sacrifice of His Majesty's and the Allied Armies."

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India:— 12-8 P.M.
 "Sir, the Resolution which the Hon'ble Member has just moved in such eloquent terms, and which was responded to so generously by all the Members of this Council, comes at a particularly opportune time. The news of the last two or three weeks has been one of continuous and striking successes on every front. In France, the Allies have driven the Germans back with immense losses in men and guns to beyond the line from which they developed their great offensive last March, and the last word has not yet been spoken in that particular theatre. In Italy, the Allies have driven the Austrians beyond the Piave, and inflicted such severe losses on them that their offensive power has been severely, if not permanently, crippled. In Salonika, we have heard of brilliant successes during the last ten days. The Greeks are now proving their value as soldiers and allies, and the Serbians, despite the misfortunes which overwhelmed them at the beginning of the war, are proving themselves stout fighters, and showing that they are not crushed as the Germans declared. Lastly, in Palestine, our troops have achieved a series of most striking victories, which seem to have almost destroyed the Turkish Armies opposed to them. Every Reuter's telegram brings news of fresh captures of prisoners and guns. This news is of special interest to us in India, as we learn that the newly formed Indian troops, raised as part of India's man-power contribution to the Empire, have taken a distinguished part in these successes. The present time, therefore, is thus particularly opportune for the passing of a Resolution such as the Hon'ble Member has proposed, a Resolution, moreover, which will hearten the soldiers who are fighting and lighten their tasks and make them march with their fibres and their nerves braced towards this victory which we see month by month more nearly in sight. On behalf of the Government, therefore, I cordially agree to the motion which has been proposed."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mian Muhammad Shafi:— 12-10 P.M.
 "Sir, the complete unanimity with which my Resolution has been received by representatives of all Provinces and communities proves beyond all shadow of doubt that the heart of India, official as well as non-official, is with the brave Allied Armies in the terrible struggle which they are carrying on in order to crush German militarism.

"The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill in the excellent speech which he delivered this morning expressed a doubt whether we in India were fully conscious of the significance of an Allied victory in so far as India herself is concerned. I can assure him that not only are we conscious, but we fully realise that significance. Towards the conclusion of my speech I pointed out that we in India have special cause to offer our best thanks and congratulations to the Allied Armies, and I gave in brief words two reasons for that position. One was that our brave Indian soldiers were playing a prominent part in the triumphant struggle which is now going on in three of the six battle-fronts. The second was this very appreciation of the gravity of the situation, so far as we Indians are concerned, to which the Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill has referred. I pointed out that it was the brave Allied Armies that had kept the war away from the Indian frontiers, and had thus saved India from the fate which Belgium, Serbia and the northern portion of France had received at the hands of German militarism. I can assure the Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill that we Indians fully realise the significance of an Allied victory, and it is because of that full realisation that we whole-heartedly pray for the ultimate triumph of the Allied arms "

The Hon'ble the Vice-President :—"To mark such a unique occasion as this, I venture to suggest that Hon'ble Members may like to rise in their places to acclaim the Resolution which I am about to read to them."

The Resolution was put and unanimously adopted, the Council standing.

RESOLUTION re DEPUTATION OF INDIAN NATION-AL CONGRESS AND ALL-INDIA MOSLEM LEAGUE TO ENGLAND.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—"Sir, I beg to move the following Resolution :

'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that immediate steps be taken to submit a representation to His Majesty's Government urging that the Indian National Congress and the All-India Muslim League Deputations be permitted to proceed to England without delay'

"Sir, the question of sending deputations to England has been under the consideration of the Indian National Congress and the All-India Muslim League for some time past. No doubt there were differences of opinion among the Congressmen, not on the question of the desirability of sending a deputation, but as to the appropriate time for doing so. In the meantime, in last February, His Excellency the Viceroy as President of this Council in his opening speech expressed his sympathy with the desire of the Congress to send a deputation, but suggested that that was not the right time. In order to avoid any misunderstanding, I will read the very words of His Excellency. He said :—

'Let me remind you of the words of the announcement that ample opportunity will be afforded for public discussion of the proposals which would be submitted in due course to Parliament. I notice that it has been suggested that a deputation should go home and lay the case of the Congress-League scheme before His Majesty's Government. The same intention may exist in other quarters. I think that at the right moment that course is worthy of consideration, and I would not have it thought that there is any desire on the part of Government to hamper any such representations. On the contrary, I will gladly give all the advice and all the help which it lies in my power to give.'

A few days after these words were uttered, the All-India Congress Committee met at Delhi and considered once again the question of sending a deputation in the light of this pronouncement, and the Committee came to the conclusion that it would not be wise to send a deputation to England before, at any rate, the proposals for Reforms were presented to Parliament and published for criticism. They therefore decided that no deputation should then proceed. This view, however, did not find favour with the two Home Rule Leagues in India, and they therefore decided to send their own deputations to England. We know that the two deputations of the two Home Rule Leagues started for England in April last. One deputation went as far as Gibraltar, and the other as far as Ceylon. The second deputation, which went as far as Ceylon, included my Hon'ble friend Mr. Khaparde. Of course they were armed with the necessary passports from the Government of India, but, unfortunately, the Home Government decided, at a very late stage indeed, to cancel the said passports. I have with me a letter addressed by the Colonial Secretary's Office in Ceylon to the members of the second deputation asking them to hand over their passports. The letter read thus :—

RESOLUTION re DEPUTATION OF INDIAN NATIONAL CONGRESS AND ALL-INDIA MOSLEM LEAGUE TO ENGLAND

[Mr. V. J. Patel; Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

‘I am directed to state that a telegram has been received from the Indian Government requesting that you may be informed that under instructions from His Majesty’s Government the passports issued to you and the members of your party in order to proceed to England have been cancelled. It will not, therefore, be possible for you or your friends to continue your journey to Europe. Will you kindly return your passports which were endorsed at this office on the 3rd of April 1918 for the endorsements to be cancelled.’

As a result of the said letter, I believe the members of the deputation had to return their passports which were in due course cancelled, and my Hon’ble friend Mr. Khaparde and his colleagues had to return to India. After that— I should say, a few days after that, —Dr. Nair was granted a passport to go to England to recoup his health. The members of the Home Rule League deputation who were obliged to return thereupon urged both on the platform and in the press that it was not fair that Dr. Nair should be allowed to proceed when they had been stopped. It was then explained by the Government of India that Dr. Nair was allowed to go for purposes of his health, and that he would not be allowed to speak on politics whilst in England. The members of the Home Rule deputations were naturally satisfied with this assurance at the time; but it was found subsequently that Dr. Nair had been ‘unmuzzled,’ as they put it, and was allowed to go on with his campaign in England with the help of his friends without any hitch or hindrance. However, so far as this Resolution goes, I am not concerned with the fate that overtook the Home Rule deputations. The fact is only relevant in so far as it shows that the Congress and the Moslem League, who have expressed a desire and passed resolutions to send deputations are afraid that, even if passports are granted by the Government of India to their members to proceed to England, there is no knowing that at a subsequent stage, whilst on their way, their passports might not be cancelled by the Home Government and they might not have to return to India. What I really want to bring to the notice of this Council therefore is, that after the Reforms were published, the Indian National Congress and the Moslem League met in Bombay and passed Resolutions to the effect that deputations consisting of members of those bodies should proceed to England; but in view of what happened to the Home Rule League deputations, the Congressmen and the Moslem Leaguers are afraid to take the risk. It is with a view to eliciting information from the Government, as to what their attitude and the attitude of the Home Government in this matter is, that I have ventured to bring forward this Resolution before this Council. I trust, therefore, the Government will see their way to move His Majesty’s Government to consider this question favourably, and assure the Congress and the Moslem League that their deputations can safely proceed to England.”

The Hon’ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde :—“Sir, I have been mentioned by name by my Hon’ble friend Mr. Patel, so I rise to say that the facts detailed by him are entirely correct. When we were going a large number of people gathered on the platform at all the stations through which we passed; they cheered tremendously and brought fruits and flowers and other articles which they thought would be useful to us on the voyage out. It was a triumphal procession. We met with this good fortune all the way up to Madras and even up to the point of sailing from Cape Comorin, or whatever the name of the station is—I forget now. When we got further, the people of Colombo were very good to us. They also assembled and received us; but gradually we found that it was difficult to make a start. Some communications passed between our party and the officers of Colombo, and our stay got prolonged to the extent of nearly 13 days, so that we began to fear that we were overstaying our welcome, and it did look like that ; ultimately, came that letter which my Hon'ble friend has read out, and then we had to return. The persons concerned of course had various feelings about the matter. Some were amused. Some were very angry. I know I felt acutely the humour of the situation. There were those people coming with their good things to see us off ; and here was I returning like a bad penny. The whole thing looked very funny. Then I came back and since then I have applied for the renewal of my passport. I believe the matter is under consideration. It is not exactly that I am not concerned in this matter or that I speak entirely in a public-spirited way. There is some private feeling too in my case, and I hope that this Council will make the recommendation that is asked for in the Resolution. After all, the Reforms and the proposals made therein and the amendments we have suggested, and all those things, will have to depend upon the vote of Parliament, and it is desirable that those of us who can should be able to go and represent their countrymen there ; and in the fulness of knowledge, I suppose, the democracy of England will pronounce on the matter finally. But that it may do so and be enabled to do so, it is necessary that all shades of opinion should be represented, as far as possible, even pressed on the attention of the democracy of England, and also through the press and from the platform on such Members of Parliament as are willing to hear us. I believe, from what I have heard and what has been told me, the Government of India hold a very impartial opinion on this matter. They do not wish to favour one party and hamper another party. They are willing that the representatives of all schools of thought should be able to lay their case before the democracy of England and before Parliament ; and in those circumstances, so far as I can see, there appears to be no objection to the recommendation being made to the Government of India, as is suggested by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Patel. I therefore support the Resolution very whole-heartedly indeed."

RESOLUTION OF THE DEPUTATION OF INDIAN NATIONAL CONGRESS AND ALL-INDIA MOSLEM LEAGUE TO ENGLAND.

[Mr. G. S. Khaparde ; Sir William Vincent.]

12-50 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"Sir, I quite understand, if I may say so, the apprehensions of the Hon'ble mover in this matter, and I realize in view of what occurred in the spring of this year, that his desire for information on the subject is very reasonable. So far as I can, I will explain the facts to this Council, and I hope that when I have done so, the Hon'ble Member may either withdraw his Resolution, or that he will not secure any substantial support for it. If his real desire is mainly for information, I am sure that he will accept the explanation. The position is as follows. In March last, we issued a certain number of passports to delegates of the Home Rule League, and the members of the deputations started on their journey. We subsequently received instructions from His Majesty's Government to cancel those passports and did so. The delegates returned to India, and the reasons for which His Majesty's Government thought it necessary to issue their orders were explained in a Communiqué which was issued at the time. From that time onwards we have been in frequent communication with the Secretary of State on the question of these passports, and certain general principles have been laid down. The desire of His Majesty's Government is to reduce the number as much as possible, and it was therefore decided that there should be two tests for the issue of passports, one, whether the object of the journey was a matter of national importance (by which, I think, they meant Imperial importance), or secondly, whether it was a matter of cogent private necessity. Having decided those general principles, we have acted on them ever since. It is quite true that individual passports were issued to Mr. Tilak and to Dr. Nair, and I have no doubt in some other cases but these issues do not indicate any violation of the general rule. In Dr. Nair's case when we ascertained that a passport had been issued, an undertaking was taken from him that he would abstain from political agitation. This is the wording. "The Government of India are authorised to announce that Dr. Nair on arrival in England has given a written undertaking to abstain from every form of political activity." In the case of Mr. Tilak, we took a similar assurance. When, however, Dr. Nair arrived in the United Kingdom,

RESOLUTION re DEPUTATION OF INDIAN NATIONAL CONGRESS AND ALL-INDIA MOSLEM LEAGUE TO ENGLAND.

[Sir William Vincent ; Mr. V. J. Patel.]

it was thought unfair not to allow him, as he was already in England on private grounds, reasonable liberty in opposing certain of the Reform proposals to which he objected, and I understand also that His Majesty's Government which decided the point in the case of Dr Nair will consider, when Mr. Tilak arrives home, whether he should or should not be allowed similar liberty. But these individual cases are no violation of the general principle. They were issued only on genuine grounds of urgent private necessity. I would not however have any one in this Council think for one moment that we do not recognise that free criticism of the Reform proposals is a matter of national interest. That, I think, will be freely admitted, both here and elsewhere. The question, as was said by Mr. Patel, is really one of time and the Government is entitled to decide whether at this particular moment it can be said that a discussion of these Reform proposals is a matter of national interest. In our opinion and in the opinion of His Majesty's Government the first duty of Indians at present lies in India where the Committees on Reforms will shortly start work, and His Majesty's Government entertain the view, in which the Government of India concur, that no purpose of national importance would be served by deputations in the United Kingdom at present. It is not proposed to take any action in England on the Reform Scheme until the Reports of the Committees appointed in this country are received, and, until those Reports come before Parliament, no question of national interest really arises. At the same time, I am authorised to say that in the coming year all possible facilities will be given to properly accredited representatives of all shades of opinion in limited numbers to visit the United Kingdom to place their views on the subject of Reforms before the public in that country. This is of course, provided, that the war situation does not develop in some unexpected manner. In the opinion of the Secretary of State and of the Government of India, it will then be a matter of real national importance that such deputations should visit the United Kingdom. I hope, in these circumstances, that this Council will not ask the Government of India to press a hopeless request time after time on his Majesty's Government. The promise given by His Excellency in his speech of February 6th, 1917, has already been cited to this Council. He then said that he would not only give passports but all advice and assistance in his power to deputations at the proper time, and it is in fulfilment of that promise that I now state the intentions of Government. I hope that this undertaking will meet the Hon'ble Member. I think perhaps he does not realize sufficiently that at the present moment as in the spring in the United Kingdom the war overshadows everything, and that these Reform proposals, important as they are and more important as they will be, are really only an item, a matter of comparatively small interest to the British public. I have only to add before I sit down that the undertaking which the Government of India now give is given with the sanction of the Secretary of State."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—" Sir, my Hon'ble friend, Sir William Meyer.... 12-33 a.m.

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" I rise to a point of order Sir ; I am not Sir William Meyer, I am Sir William Vincent."

The Hon'ble Mr. V. J. Patel :—" I beg your pardon. My Hon'ble friend, the Home Member, Sir William Vincent, said in reply to my Resolution that the war was overshadowing every other thing at home and even in India. I quite agree, and I realise it. But, at the same time, you have got to take this fact into consideration, namely, that it is during the war, in the midst of the war that the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, Mr. Montagu, came over to India to make an inquiry into the question of Reforms. It is in the midst of the war that the Report has been made; and it is in the midst of the war that the said Report has been submitted to Parliament, and Members of the RESOLUTION re DEPUTATION OF INDIAN NATIONAL CONGRESS AND ALL-INDIA MOSLEM LEAGUE TO ENGLAND.

[Mr. V. J. Patel; Sir William Vincent.]

[25TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

Committees are appointed and coming out to India. It is in the midst of the terrible war that the fate of three hundred millions of people is proposed to be decided by Parliament. It is a question of life and death with us, Indians, and at such a juncture we cannot allow the judgment to go ex parte. I cannot agree with my friend, the Hon'ble the Home Member, that it is for the Government of India to say what is the appropriate moment for the deputation to go to England. The Congress and the Moslem League maintain, and maintain very rightly, that it is for them to decide what the proper time, what the right time, for the deputations is, when they should go and press India's claims before the British public and the British Parliament. It is no use disguising the fact that the people of India are not in agreement with the authors of the Report in material particulars. To quote only two of many matters of differences, one, regarding the reforms in the Government of India and, two, regarding fiscal autonomy. We heard His Excellency to say on the opening day of this Session that nothing more than what was proposed in the Report was likely to be granted, and it was no use pressing for more. The Congress and the Moslem League, on the other hand, maintain that they are entitled to much more, and the reforms as they stand are not at all satisfactory. In view of these circumstances and these differences, it is the British Parliament, and it is the British public, who are the ultimate judges of our cause, and unless we go in time and represent our case fully to them, the judgment will, in all probability, go against us. Under these circumstances, I strongly hold that we should be allowed to go in deputation, particularly when we like to press our claims as against the views of the Government of India and the authors of the Reforms Report. I trust therefore the Council will accept the Resolution."

12-41 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"Sir, I only wish to explain one or two points. The Government entirely realise the right of all shades of opinion to be adequately represented in the matter of these Reforms before the subject is discussed in Parliament; and to that extent we are in agreement with the Hon'ble Member. But when he says that the Congress party, and they alone, are to decide whether passports should be issued now to their delegates and whether the grounds on which they seek these passports are sufficient or not, then I join issue with him. No person can judge in his own case. The delegates seek the passports for themselves. Are they to say that the object of their visit is a matter of national importance? Sir, could you apply this rule to other cases in which passports are issued? Is every private individual to judge for himself whether his is a case of cogent private necessity or not? Such a proposition is absurd. There is, and there can only be, one authority to decide such a point, and that is the authority by which the passports are issued. No man can be allowed to judge for himself in a matter of that kind."

The Resolution was put and the Council divided as follows :—

RESOLUTIONS re MILITARY COLLEGE AT QUETTA AND CADET BATTALIONS IN COLLEGES.

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"Sir, in the earlier part of 12.51 AM, this Session I asked permission to move my Resolutions Nos. 10 and 11 together. I was told that this would have to be brought in as a motion in open Council, and that it could not be done by seeing the Hon'ble Members concerned, so I ask your permission to move these two Resolutions together. They relate to one and the same subject and form part of a scheme which I conceived I was framing in the interests of recruitment."

The Hon'ble the Vice-President:—"I think it will be convenient for the Hon'ble Member to move the two Resolutions together."

The Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde:—"These Resolutions read as follows:—

10. 'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that, as a beginning towards establishing military colleges in all Provinces, the military college at Quetta be thrown open at once to Indian boys of such qualifications as the Government of India is pleased to prescribe, irrespective of all considerations of caste, creed or colour.'

11. 'This Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that Local Governments be directed to form cadet battalions on the lines of the territorial regiments in Great Britain in all colleges affiliated to Indian Universities, and also to constitute officers' training corps at all Indian University Headquarters to provide for the higher training of duly selected cadets.'

RESOLUTIONS re MILITARY COLLEGE AT QUETTA AND CADET BATTALIONS IN COLLEGES.[Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

[25TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

“As I said, these Resolutions were sent in with the idea of stimulating recruiting. It was believed during the Delhi Conference that recruiting was not so satisfactory as we would wish it to be. Now I am very glad to learn that it is proceeding very satisfactorily—in fact if my information is correct, more recruits are coming in than we can adequately or easily train. So that what I intended to be a help in recruiting is going to be, not exactly an embarrassment, but an inconvenience. If I am given to understand that these matters will be taken into consideration after the close of the war, I am willing to ask your permission to withdraw the Resolutions.

— “At present I do not think it is necessary to make any speech in support of them.”

The Resolutions were by leave of the Council, withdrawn.

The Council then adjourned to Thursday, the 26th September 1918.

THE Council met at the Council Chamber, Viceregal Lodge, Simla, on Thursday, the 26th September, 1918.

PRESENT :

His Excellency BARON CHELMSFORD, P.C., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., G.C.M.G., G.C.B.E., Viceroy and Governor General, presiding, and 52 Members, of whom 48
were Additional Members.

STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE.

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent: "My Lord, I lay on the table a statement† showing the districts of the several Provinces where the system of trial by jury obtains, which was promised in reply to a question‡ asked by the Hon'ble Mr. Patel on the 5th September, 1918." 11 A M

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent: "My Lord, I lay on the table a statement‡ showing the newspapers and magazines whose entry into different Provinces has been prohibited, which was promised in reply to a question§ asked by the Hon'ble Mr. Patel on the 9th September, 1918."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked : --

11-2 A M

1. "Will Government be pleased to state how much public money is locked up in commodities which are under control for—
- (1) Purchases on account of the United Kingdom.
- (2) Purchases with a view to re-sell in this country in order to eliminate profiteers.
- (3) Purchases essential for munitions work?"

Public money locked up in commodities under control for purchases.

§ Vide page 153 of Council Proceedings of 9th September 1918.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir William Meyer; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Sir William Vincent.] [26TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

“(1) The more important among the purchases of controlled commodities on behalf of the United Kingdom are financed through the ordinary trade channels, for example, rice, tea, hides, wheat and other foodgrains, sandbags, beans, oil-seeds, etc. No Government money is therefore locked up in connection with these purchases. Advances made to firms, pending recovery from the Home Government on delivery of the output, are limited to one or two special cases, for example, mica, and the payments on this account awaiting recovery at any time are inconsiderable.

(2) Purchases with a view to resale in India in order to eliminate profiteers are under the control of Local Governments and no information is available as to the amounts, if any, locked up in this way, but it can be safely said that the amounts in question are not large.

(3) This part of the question presumably refers to direct purchases by Government for military and like purposes. I may explain that the purchases falling under this class are not made entirely, or even of necessity mainly, for the Home Government. It has been necessary to build up reserves of military stores, foodstuffs, clothing, etc., to meet demands that may arise for the various Indian Expeditionary Forces as well as for our own requirements. The cost of such reserve stores is charged to a suspense account which is cleared when the stores are actually issued to His Majesty's Government or for Indian requirements. The amount outstanding under the suspense head on the 31st March 1918 is not yet definitely known, as the accounts for 1917-18 will not be finally closed till January 1919. Rough calculations show, however, that the approximate figure was £11·5 million, distributed as follows :—

Supply and Transport	1,800,000
Clothing	1,000,000
Remounts	1,400,000
Medical Stores	400,000
Ordnance	700,000
Other articles under the control of the Munitions Board ...	200,000
Total ...	11,500,000

It is possible that when the accounts are closed, the actual figure will be found to be somewhat higher. It may be added that the whole of the expenditure referred to above was not incurred in India. A large portion of the outlay on clothing, medical stores and ordnance was incurred in England.”

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya asked :—

Reforms suggested by Lord Hardinge before laying down his office.

2. “ Is it a fact that, before laying down his office as Governor General of India, Lord Hardinge submitted a memorandum to the Secretary of State for India in which he suggested that certain reforms should be introduced in India after the war? If so, will Government be pleased to lay the memorandum on the table? ”

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

“ The Hon'ble Member is referred to the Communiqué issued on the 2nd November, 1916, a copy of which is laid on the table. The Government of India have no information whether Lord Hardinge sent privately to the Secretary of State a memorandum of the nature mentioned by the Hon'ble Member.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

Simla, the 2nd November 1916.

COMMUNIQUE.

In view of the erroneous impression likely to be created by the statements made in certain organs of the Press that the demands formulated in a Memorandum submitted to the Viceroy by a number of elected members of the Imperial Council follow the lines of a note or despatch on the same subject forwarded to the Secretary of State by Lord Hardinge, the Secretary of State authorises the Government of India to say that no despatch of this character was sent by Lord Hardinge's Government, and that these demands do not correspond with the views expressed by him privately by note or otherwise to the Secretary of State.

J. H. DE BOULAY,

*Secretary to the Government of India.The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

3. "Will Government be pleased to make a statement showing Province by Province

Licenses granted to limited companies under Act XII of 1918.

(a) the number of limited companies which have been granted licenses up-to-date for raising capital under the Indian Companies Restriction Act (XII of 1918);

(b) their respective lines of business;

(c) the aggregate amount of capital they sought permission to raise, and the amount in respect of which license has been granted;

(d) the number and names of all such companies as may have been refused such license up-to-date;

(e) their respective lines of business;

(f) the amount of capital each of them sought permission to raise, and the proportion such amount bears to the total authorised capital and to the amount of capital, if any, they had already raised; and

(g) the reasons for the refusal of a license in each case?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer replied :—

"(a) to (f). Two statements* giving the information for which the Hon'ble Member asks are laid on the table.

(g) In all the cases mentioned in the second statement, licenses were refused because it was considered that permission to raise capital would withdraw money from the market which might otherwise be invested in Government loans, while the objects of the companies concerned or their chances of carrying these into early effect, were not such as to warrant this objection being waived."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi ; [26TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]
Sir George Barnes.]

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

Indian and Cotton piece-goods

4. “(a) Will Government be pleased to state—

(i) the respective quantities and values of Indian cotton and cotton piece-goods and yarns manufactured in India and exported to foreign countries in 1912, 1913, 1916, 1917 and the first six months of 1918; and

(ii) the respective quantities and values of raw cotton and cotton piece-goods and yarns imported into India in the same years and for the first six months of this year?

(b) Is it a fact that speculation in cotton goods has increased in an extraordinary manner, and that these goods pass at the present moment through the hands of more middlemen and speculators than they used to do before the war?

(c) Has cornering taken place in Calcutta and other places in regard to imported cloths bearing particular trade-marks?

(d) Is distress of a very acute and widespread character prevalent in Bengal and some other Provinces owing to the high prices of cloth?

(e) Have the Government of India invited or received the opinions of any Local Governments on the subject of this distress? If so, will Government be pleased to lay these opinions on the table?

(f) Do Government propose to take any measures for the relief of distress amongst the people due to scarcity of cloths?”

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

“(a) With regard to the Hon'ble Member's question marked (a), all the information asked for is contained in the ordinary statistics issued by Government, and I should like to refer him to these publications. However, on this occasion, in order to save the Hon'ble Member trouble, I have had a typewritten copy made of the figures he wishes for, and this copy* I lay upon the table.

(b) Government understand that there has been lately in some centres much speculation in cotton piece-goods.

(c) Government have no information with regard to the cornering of imported cloths bearing particular trade-marks.

(d) There is, I regret to say, a considerable amount of suffering in Bengal and elsewhere owing to the high price of cloth.

(e) Since January last, the Government of India have been in consultation with Local Governments regarding the control of the supply of commodities of general use, including cotton cloth. Much of this correspondence relates to matters which are still under consideration, and cannot be laid on the table consistently with the public interest. The Hon'ble Member is doubtless aware that in a Press Communiqué of the 24th August last, the Government of India published the Report of the Committee which was convened in Bombay in March last to consider the question of the control of cotton cloth. They simultaneously addressed a circular letter, of which a copy* is laid on the table, to Local Governments, explaining the intentions of the Government of India and asking them to send a representative to confer with the officer who is to be placed in charge of the scheme.

(f) I would refer the Hon'ble Member to my reply to a question asked by the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul in this Council on September 19th.”

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[26TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.] [Mr. Malcolm Hogg ; Sir George Barnes ; Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur ; Sir William Vincent ; Sir Robert Gillan.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Malcolm Hogg asked :—

5. “(a) Since the prohibition of the export of pearls from India, have any special permissions to export pearls been granted to any firms or persons? Prohibition of export of pearls from India.

(b) If the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a list of such permissions, with the quantity for which each permission was granted and the special grounds on which it was granted?”

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

“I lay on the table a statement*, showing particulars of the only cases—four in number, in which permission has been given to export pearls, since the prohibition was imposed.”

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur, asked :—

6. “(a) With reference to the reply given on the 27th February last to my question on the subject, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement of the views of Local Governments re the investigation of the indigenous system of medicine? Investigation of the indigenous system of medicine.

(b) What further action do the Government of India propose to take in the matter?”

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

“(a) The views of the Local Governments and Administrations are summed up in a statement† which I lay on the table.

(b) The matter is under consideration. In reply to his question on the subject in February last, the Hon'ble Member was informed that the Government of India were awaiting the opinion of the Committee of the All-India Ayurvedic and Unani Tibbi Conference. That opinion is still awaited.”

The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur, asked :—

7. “(a) Is it a fact that third class passengers at important junction stations particularly at the terminal stations such as Egmore and the central station in Madras suffer great hardship because the ticket window is not kept open sufficiently early so as to expedite the sale of tickets to the large number of passengers, that some passengers have to pay heavy bakshis to obtain tickets, and that tickets are refused at the last moment? Hardship of third class passengers in obtaining tickets.

(b) Do Government propose to suggest to all Railway Administrations measures to remedy these evils?”

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Gillan replied :—

“A reference to the Time Tables and Coaching Tariffs of Railways shows that Railway Administrations arrange to keep booking offices open sufficiently long before the departure of trains to obviate inconvenience to intending passengers. No specific complaint has been received regarding the Central Station, Madras. A complaint received from the Railway Passengers' Association, Saidapet, regarding Egmore was referred to the Railway Administration, when it appeared that most of the points brought to notice had already been attended to, and a satisfactory settlement effected at a meeting between the General Traffic Manager of the Railway and representatives of the Association. Railway servants are forbidden to accept illegal gratifications, and if they demand and accept wrongful payments before issue of tickets to passengers, they lay themselves open to criminal prosecution. The remedy for the evil where it exists lies, so far as the travelling public are concerned, in a prompt and definite complaint to the Agent of the Railway concerned.

(b) The question of ameliorating the conditions of 3rd class travel has been receiving the careful attention of railways and of the Railway Board. In this connection I lay on the table* for the information of the Hon'ble Member; copies of three letters recently issued by the Board to Railway Administrations and Senior Government Inspectors."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma asked :—

Looting of grain and cloth shops
in the Madras
Presidency.

8. "Is it a fact that riots accompanied by looting of grain and cloth shops occurred in the city of Madras and several mofussil towns, including district headquarters such as Vizagapatam, Anakapally, Ellore, Madura, Salem, Sathanur near Paramakudi, etc., in the Madras Presidency?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"It is a fact that riots accompanied by looting of grain and cloth have occurred in the areas mentioned by the Hon'ble Member."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma asked :—

Incidents in connection with recruitment in the Punjab.

9. "(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the following incidents occurred in the Punjab in connection with recruitment in the said Province—

- (i) a Tahsildar was murdered in the district of Shahpur ;
- (ii) armed police fired on a large body of landholders at Leiah under the orders of a Magistrate accompanying them ;
- (iii) a similar incident occurred in the Shahpur district ;
- (iv) the Deputy Commissioners of Multan and Sialkot were roughly handled by certain villagers ?

(b) Have any inquiries been made and with what result ?

(c) What steps have been taken to prevent collision between the people and the officers ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"(a) A Tahsildar engaged in recruiting work was murdered in the Shahpur district. At Leiah and also in the Shahpur district, the police were forced in self-defence to fire on large mobs which attacked them. The Deputy Commissioner of Multan was assaulted when recruiting, but no report has been received of any assault on the Deputy Commissioner of Sialkot.

(b) Certain arrests have been made in connection with the murder of the Tahsildar, and proceedings are being taken against the property of those accused who are still absconding. The case of the rioters at Leiah is at present under trial, while the appeals of all those persons convicted for their part in the riot in the Shahpur district have been dismissed by the Chief Court.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[20th SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

[Sir William Vincent ; Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma ; Sir Claude Hill ; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjee.]

(c) The Local Government has impressed on all its officers the necessity for discretion and tact in the matter of recruitment and the inexpediency of using the police for this work."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma asked :—

10. "(a) Is it a fact that the south-west monsoon has failed in several parts of India, including the greater portion of the Madras Presidency ?

Railway facilities afforded for the carriage of food stuffs and cloths in the Madras Presidency.

(b) Is it a fact that foodstuffs are being exported from this country in large quantities, and that from April to July 1918, the value thereof exceeded that of the corresponding four months during 1917-18 ?

(c) What steps do Government propose to take to enable the poor to buy foodstuffs at reasonable prices ?

(d) Do Government intend to direct that Railway facilities should be immediately afforded for the supply of food stuffs and cloths in the Madras Presidency ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

"(a) There has been a partial failure of the monsoon in several parts of India, including a portion of the Madras Presidency, but the position was much improved by the rain which fell about a month ago and again last week in Madras, and if more rain comes within a month, the prospects of the spring crops will be generally good.

(b) The value of the exports of grain, pulse and flour during the four months April to July 1918 exceeded the value exported in the corresponding period of 1917 by less than 5 per cent. This increase was entirely due to exports of rice, mainly from Burma, which had large surplus stocks wanting a market. In the periods referred to the value of rice exports rose from 5½ crores to 9 crores, while wheat exports fell from about 8 crores to a little over 4 crores.

(c) The Hon'ble Member's attention is invited to paragraph 4 of the statement laid on the table in reply to a similar question asked by the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur B. D. Shukul on the 11th September 1918.* This statement shows the action already taken or under contemplation in the different provinces to prevent speculation and regulate prices of various articles (including food grains). I may add that the problem of securing adequate food supplies, which is largely one of distribution, is receiving the continual and anxious attention of the Central Transport and Foodstuffs and Communications Boards.

(d) The whole situation was reviewed and considered at the Conference of Directors of Civil Supplies convened at Nagpur in August, and it will be reviewed again at a further Conference to be held next month, and as a result of the deliberations of the former meeting, Government have already taken steps materially to increase the space allotted for the transport of necessary supplies to the Madras Presidency both by rail and sea."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjee asked :—

11. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the serious riots which recently took place in Calcutta and in Madras ?

Calcutta and Madras riots.

(b) Will Government be pleased to state—

(i) whether the authorities concerned had received any information beforehand of the likelihood of these disturbances ;

(ii) whether precautionary measures, if any, had been taken to prevent them ;

(iii) why such measures did not produce the desired results ; and

(iv) what were the causes of these disturbances ?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS; THE INDIAN COMPANIES
(FOREIGN INTERESTS) BILL; THE INDIAN DEFENCE FORCE (FOREIGN SERVICE) BILL; THE BRONZE COIN (LEGAL TENDER) BILL.

[*Sir William Vincent; Sir George Barnes;
His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India; Sir William Meyer.*]

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

“The Government of India have been in communication with the Governments of Bengal and Madras on the subject of these disturbances. They have been informed that the situation in Calcutta is now quite satisfactory, and the Government of Bengal are issuing a Resolution dealing with the matter.”

THE INDIAN COMPANIES (FOREIGN INTERESTS) BILL.

11-14 A.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—“My Lord, I beg to move that the Bill to take power to prohibit the alteration, except with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, of articles of association which restrict foreign interests in certain Companies, and to provide for other purposes connected therewith, be taken into consideration. I explained, my Lord, the object of this Bill when it was introduced. Its intention is to prevent companies which have adopted articles of association with the approval of Government, in order to sever themselves from enemy control, from altering those articles of association without the consent of the Governor General in Council.”

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—“I beg to move, my Lord, that the Bill be now passed. I should inform your Lordship that no criticisms have been received.”

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE INDIAN DEFENCE FORCE (FOREIGN SERVICE) AMENDMENT BILL.

11-16 A.M.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India :—“My Lord, I beg to move that the Bill to provide that certain persons deemed to be enrolled under the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917, shall be liable to serve as well without the limits of India as within those limits, and that when so serving, they shall be subject to the said Act, be taken into consideration.”

The motion was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India :—“My Lord, I beg to move that the Bill be now passed.”

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE BRONZE COIN (LEGAL TENDER) BILL.

11-17 A.M.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—“My Lord, I beg to move that the Bill to provide that certain bronze coins coined outside British India shall be legal tender in British India be taken into consideration. As I said when introducing the Bill the other day, the objects of it are fully explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, and we have had no criticism on it at all.”

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir William Meyer :—“My Lord, I beg to move that the Bill be now passed.”

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE INDUSTRIAL COMPULSION BILL.

[26TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

[His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India.]

THE INDUSTRIAL COMPULSION BILL.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India :—“ My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide that certain persons liable to military service under the Indian Defence Force Act, 1917, should be liable to perform war work. The object of this Bill is explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons accompanying the Bill. Certain industries are at present of national importance owing to the outturn of the factories and workshops engaged in them being essential to the maintenance of the troops in the field. The working of these industries, which have expanded considerably since the commencement of the war and are still continuing to expand, involves the employment of men with special technical training and knowledge. In pre-war days these specialists were largely recruited from England, but owing to the operation of the Military Service Acts and the demands of Munitions factories at Home, such recruitment has now become very difficult, and in fact practically impossible. It is accordingly necessary to utilise, to the fullest extent, the services of persons available in India who possess the necessary technical qualifications and training. 11-18 A.M.

“ Experience has shown that Government employés whose services are essential to the working of Munitions factories and workshops have been induced from time to time to relinquish such employment in order temporarily to take up more remunerative work under private firms who are not always engaged solely on war work. It is imperative that this tendency should be stopped, so that all factories engaged fully and only in war work may be kept up to the highest pitch of efficiency. Work in such factories is as essential as active service in the field, and its dislocation may easily result in serious depreciation of our fighting capacity, as the loss of a single foreman may throw out of action a large body of artisans. We have, in fact, on various occasions released technical specialists from the Army, not only for Government factories, but for employment by firms engaged on war work.

“ In order that the services of those who have technical knowledge may be utilised to the best advantage of the State, it is essential that Government should have power to control their employment. The simplest way of securing this is, to treat such employment as military service. The present Bill is designed to give effect to this idea.

“ The Bill, as explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, provides for taking power by an Order in writing to require any member of the European portion of the Indian Defence Force, whether in possession of an exemption certificate or not, to take up or continue any employment in any industry declared to be of national importance by the Governor General in Council. Persons in respect of whom such an order has been made will be deemed to have been called upon to perform actual military duty, as the case may be, according as they belong to the general military service or the local military service class.

“ It is intended to pay reasonable salaries to men employed on technical work, and the provision made for this in the Bill will be worked to the satisfaction of all reasonable men. The services of the Selection Committees formed under the Indian Defence Force Act will be utilised in choosing the persons required for particular forms of war work. It is not proposed to employ these men in private businesses, whether engaged on Government work or not. The power which we propose to take will not be exercised, except for the purposes of Government service and industrial concerns under Government in which Government may control the profits as well as the output. This should ensure that no undue demand will be made either on the employers of labour or on the men themselves, and every reasonable endeavour, consistent with obtaining our object, will be made to avoid interference with private employment. It is fully realised, however, that the measure closely affects private firms and the skilled hands whom they employ, and it is for this reason that we are doing no more than introduce the Bill this Session. In the interval between now and the February Session, private firms and Chambers of Commerce will have ample opportunity of discussing its provisions, and any opinions or suggestions which they may wish to put forward will be fully considered when the discussion on the Bill takes place next Session.

“ With these remarks, I beg to move for leave to introduce the Bill.”

11-24 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Malcolm Hogg:—“ My Lord, I do not think it will be denied that this Bill raises wide issues of very considerable importance. In support of this statement I need only point out that the Bill proposes to introduce the principle of industrial conscription, of compulsory industrial service, a principle which, as far as I know, has not been accepted in any portion of the British Empire, and which has certainly been vigorously and successfully resisted in England. Further, the Bill proposes to utilise the Indian Defence Force Act for a purpose for which that Act was not intended when it was passed in this Council. Now, a Bill which raises issues of this importance must, I think, naturally meet with a certain amount of prima facie opposition from those concerned. If that opposition is to be overcome, and if the consent of those concerned is to be obtained, it is essential that Government should make out a very strong case for the passing of the Bill. It is not, I think, enough to show that the objects aimed at are necessary objects, objects of national importance, but it is also essential to show that those objects cannot be attained by simpler and less drastic methods. Now, I understand, that the objects of this Bill are really two. The first is, to prevent men who are already employed in Government factories on essential war work from leaving that work for more remunerative employment elsewhere. The second is, to enable Government to secure the services of a limited number of additional men of similar qualifications for similar work in Government factories. Now, no one will dispute the proposition that Government factories engaged on war work must be kept adequately staffed, nor will it be disputed that for that purpose Government must have a reasonable measure of control over their existing employees, and every assistance from the industrial community in obtaining such further employees as are required, if available. But, I think, it will strike every one that the objects of this Bill, important as they are, are of comparatively restricted scope, while the provisions of it raise issues of far-reaching importance, and at first sight certainly appear to be somewhat out of proportion to the requirements. I think that Hon'ble Members of this Council will ask themselves whether it is not possible to attain these objects by some simpler and less drastic methods. This Bill has only been before Hon'ble Members of this Council for some 36 hours, and I do not think, therefore, that the Council will expect me to attempt to answer that question to-day, but on the answer to that question my own ultimate attitude to this Bill must depend. If, therefore, I do not oppose the introduction of this Bill to-day, I do not wish to be understood as necessarily assenting either to its principles or to its detailed provisions. I must reserve to myself full liberty to oppose the Bill, either in part or in whole, at a later stage if, after due consideration by my community, such opposition appears to be necessary. My reason for not opposing the Bill to-day is, that I fully recognise Government's difficulties in the matter, and I also fully recognise that a way out of those difficulties must be found. But, in this connection, I feel bound to say that, in seeking a solution of these difficulties, I do not think that Government have followed the best possible method. In a matter of this sort when Government require a limited number of men with special qualifications, I should have thought that the first thing to do would have been to have stated their difficulties fully and frankly to the European industrial community, from whose ranks these men are required, to have asked that community if the men were available, and to have invited their co-operation in securing them. I feel perfectly certain that, if that course had been pursued, the co-operation asked for would have been most willingly given. I do wish to impress most earnestly upon Government that the European community are only too anxious to co-operate with Government, and more particularly to co-operate in war work, and that we very much prefer to give co-operation rather than criticism. But by the course which has been pursued in this matter, we are put in the position that in order to co-operate we must criticise first. Now, I may be told that I am splitting hairs and drawing a distinction without a difference. But I do assure your Lordship that there is a very real difference in this matter. It is one thing to say to the industrial community 'we want such and such men with such and such qualifications, can you help us to get them?' If that course is pursued, not only would the co-operation of the industrial community be assured, but if that method of getting the men should fail, and if you should subsequently have to adopt more drastic measures, you would, to a great extent, disarm criticism. It is, I submit, quite a different thing to say to the industrial community, without having previously consulted them or invited their assistance, 'we make certain drastic legislative proposals; our object in making those legislative proposals is only to get a limited number of men, and you need not therefore fear that these drastic measures will be generally or to any great extent applied.' That course inevitably irritates public opinion. It creates a certain feeling of distrust, a feeling that Government have shown some lack of frankness in dealing with these particular needs, and in inviting the co-operation of the community in meeting those needs. When once those feelings of public irritation are aroused, they are not easily allayed, and they do not tend to create an atmosphere favourable to that whole-hearted co-operation which the European community is genuinely desirous of giving to Government in these matters.

"I have dwelt on this matter perhaps at some length, but it is because I feel most earnestly and most sincerely that it would be as much in the interests of Government as in the interests of my own community, and that it would do much to facilitate co-operation in war work between my community and Government, if, in matters of this nature which particularly affect my community and which deal with Government's needs for war work, we were taken into Government's confidence fully and frankly at an earlier stage than has been done in this case."

The Hon'ble Mr. W. A. Ironside :—"My Lord, I hesitate to strike any jarring note of dissent to a Bill such as this to provide man-power for national service, particularly in case that any words of mine may be open to misconstruction. The circumstances, however, are, I think, peculiar and demand at this stage some criticism, particularly in view of recent happenings, and particularly perhaps because the community in Calcutta, which I have the honour to represent, is so largely bound up with the industrial life of this country. This is the third amendment of the Indian Defence Force Act during the present Session. Perhaps the Government believe in the precept of Dickens' Immortal character Mrs. Gummidge Little and often? With all respect, my Lord, I make bold to say that the Bill seems to point to a policy of unmerited mistrust, shall I say, of the British European community, particularly the large industrial community in Calcutta and elsewhere. When the Defence Force Act was first instituted and discussed with His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in Calcutta, certain definite assurances were given on both sides, and every one of those assurances have on both sides been loyally and honestly carried out in a mutual feeling of good-will and trust, one to the other. But I think that the Act never contemplated anything beyond military obligations, and those of a definite character. These naturally have been extended from time to time, and the extensions have been accepted cheerfully and loyally, on the full understanding that the original assurances had perforce to be tempered by necessities brought about by time and other changes. But, I think, I am correct in stating that my community in Calcutta will look on this proposal as rather hasty and ill-timed. In the original Act Government took the people of Bengal, and I think the whole of India, entirely into their confidence, and I cannot understand why they have not done so in the present case. You have laid yourself open to a charge which was actually included in a telegram which I received last night of breach of faith. I am aware that the powers that you seek may not amount to much, but the methods you have adopted appear so open to misconstruction, particularly to those uninitiated in the necessities and methods of Government. We feel you have laid our community open to the charge, shall we say, of disloyalty, and opposition to national service by this seeming necessity for compulsion and for reasons which, I believe, are quite inadequate and unreasonable. Had you been able to prove the necessity for this measure, I should not have thought of speaking at all. I attended one short Conference, my Lord, the other day when we discussed the question of the urgency of man-power for Government service. All we heard about was a few tailors, mechanical engineers and a number of supervisors for Stores on, I am rather afraid, inadequate salaries, and as a result of that meeting, I think my Hon'ble friend the Member for the Bombay Chamber, and myself were mutually of opinion that the whole of Government's requirements could be met in a very few days by personal application to the Chambers of Commerce and Trades Associations in both towns. But you are apparently insecure as to your premises, and if the objects and reasons for the measure are urgent, why not pass the Bill at once, why wait for six months for criticism? Would you like us to move that a committee of officials and non-officials be appointed to discuss the matter? If this measure is of national importance, why wait until next year?

" If it is not a necessity to-day, why waste time over it just now? My Lord, I hesitate to use the words, but we look on this measure as one of the pin-pricking order. My Lord, I shall doubtless be reminded again of what I said at Delhi, and, I would take this opportunity of explaining my action at Delhi. There we heard a great deal about the fullest possible use of the available man-power of the country. In order not to spoil the harmony of the proceedings, I withheld information which I had with me; I felt indeed that Government was out to cut away all top-hamper and get on with business. I could have given you then the names of scores of men who, in excess of zeal, had relinquished good posts to serve their country, and who were eating their hearts out acting in posts practically as junior clerks in various parts of the country on work which their Babus at home could have done equally efficiently; of men who, after throwing up lucrative and comfortable posts at home, waited for six and nine months for replies to their applications for Commissions of highly skilled technical men turned back, too old at 40. We had indeed come to the conclusion at that date that Government did not require any more men, and I know for a fact that young men in Calcutta were moving heaven and earth to get away from India and join the forces in Europe. And now in the light of my visit to Simla, I think I can go back to Calcutta with the firm conviction that the available man-power of military value exists in Simla in greater degree than it does in Calcutta. I expected a severe and salutary lesson in my duty to my country but I am going back to Calcutta, where the pressure of work is every bit as great, where the hours are every bit as long, and where the temperature and humidity is above the Simla average. My Lord, as a result of the Delhi Conference, the Military Department of the Government of India, forwarded us a letter dated

THE INDUSTRIAL COMPULSION BILL.

[Mr. W. A. Ironside; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

the 1st June 1918, through our Provincial Government. Let me read one or two extracts from it:—

'As a result of the recent Delhi Conference, the Government of India have under consideration measures for increasing the armed forces of India to the utmost possible extent; in order to enable this country to exert its whole strength in the cause of the Empire * * *

'The Government of India believe that, apart from the Imperial and Provincial Services which have already contributed so largely to the increase in the Indian Army Reserve of Officers, there are still many Europeans of military age in India employed in commercial firms, and other business concerns, or earning their living as journalists, brokers, lawyers, etc., occupations which cannot be classed as essential war industries: many gentlemen of these classes would be suitable for service as officers or subordinates in either the combatant or the non-combatant branches of the Indian Army. * * *

'I am accordingly to request that the whole question of European man-power may be examined and that the Government of India may be favoured with your views as soon as possible. In several provinces the Local Government will have the assistance of Chambers of Commerce, Trades Associations and the Provincial Controllers of Munitions, in framing proposals'

And further down it is said:—

'It is difficult to give a complete list of occupations, industries or trades which can be considered non-essential for the prosecution of the war, and the question must, in a large measure, be left to the decision of the local Committees. The Government of India are, however, of opinion that the number of Europeans of military age employed as actors, musicians, shop assistants, hair-dressers, etc, or engaged in trade as tailors, drapers, furniture makers, jewellers, photographers, booksellers, music sellers, art dealers, and many other occupations of the same nature, could be reduced without difficulty, and their places taken by women to a larger extent than is the case at present'

I submit, my Lord, that the gentleman who wrote that letter knew nothing whatever about Calcutta. Our proposals, however, to comply with this request were at once decided upon, conveyed and accepted, I think, within seven days by the Bengal Government, and the two large organisations in Calcutta, the Bengal Chamber of Commerce and the Calcutta Trades Association, got to work. Our members loyally supported us, and the Committees that were appointed, I assure you, worked hard and long. They are still finishing up. The budget of papers that I have here, my Lord, comprises the return of one firm, 250 men, and these are the epitomised figures for the whole of the men belonging to firms of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce. I will just give you a few figures. The total number of British firms in the Chamber is 185; the total number of European British-born subjects employed by these firms is roughly 3,399, say, 3,400 men. The present staff of those firms is 2,757. We have released for military service, not national service in Simla and other such places, but for national service in the field, 590 men out of the original number of 3,399. Out of that number 6 were Anglo-Indians, that is, roughly, 584 imported Europeans out of a total force of British-born subjects of 3,400. And we are prepared to release now, as a result of these papers, 98 more Europeans and 69 Anglo-Indians, a total of 167. The Committees who have examined these figures have gone into them thoroughly, man by man and firm by firm, and they have suggested to the firms 19 further Europeans and 21 Anglo-Indians, a total of 40 more men, altogether 200, these we are prepared to offer you. You have had already 600, it will now be 800. I think, my Lord, I have said enough. We have never failed you; we never will fail you, but you have gone to that same well often, and I do ask you earnestly in a matter of this sort to be careful not to risk that the pitcher may one day come away empty."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"My Lord, 11-49 A.M.
I strongly support the very well-reasoned and forceful appeal that has been made by the Hon'ble Mr. Ironside. There are only just a few remarks I will add to it. He rightly complained that the measure indicates a mistrust of the European community. I am sorry to add, my Lord, that it indicates a mistrust of the Indian community also. I thought, my Lord, that, in this matter at any rate, there might be an effort made to find out whether from the ranks of educated Indians men could not be found who could be trained for technical work during the time that lies between now and the time when these men will be required for service. I think that, having regard to what has been said by the Hon'ble Mr. Hogg and the Hon'ble Mr. Ironside, and also having regard to the period of time that is available to Government, an earnest, honest effort should be made to train as many Indians as it may be possible to, for the kind of work that is in contemplation. That is all I have to say."

THE INDUSTRIAL COMPULSION BILL.

11-50 A.M.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India:—"My Lord, I have listened with great sympathy to the speeches which have been delivered by my Hon'ble friends Mr. Hogg and Mr. Ironside. This Bill has undoubtedly been interpreted by them in a way which was never intended when it was prepared.

"The Hon'ble Members will agree with me that the present war is one of great magnitude, that it is increasing from month to month, and that demands to an increasing extent are made on the Government of India, and we are compelled to meet those demands with the very least delay that is possible. India is required to respond to these calls in an increasing degree, and we cannot afford to waste time or delay in responding to them. In fact, our duty is to respond with the very least delay that is possible, and that is really all that we have in mind. There is no reason whatever for imagining that we have any suspicion of our brother Englishmen out here. I do hope that my remarks will dispel any such idea.

"I am quite certain that both Mr. Hogg and Mr. Ironside know perfectly well that we are prepared to meet them on every occasion, and that we always tell them quite frankly what our needs are. They know perfectly well that, as far as the Indian Defence Force Act is concerned, we have tried to meet all their difficulties and adjusted our measures accordingly. We have nothing else in our minds but the prosecution of the war, and the demonstration of India's ability to respond to any demand that is made on her with the least possible delay. We are carrying out this policy with full sympathy for the work that our brethren are doing for us in Calcutta, Bombay, Madras and elsewhere, and with the full intention of doing nothing which will disturb the important work in which they are engaged. They cannot say that we have ever done anything to disturb them. Therefore, let them take that as our assurance. They seem to be hurt because this Bill has been brought in without their knowledge. We had no desire to hurt them. The only people we desire to hurt are our enemies; we have no desire to hurt our friends. Is not that obvious? Why then, I ask, should they take umbrage in this way. It is not reasonable for them to come here and make this laboured attack on us. I am not getting angry, but I do say that it is not reasonable as Englishmen for you to come here and make in these contemptuous tones this attack on us. We want to work with you, why not, therefore, ascribe to us the same good faith that we ascribe to you? At the same time, I do not want to have any recriminations over this. Our aims are the same as Mr. Hogg's aims and Mr. Ironside's aims and the aims of those whom they represent in Bombay and in Calcutta. This Bill is now merely being introduced, and, because we give them this notice, my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ironside gets up and gets very angry. What would he say if we gave him no notice? What does he want? And why the special pleading that, because the Bill is not wanted now, why should it be wanted six months hence? Our object is a perfectly honest one. We bring forward this Bill and we ask you, gentlemen, who know what the temper of the people is, and how they can be best employed in Calcutta, Bombay, Madras and elsewhere, to help us. There is nothing else we have got in mind, and I do hope that the Hon'ble gentlemen will now be satisfied that we have nothing else before us, but to get on with the war, to terminate it and to show that India can respond to all the calls that are made on her with the least possible delay. That is the only reason why we have brought this measure in. In the interval, we shall be prepared to receive these, our friends, into our confidence. We have got nothing to hide from them; we trust them, and I hope they will trust us.

"With these few words, my Lord, I will sit down, and I do hope that all this turmoil and excitement that has been got up about this very innocuous measure will now subside."

The motion was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief:—"My Lord, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India and in the local official Gazettes in English."

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill:—"My Lord, if I am in order, I should like to say a word with reference to one observation of the Hon'ble Mr. Ironside's, in which he took credit for the fact that his community in Calcutta had surrendered a proportion which, from his figures, I gather to be approximately 12 per cent of the people whom he represents. I may say that one department of the Government, for which I happen to have figures, namely, the Public Works Department, has, from its superior staff, surrendered 40 per cent." 11-57 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. W. A. Ironside:—"My Lord, I should like to correct that. Of the original staff of 3,400, we have surrendered 600, and we are offering 200 more. The original 3,400 comprised everybody who was a European British-born subject. Out of the 600 who have gone all but 6 are British subjects, mainly men from home, consequently, we are nearly 60 per cent short of our original senior staff." 11-58 A.M.

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"My Lord, I beg to move that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to take powers to provide for the cheap supply of cotton cloth to the poorer classes of the community be taken into consideration. This Bill, my Lord, was explained by me at some length when leave was asked to introduce it on the opening day of the present Session. Its object, my Lord, as I then told Council, is to alleviate in some measure the serious hardship which has been caused to the poorer classes by the great rise which has taken place in the price of cotton piece-goods." 11-59 A.M.

"Subsequently the Bill was referred to a Select Committee consisting of the following Hon'ble Members:—"

1. Sir George Lowndes.
2. Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy.
3. Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur.
4. Mr. Muddiman.
5. Sir Dinshaw Wacha.
6. Mr. Sarma.
7. Mr. Ironside.
8. Sir Verney Lovett.
9. Mr. C. B. Low, and
10. Myself.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Sir George Barnes.]

[26TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

The Select Committee met and unanimously agreed upon certain amendments which I will shortly mention.

"Sir Dinshaw Wacha and Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy had intended to move an amendment in Select Committee with regard to forward contracts, but unfortunately by inadvertence they omitted to do so. Consequently, though the Report of the Select Committee is absolutely unanimous with regard to its recommendations, Sir Dinshaw Wacha and Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy signed it reserving to themselves the right, if so advised, of moving an amendment at a later stage of the Bill dealing with the question of forward contracts.

"The first amendment made by the Select Committee is a special power inserted in sub-clause (2) of clause 4 giving the Controller power to prescribe the manner in which standard cloth shall be marked. This was the suggestion of Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy, and while at first he questioned whether it would be possible to mark standard cloth so that every yard of it should be recognisable, he subsequently agreed that efficient marking was quite feasible by running a coloured thread down the selvage of each piece of standard cloth.

"In sub-clause (2) (c) of clause 4 we inserted a few words to make it clear that a manufacturer might at his own risk pass on his obligation to manufacture standard cloth to another manufacturer by such private arrangement as he thought fit. Both Sir Dinshaw Wacha and Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy thought that this would be a great convenience to some mills which were adapted to weaving only the finer counts.

"In the last proviso to sub-clause (2) (d) a few words were inserted to make it clear that, while in normal circumstances the Controller should fix a flat rate governing mills in the same locality, he should have power to depart from this rule where special reasons existed.

"In the Bill as it originally stood, there was a power to inspect books. This Sir Dinshaw Wacha and Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy thought might be unduly harassing to the mills, and they urged us to trust the mill-owners. The Committee took into consideration the other powers conferred on the Controller, and decided to delete the power of inspection.

"An alteration of some importance was made in clause 5 of the Bill so as to provide that, where the majority of the Committee who have been consulted by the Controller differ from his opinion, the matter must be referred to the Government of India. In the Bill as it originally stood, reference was only to be made if the Committee were all opposed to the Controller's view.

"Clause 8 of the Bill has been modified so as to penalise misuse of any mark prescribed by the Controller.

"At the end of sub-clause (3) of clause 9, some words were inserted in order to impress on Local Governments the necessity for the utmost publicity with regard to prices fixed for standard cloth.

"At the suggestion of Mr. Sarma the penalty imposed by sub-clause (2) of clause 10 has been increased from three months to six months, and I think Council will agree that a severe penalty is needed to prevent the sale of standard cloth at a price higher than the price fixed by the Local Government.

"This enumerates, I think, all the changes made of any importance by the Select Committee. The other changes may be described as drafting changes only.

"After the meeting of the Select Committee the question was discussed with Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy and Sir Dinshaw Wacha whether an amendment was on the whole either necessary or desirable with regard to forward contracts.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Sir George Barnes.]

Eventually after discussion an amendment was agreed upon, which Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy will move, and which Sir Dinshaw Wacha, who is unfortunately not able to be present here to-day, has authorised me to say is entirely satisfactory to him.

“ At the same time that the Bill was being discussed by the Select Committee here, a very important Conference was being held in Bombay under the chairmanship of Mr. Noyce. At this meeting the Bombay Mill-owners Association, the Bombay and Cawnpore Chambers of Commerce, the Cotton Contracts Committee, the Ahmedabad Mill-owners Association, and the Bombay Native Piece-goods Merchants Association were all represented. In addition, the Directors of Civil Supplies or other representatives were present from Madras, the Punjab, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, Assam, the United Provinces, the Central Provinces, Baluchistan, Central India, Baroda and Indore. I think it would be well that I should refer very shortly to some of the matters which were touched upon at the Bombay Conference. The discussion which took place at the Conference and the work done by it have been, I think, most valuable, and will prove to be of great assistance to Mr. Noyce as Controller in working out the details of the scheme.

“ One of the most important matters discussed at the Conference was the subject of the existing stocks in the country. Without doubt these stocks are at the present time large. The census which we have lately taken of stocks at the ports shows a much larger amount of cloth in hand than was estimated, and, I think, that it is a safe assumption that the returns are not on the high side. We may take it that no one has made a return of a larger amount than he actually holds, and it may be that some persons have omitted to make a full disclosure. Mr. Noyce informs me that the view taken by the Conference generally was that stocks were being unreasonably withheld from the market in the hope of obtaining higher prices, in many cases by those not accustomed to deal in cotton goods. I hope that the speculators who are trying to make a profit by these means will take warning in time and unload their stocks in the market.

“ In regard to the distribution of standard cloth, the view taken by the majority of the Conference was that, in addition to the distribution of cloth by means of Government, municipal or local board shops, the agency of licensed dealers should be utilised, if Local Governments considered it suitable. The representatives of the mill industry were, however, of opinion that licensed dealers should not form part of the scheme for the distribution of standard cloth. This difficult matter, and we are fully alive to its difficulty, must be left to be worked out by each of the Provinces, but the Controller will be instructed not to issue standard cloth to any Province until that Province has satisfied him that an efficient scheme of distribution exists.

“ Another important subject discussed was the control of the price of raw cotton. The Conference was of opinion that it was impossible, and that, if possible, it would be unwise to attempt to control directly the price of raw cotton in India. We must remember that India is not alone in this matter, and that America is a far larger producer of cotton than India. If the United States decide upon a policy of control, then some scheme of control might be worked out for Indian cotton in order to secure Indian parity. Apart from any direct control of the price of raw cotton, it was suggested by some members of the Conference that a system of licensing exports should be adopted, and the opinion was expressed that a policy based on these lines would have a most salutary effect. It is of course quite clear that any restriction of export of raw cotton would have the effect of artificially reducing the price of cotton for the Indian mills, but we must not forget that it would also have the effect of reducing the price of the raw cotton exported.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Sir George Barnes ; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy.]

[26TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

“The amount of surplus cotton which India has year by year to export is large—I think that last year the amount exported was about 5,700,000 cwts.—and an artificial reduction in price consequently would entail a heavy net loss to India and a proportionately large present to our customers abroad. This side of the question must not be lost sight of. Though there are strong economic reasons against a policy of restriction of export for the purpose of producing an artificial reduction of the price of raw cotton, a policy of imposing some restriction on export might become alike desirable and necessary if there appeared to be any risk of a deficiency in the supply of raw cotton for the use of our Indian mills. We must watch the position and be careful to safeguard, if necessary, the supplies of our own mills.

“At the Conference the various representatives from the Provinces were asked what their requirements of standard cloth were likely to be. The only Provinces which were in a position to give a definite statement of what they would want were Bengal, Bihar and Orissa and Assam. The Bengal representatives estimated their requirements at nearly 4 million yards a month. The Bihar and Orissa representatives said that they would need the same amount, and the Assam representative estimated the requirements for his Province at 2 million yards monthly. The other Provincial representatives expressed their inability to furnish a definite statement until they were in a position to see the samples of the cloth it was proposed to standardise and particulars of the price fixed for it. Mr. Noyce, who has come up to Simla after attending the Conference, reports to me that he has received assurances from the representatives of the mill-owners of Bombay, Ahmedabad, Cawnpore and Madras of their willingness to co-operate in the scheme to the utmost, and to assist us in every way that they possibly can, and I should like to tender them my best thanks to-day. By the kindness of the Agents of the textile mills in Bombay, a sample cloth which they thought suitable for standardisation was woven during Mr. Noyce's short visit to Bombay, which I have brought with me to-day. This sample was submitted to the representatives of Bengal, who pronounced it to be exactly what they required. The specification of it is 20s warp and 20s weft, 32 reed and 32 pick, and the price was estimated at about 5½ annas a square yard in Bombay. I have brought this sample with me to-day in case Members of this Council might like to inspect it.

“I beg to move, my Lord, that the Bill be taken into consideration.”

The motion was put and agreed to.

12-15 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy —: My Lord, with your Lordship's permission, I beg to move the amendment which stands in my name and which runs as follows: ‘That in clause 4 to the first proviso to (a) of sub-clause (2) of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee, the following should be added, namely:—

‘and if the Controller is satisfied that the manufacturer has incurred actual loss arising out of forward contracts entered into before the commencement of this Act, and that such loss is immediately attributable to an order under this Act, he may take such loss into account.’

“I will briefly explain to the Council why I thought it necessary to bring this amendment. Several mills have sold forward their products six to nine months ahead at high prices, and have purchased cotton to cover these sales, also at high prices, at a fair margin of profit. If, under the provision of the Bill, a certain portion of the looms is commandeered then the mill-owners will not be able to fulfil contracts within the contracted period, so ipso facto the contract is cancelled. The result will be that the mills will not only lose the profit on their sales, but will actually suffer loss, if the price of cotton goes down. To safeguard this, I have moved this amendment that if the Controller is satisfied that the mill has actually suffered loss, then he should take this matter into consideration, when he fixes the prices. I believe this is a just and fair solution, and I am obliged to the Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry for acceding to my request and accepting this amendment on behalf of Government.

[*Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; Sir George Barnes;
Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.*]

"My Lord, I will now come to the Bill itself. In the Select Committee we have made certain alterations in the Bill, and as the Hon'ble mover has given full explanation regarding these changes I will not deal with them.

"My Lord, as this Council is aware the mill-owners of Bombay and Ahmedabad and the Indian Merchants Chamber of Bombay, whilst appreciating the object underlying this Bill, have expressed their opinion that there will be many practical difficulties in carrying out the object of the Bill. While realising these difficulties, I cannot help supporting this Bill when I consider the serious condition of the poor people, owing to the high prices of cloth and grain I support the Government with regard to this measure, fully expecting that the poor people will be benefitted and also feeling confident that the Government will properly safeguard the interests of all concerned.

"The Hon'ble mover has made reference to certain measures which the Government is considering and which have a bearing on the subject of the present Bill. As far as I know the Government do not contemplate at present the control of more than a small percentage of looms, say, about 10 per cent. In this case I am sure it will not in any way hamper the prosperity of the industry.

"If the agencies through which Government will distribute cheap cloth works satisfactorily, and if the object of supplying cheap cloth to the poor people is gained, then I am sure Government will need more cloth. Then, in that case, I think before taking further steps to control more of the production of the mills, it will be imperative for Government, in fairness to the industry, to control the price and the export of raw cotton, as also the control of the existing stock of cloth in the market, including the imported foreign cloth, as also to fix standard rates for the cloth.

"I am glad to learn from the speech of the Hon'ble Member that some of those above measures have been discussed at the Bombay Conference and are under the consideration of Government. The Hon'ble Member has also informed us that the Government, while appointing an Advisory Committee, mentioned in the Bill, will nominate on it representatives of the different Associations and Chambers concerned in the business. I wish a definite statement to the above effect had been included in the Bill, but on the assurance that my Hon'ble friend has given that this would be so, I did not press for this and I fully rely on this assurance.

"In conclusion I beg to assure the Government that the mill-owners of Bombay will heartily co-operate with Government and do their best to help Government in carrying out the object of the Bill. With these few words I beg to move the amendment."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"I beg to move, my Lord, 12-20 P.M. that the Bill be passed."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"I have 12-20 P.M. great pleasure in supporting the motion that the Bill be passed. The amendments which have been made have met some of the objections which had been pointed out on the first day, and the amendment which has been accepted to-day will meet with the difficulty which was represented by mill-owners to the Council through several of us. I hope, my Lord, that the Bill will now bring speedy relief to the very large number of people who have been undergoing great hardship on account of dearness of cloth. There are just two or three points, however, which I beg to press upon the attention of Government. I hope that this measure may be sufficient, but I apprehend it will not be, and while I recognise fully the weight of the considerations urged by the Hon'ble Member in the way of dealing with the controlling of the price of cotton, I would like to make a suggestion in that connection. I quite realise the difficulty of dealing with cotton which is to be exported, but may it not be, my Lord, that the price of cotton which is to be used in the country may be controlled and that the cotton which is to be exported may be left untouched. If the cotton that is to be used in the country is controlled, and if the cotton that is to be exported is left untouched, I think a great deal of relief may possibly be given.

THE COTTON CLOTH BILL.

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; Sir George Barnes.]

[26TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

"There is certainly another matter which I beg to press upon the attention of Government. As we are co-operating with the United States of America, I hope it will be possible to come to some arrangement with them which has been hinted at by the Hon'ble Member in order to do what may be necessary in this direction.

"The next point, my Lord, I would urge, is the supply of cheap yarn to hand-loom weavers in the country. The Government might bear a little loss in order to supply cheap yarn to hand-loom weavers, but by so doing the supply of cloth may be increased through the agency of hand-loom weavers.

"Another matter to which I should like to refer, is the difficulty about transport. I hope that greater facilities will be provided, both by rail and water, for the carriage of cloth from one place to another in the country.

"And the last thing which I would mention is, not the fixing of a price altogether for imported cloth, but fixing a maximum price beyond which imported cloth may not sell. I know the difficulties in the way of it, but I press it once more upon the consideration of the Hon'ble Member, and I hope something will be done in that direction.

"Lastly, I would once more suggest, as was mentioned by another Hon'ble Member the other day, that facilities may be provided to import textile machinery, so that the output of cotton cloth may be increased.

"With these suggestions I most heartily support the motion that the Bill be passed. The people will feel very grateful to the Government for having taken this measure."

12-25 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"My Lord, I desire to associate myself with the note of satisfaction which has been sounded by my Hon'ble friend Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya on the passing of this Bill. To me, the only matter of regret is, that a measure of this kind should not have been placed on the Statute-book some three months back. We urged it, but as I have said in this Council and elsewhere, Government takes a long time to move, and if this matter had been placed on the Statute-book some three months back, I think much of the trouble with which Government is now confronted would have been avoided. Be that as it may, it is no use quarrelling over the past. We are thankful to the Government for the measure which it has passed, and I hope and trust, indeed I have not the slightest doubt in my own mind, that it will afford substantial relief to the poor and middle classes.

"My Lord, I have inspected the cloth which is meant for Bengal, the standard cloth, and my Hon'ble friend the Maharaja of Kasimbazar and myself both agree that it will do, and I think that sort of cloth will be helpful, if it is cheap, to the poorer classes of India. With these words, I have great pleasure in supporting the Bill."

12-26 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"My Lord, I do not think I need say anything more. But I should like again to thank the mill-owners of this country for the way in which they have received the scheme and for their promise of co-operation in carrying it into effect."

The motion was put and agreed to.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY'S SPEECH AT THE CLOSING OF THE SIMLA SESSION OF THE IMPERIAL LEGISLA-TIVE COUNCIL—SEPTEMBER 1918.

[26TH SEPTEMBER, 1918.]

[The President.]

HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY'S SPEECH AT THE CLOSING OF THE SIMLA SESSION OF THE IMPE-RIAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL—SEPTEMBER 1918.

His Excellency the President :—"I think we may all look back with satisfaction on the Session which has now come to a close. The debates throughout have been informed by that spirit of co-operation, which was the key-note of the Scheme of Reforms proposed by the Secretary of State and myself. On the official side such co-operation rests on a recognition of Indian opinion ; on the non-official side on a recognition that Government has only one end in view—the well-being and progress of India.

" At the very outset of the Session the same note was struck, and stirred a sympathetic chord on all sides of the House. It was struck first by the Hon'ble Mr Surendra Nath Banerjea in his eloquent appeal to his non-official colleagues to grasp the hand of fellowship extended to them by Government. And in swift response the Hon'ble the Home Member pledged the whole-hearted co-operation of that fine Service to which he belongs, in the progressive fulfilment of India's destiny as a full partner in the Empire.

" Quickened by this spirit of co-operation, the Council may face the future with confidence. Diversity of opinion there must always be ; diversity indeed is the very law of life. But above diversity there is a higher law still, the law of unity. And it is the task of this Council to reconcile the many divergent interests of India into one whole, and to bring her ever nearer to the goal towards which we are all striving.

" How great is our essential agreement underlying all diversities of interests was demonstrated in the debate on Reforms. That debate has cleared the air. It has removed many misconceptions. It has done much to prepare the ground for the Committees that will be engaged this cold weather in investigating the all-important questions of Franchise, and of decentralisation and the provincial division into Transferred and Reserved Subjects.

" Some misconceptions no doubt still remain ; it could hardly be otherwise with a scheme of such complexity. Take, for instance, the disappointment voiced during the debate by some Hon'ble Moslem Members at the inadequate representation of their community which to them seemed foreshadowed in the scheme. May I remind them again of my words at the opening of the Session ? ' I am most anxious that the fullest representation should be secured to the various classes and communities in India, but I am frankly doubtful myself whether the best method for securing that representation is through a system of separate electorates. However, I am content to leave the unravelling of this important question in the hands of the Committee, who will have the fullest evidence placed before them and will be free to make such recommendations as they think right.' This assurance was general, addressed to all communities alike. But I would ask my Moslem friends in particular to lay it to heart. It is now for them to plead their cause before the Franchise Committee. That Committee, as also the Committee that is to deal with Subjects, will include a member of their community. And they may therefore plead their cause before it in the fuller assurance that all weight will be given to their claims. The strength of those claims no one recognises more readily than I. Their position under the Morley-Minto Reforms is secured ; any advance on that position is for them to make good before the Committee. Yet I have been told that there is a feeling among Moslems that Government is less mindful of their interests than in the past. I have even been told that the unfortunate incident in

[The President.]

Calcutta, the grievous death-roll at which I deeply deplore, was in some measure symptomatic of this discontent. If there is indeed such a feeling abroad, I call on the leaders of the Moslem community, in the spirit of co-operation which has fructified our work at this Session, to help me to dispel it. For my own part I will only add this. I have watched the unswerving loyalty of Moslems throughout these trying times, proffering manhood and money in the cause of the Empire, with admiration. And Moslems may rest assured that I shall see to it that there is no abatement of the promises they received from my predecessors in the matter of representation, and that the wider interests of the great Moslem community are always safeguarded.

“ Another feature by which this Session will be signalised in our history was the entrusting to the non-official vote the decision on India's further financial assistance towards the prosecution of the war. We embarked on this departure from precedent in full confidence. Our action was vindicated by the result. The readiness with which the non-official Members of this Council rose to their new-found responsibilities will stand out as a landmark on the road towards responsible government. Their assumption of a larger share in the Empire's war-burden will strike a note of Imperial solidarity that will carry far beyond India itself. And that they read the temper of India aright, is proved—if proof were needed—by the large subscriptions that were simultaneously pouring in, to swell the War Loan before its close to nearly 50 crores. I offer my thanks to India at large, and to the various War Loan Committees for their unflagging efforts. And to the patriotic spirit of Bengal, which headed the Provinces with a contribution of nearly 20 crores, I pay a special tribute. The combination of these achievements, in this Council and in the country, forms a fitting close to Sir William Meyer's long and distinguished career in the service of India. He has remained with us on the call of duty at personal sacrifice; and all of us are glad to think that his sacrifice has met with so gratifying a reward. In the name of the Council I bid him good-bye and Godspeed.

“ Our Session is over. We met three weeks ago buoyed with high hopes in the coming triumph of our cause. In three short weeks our hopes have gone from strength to strength. The first faint flicker of victorious peace, which then seemed dawning on the horizon, is now beginning to kindle the whole sky. From every front comes news of victory. And in the latest victory of all, India can proudly claim a glorious share. For great forces have gone forth from India to Palestine, manned from British India and the Native States, and by Gurkhas from Nepal, whose Prime Minister has ungrudgingly placed at our service the gallant man-power of his country. The full story of that victory has yet to be told; its far-reaching effect no one amongst us can foresee. But of this I am assured. When the record of that glorious campaign is unfolded, across the page of history will be writ large the name of India.”

The Council adjourned sine die.

APPENDIX A.

[Referred to in answer to Question No. 5.]

Statement showing particulars in respect of the grant of special permissions to export pearls from India since the 16th March 1918, the date on which the embargo was imposed.

Particulars.	Consignor.	Consignees.	Destination.	Special grounds for grant of concession.
(1) 600 tolas valued at Rs. 10,000 approximately. (Broken and shapeless pieces intended for medicinal use.)	Mr. F. P. Talati, Bombay	Not known	Hong Kong	Sanctioned as a special case as the pearls in question had originally come from Hong Kong, whence they were shipped to India prior to date of the prohibition. The case was thus merely one of re-shipment
(2) Unset pearls valued at over Rs. 50,000	Mr. N. D. H. Abdul Gaffoor, Colombo.	Self	Colombo	Mr. Gaffoor came to India in February last and had posted the pearls in advance of his departure from Ceylon. The pearls reached Bombay on 23rd February 1918, but having been delayed in transit. Mr. Gaffoor had to return to Ceylon without being able to dispose of them at Bombay as he had intended to do, and left instructions with his Agents to send them back to him at Colombo. On his return to Ceylon, Mr. Gaffoor applied for permission to re-export the pearls and sanction was accorded in view of the circumstances set forth above.
(3) (a) 34,938 carats baroque very rough and unfinished pearls valued at £ 350. (b) 20 ozs. baroque very rough and unfinished pearls valued at £ 200.	Messrs. David Sassoon and Company, Limited, Bombay.	(a) Mr. Israel Pinchasoff (b) Mr. S. Barouch	New York	The pearls were sent to Messrs. David Sassoon's for sale, but the firm having failed to dispose of them wished to return them under instructions from the owners in New York who are the consignees. Sanction was accorded subject to the Collector of Customs being satisfied that they were bona fide cases of re-shipment.
(4) 3 pearl scarf pins 3 pearl studs 1 pearl button valued at £ 1,000.	Messrs. E. D. Sassoon and Company, Bombay	Firm's London House.	London	Sanctioned as the articles represented items of jewellery which were intended for sale—the sale proceeds to be devoted to charity in accordance with the will of the late Sir Jacob Sassoon.

APPENDIX B.

(Referred to in answer to Question No. 6.)

Statement summing up the views of Local Governments and Administrations on the question of placing indigenous systems of medicine on a scientific basis.

.. The opinion unanimously expressed by Local Governments is that it is practically impossible to place the indigenous systems of medicine on a scientific basis. The systems are a survival of a state of medical knowledge which once prevailed in Europe, but has been superseded by a series of scientific investigations and discoveries extending over several centuries. They ignore the instruments of scientific investigation which have made modern medicine and surgery possible, and the theories on which they are based are demonstrably unsound. Even at the present time there are numerous practitioners who have superimposed a knowledge of Western medicine on Ayurvedic instruction, or vice versa, but there is evidence that these men do not possess the confidence of the people to the same degree as practitioners who have been trained solely in accordance with the strict tenets of the Ayurveda, and the latter are strongly opposed to any form of Government interference. If advance is to be made on these lines, it is essential that there should be a strong movement among indigenous practitioners, supported by public opinion, to reform and organise themselves, and of such a movement there is at present little or no evidence.

The hold which the ancient systems undoubtedly have on the masses of the population is attributable in part to a form of credulity analogous to the belief in the magical efficacy of quack drugs and patent medicines which, in spite of constant exposures and a much higher level of education, is still so widespread even in Western countries; but the popularity of these systems is chiefly due to the smallness of the fees which their practitioners are willing to accept. Training in Western methods involves expense, and it is inevitable that practitioners so trained should raise their fees. The attendance at Government hospitals and dispensaries, where the treatment is gratuitous, proves that the value of Western methods is appreciated, and the policy of Local Governments is to increase the facilities for such treatment. To divert the funds available for the purpose to the encouragement of systems which they cannot but regard as unsound would, in their opinion, be a grave misuse of public revenues.

There is, however, one line of research which is likely to be fruitful; and that is, the scientific investigation of the properties of indigenous drugs. Several Local Governments have already considered measures for conducting such an investigation, but these measures have had to be postponed owing to the impossibility of obtaining during the war the services of competent pharmacologists.

Simla, the 23rd January, 1918.

SIR,

In consequence of complaints which have appeared in Newspapers, and representations made to the Government of India on the subject of the discomfort of 3rd class passengers on Indian Railways, such as overcrowding, insanitary condition of railway carriages and station latrines and waiting halls, defective food, supply-etc., I am directed to state that the subject has again received the attention of the Railway Board. They recognise that, although a good deal has been done by Railways in these matters, there is still room for improvement. I am accordingly to request that you will give further careful attention in your inspections to the conveniences provided for 3rd class passengers, especially as regards the general arrangements for dealing with the traffic, booking and waiting accommodation, refreshment arrangements, latrines and the general sanitary condition of the same, and include these points especially in your reports.

2. For your information I am to send herewith copy of a letter which the Railway Board have addressed to Railways on the subject.

I have the honour to be,

DEAR SIR,

I am directed to inform you that the Railway Board have recently received representations regarding the discomforts 3rd class passengers are subjected to and have also noticed many complaints on the subject in the press

2. The Board recognise that most railways have in recent years done much to improve matters in this direction, also that the present time, when everything possible is being done to discourage passenger traffic, and it is impossible either to obtain new, or improve existing stock, is not altogether a suitable time to take this matter up. They are, however, of opinion that in many cases more might be done in the direction of improvements which depend mainly on supervision and the provision of adequate staff, and in this connection I am to draw attention to the following points in connection with which it is considered there is frequently room for improvement and which call for the exercise of constant supervision on the part of both railway officers and subordinates:

- (a) Issue of tickets and weighment of luggage in ample time before departure of trains.
- (b) Admission of passengers on platforms earlier, in order to avoid the great crush and rush for seats which so frequently occurs.
- (c) Drawing up of trains at large stations as far as possible on the platforms which best meet the convenience of passengers.
- (d) Provision of sufficient and suitable waiting accommodation, with benches or seats for passengers.
- (e) The provision of sufficient and suitable refreshments, with accommodation for the vendors.
- (f) The provision at all large stations of an ample supply of good water with facilities for supplying the same to passengers.
- (g) The provision of sufficient latrine accommodation of approved type and the proper cleaning of the same.
- (h) The maintenance of all coaching stock and station premises in a clean and sanitary condition.

3. As examples of what has already been done in this direction, on certain railways Passenger Superintendents whose sole duty is to look after the comfort and convenience of passengers are employed. On the Bengal Nagpur Railway, Railway Train Conductors are provided, and on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway there are standing instructions for Guards on the subject. On the East Indian Railway a special Indian staff is employed for the supervision of the catering arrangements. The Railway Board consider that all these are steps in the right direction which might with advantage be extended. The general point they wish to bring to notice at the present time is that, though equipment cannot be improved, additional staff can be obtained, and the fact of the shortage of accommodation calls for increased attention by the railway staff, with constant and efficient supervision.

4. I am also to say that a suggestion has been made that bye-laws should be framed and notices pasted on the walls of carriages and at stations in order to secure cleanliness on the part of passengers. I am to ask for your opinion on this suggestion.

Yours faithfully,

B. STANLEY,

Assistant Secretary, Railway Board.

DEAR SIR,

In reference to the replies received from Railway Administrations to Railway Board's circular No. 552T.17, dated the 23rd January 1918, I am directed to forward, herewith, a Note by the Railway Board and to say that though the Board recognise that many railways have already done and are doing much in the directions required, they think it desirable to impress on them generally the need for giving constant attention to the points in the Note and especially for ensuring efficient supervision, to see that instructions are at all times properly carried out.

2. As regards the framing of a bye-law and the pasting of notices on walls of carriages and at stations in order to secure cleanliness, I am to say that while the Railway Board believe that under present conditions such a bye-law and notices cannot do much good, they are inclined to think, as a matter of policy and since railways do not seem to have any great objection, that it would be better to introduce them if it were only to show that everything possible is being done by railways by taking up the question.

Note by the Railway Board.

Where continuous booking has been arranged, it is not always the case that passengers get tickets at all hours. To ensure that the good intentions of the Railway are carried into effect, it is essential that frequent inspections are made to see that the staff required to be on duty are actually present, and that they do not put off intending passengers.

2. A study at all times of the fluctuating requirements of traffic is necessary to avoid the inconvenience that passengers sometimes have to undergo at the time of buying tickets. An exodus from business centres at week-ends, or a rush on account of large and local fairs, festivals, and the like, sudden applications for renewals of season tickets, all require careful watching by an officer, and such emergencies should be foreseen and met by providing more booking clerks and a larger number of ticket windows than usual. It may be necessary for an officer to be present at the station and see that the measures ordered are in full operation and are adequate.

3. The class of men employed generally as booking clerks and their education and training, do not as a rule go to make for efficiency. The question of their pay requires consideration. They run the constant risk of debits and on the other hand they are always open to temptations. It is essential therefore that they be sufficiently well-paid. To expect booking clerks to commence work after passing their examination and without any practical training appears to be to court trouble. Their training should be much more practical than is generally the case and by familiarity with dummy tickets and counters they should be made thoroughly efficient in their duties before being put on duty to sell tickets to passengers. While under training their general education, particularly with reference to the Railway geography of India, should be improved upon.

4. Long hours of duty for booking clerks make the service unattractive and lead to careless methods of working. The provision of a sufficient number of well-paid booking clerks of a class above the average of other station clerks, well-trained and of fair education, performing not too long hours of duty should be the ideal.

5. There is much to be said for the practice of keeping passengers off platform till trains have arrived and inward passengers cleared the platforms. But in the majority of instances, there is no necessity for the practice which undoubtedly causes trouble to the outgoing passengers. Except at stations where due to the narrow width of platforms or for particular trains by which there is generally a great rush of inward passengers, and under the usual circumstances passengers should be allowed to gain admittance to their proper platforms as soon as possible after they have purchased tickets. This would necessitate entrance gates being manned for considerably longer periods than is generally done at present, and staff will also be required to see that the passengers distribute themselves along the length of the platform in the most convenient manner.

6. At terminal stations rakes should be placed along platforms well before the advertised time of departure and the little saving in gas or electricity at night should not be made a reason for keeping trains in the yard till the last moment.

7. The question of refreshments for Indian passengers has been kept prominently in view by railway administrations and much improvement has resulted in recent years, but the matter requires further consideration by railways generally. The points to remember are that, first, railways are required to cater for the needs of different religious sects; secondly, for the middle classes and the masses and, thirdly, for men and women. These various requirements require very careful study. The aim should be to provide a morning and an evening meal for the better class of passengers on long journeys, careful attention being given to the religious susceptibilities and customs of the people, and for the masses an abundant supply of food of the description they are used to in the locality. There is no reason why railways should suffer pecuniary loss in securing this aim. Catering on railways is a profitable undertaking and whether done departmentally or through contractors, loss can and should be guarded against. It is suggested that in this matter the co-operation might be obtained, if possible, of Indian gentlemen of standing in various centres. They are in a position to suggest how the wants of their countrymen can be best met, and the experience gained from a beginning made on these lines at a few towns will be found of use in framing the general policy for the line.

8. In the matter of supply of drinking water for passengers, it is not enough to have the number of hydrants on a platform increased, for during the hot months the water from the overhead iron tanks coming out of the hydrants is often quite unfit for drinking. Nor is it sufficient to appoint additional watermen at all stations during the hot weather; it is essential also to secure the men's attendance. A liberal supply of cold drinking water should be provided at all main stations and receptacles ready filled should be on the platform before arrival of trains and water-men present to supply the water to passengers in carriages. It again becomes a question of efficient supervision and constant inspection to see that the arrangements sanctioned are in proper working order. At small wayside stations and at stations where there is difficulty in procuring water, no arrangements other than increasing the staff of watermen seem possible, but it may be noted that in this matter also improvement is possible by proper supervision. It is possible to lay too much stress on the provision of a filtered water-supply, at least when a proper filtered supply is impracticable or difficult, till better arrangements can be made, a plentiful supply of the water available in the locality should be made accessible to the passengers, the majority of whom are not used to drinking sterilised water. A plentiful supply of water at all principal stations at all hours of the day and night and providing the water cold, would go a long way towards avoiding complaints.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 3rd October 1918, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1 A shallow depression entered east Bengal from the Bay and disappeared in Assam. It gave moderately heavy and nearly general rain in Burma, Bengal and Assam, but after its disappearance rainfall in these areas diminished and by the close of the week had ceased almost entirely.

The Bombay monsoon was very weak and only gave a few falls of rain in the Peninsula.

2. Burma.—Nearly general rain fell in Lower Burma on the 26th, 27th, 28th and 30th September, and in Upper Burma from the 26th to the 30th September.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall was nearly general in Assam on the 28th, 29th and 30th September, and fairly general in Bengal except the north on the 26th, 27th and 29th September.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Light rain fell at Akola and Pachmarhi.

Northwest India.—Light falls of rain occurred at Sonamarg, Drosh, Parachinar, Khushab, Lyallpur and Simla.

The Peninsula. There was nearly general rain in Mysore and Malabar on the 29th September, and on the north Madras coast on the 26th. There were a few scattered falls in other parts of the Peninsula.

3. The chief amounts of rainfall reported were as follows :—

September 26th. Akyab 1.51", Minbu 1.66", Bham 1.31", Shillong 1.60", Cox's Bazar 8.91", Barisal 3.39", Jessore 1.72" and Vizagapatam 1.12".

„ 27th. Tavoy 1.90", Kyaukpyn 2.55", Lashio 1.62, Cherrapunji 2.03", Cox's Bazar 2.75", Barisal 2.67", Burdwan 1.39", Calicut 2.65" and Vizagapatam 1.77".

„ 28th. Kyaukpyn 5.15", Akyab 2.43", Sibsaagar 1.40", Mymensingh 2.77", Lyallpur 0.40", Dharwar 3.09" and Cochin 1.55" „ 29th. Akyab 2.64", Myitkyina 1.31", Silchar 2.72", Cherrapunji 3.13" and Mysore 1.14".

„ 30th. Table Island 2.06", Bassein 1.92", Silchar 2.53" and Ootacamund 1.30".

October 1st. Malegaon 0.71" and Ahmadnagar 0.42".

„ 2nd. Ahmadnagar 0.64" and Mercara 1.15".

4. The week's rainfall was 20 per cent. or more in excess in Burma and Bengal; and 20 per cent. or more in defect in the Bay Islands, Bihar and Orissa, the United Provinces, the Punjab East and North, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, Rajputana, Gujarat, Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad, Mysore, Madras Southeast and the Madras Deccan. No rain usually falls at this time of year in Baluchistan and Sind; in the remaining divisions rainfall was within 20 per cent. of the normal.

The rainfall from the 3rd May to date is 20 per cent. or more in defect in the United Provinces, the Punjab, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan, Sind, Rajputana, Gujarat, Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces West, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad, Mysore, Malabar, Madras Southeast and the Madras Deccan. It differed from the normal by less than 20 per cent. in the remaining divisions.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
28th September 1918.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout the Province. It was good in Lower Burma and moderate elsewhere. Transplantation of winter rice is approaching completion in Lower Burma, and in irrigated tracts of Upper Burma. Cultivation of miscellaneous crops is progressing in Upper Burma. Standing crops are generally in good condition. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice in Rangoon has fallen slightly to rupees 152 but is still much above normal. The market for white rice is firm at Rs. 370 per hundred baskets for specials.

Assam.—The weather during the week was hot. Manufacture of tea continues. Harvesting of autumn rice and jute and transplantation of winter rice have been nearly finished. Prospects of crops are fair to good. Cattle disease is reported from four districts. The price of common rice is stationary, except in the Surma Valley where it has risen slightly.

Bengal.—During the week light and scattered showers fell over the greater part of the Province. Weeding of winter paddy continues. Cutting, steeping and washing of jute are still going on. Prospects of standing crops are generally reported to be fair. Fodder is reported to be scarce in the flooded tracts of North Bengal. Flood water is gradually subsiding. The price of common rice has risen further.

Bihar and Orissa.—During the week light and insufficient showers fell in Orissa. There was no rain in Bihar and Chota Nagpur. Weeding of winter paddy and harvesting of autumn crops continue. More rain is urgently wanted generally and prospects are less favourable. The price of common rice has risen in twelve districts, fallen in three and remained stationary in the remaining districts as compared with that of the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from eleven districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is, on the whole, good.

United Provinces.—No rain was received during the week and more rain is urgently needed everywhere. Crops have been damaged through drought in some districts. Preparation of land for spring crops and poppy, harvesting and irrigation of autumn crops and sugarcane and picking of cotton continue. Standing crops are suffering for want of rain. Prospects are unfavourable. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition but slight cattle disease is still reported. Water and market supplies are adequate but fodder is getting scarce in some places. Prices are rising.

Punjab.—During the week light rain fell in some of the western parts of the Province. Elsewhere the weather was generally dry. Rain is urgently wanted both for standing autumn crops which are withering from drought and for spring sowings. Standing irrigated crops are average to good and unirrigated crops much below average. Picking of cotton and teapung of rice continue in some districts. The yield of cotton is below normal to normal. Gram and oilseeds are being sown and the area sown is below normal to normal. Cattle are generally healthy and water is sufficient. Fodder is scarce in some districts. Prices show an upward tendency and are generally above scarcity rates. Price of wheat:—Ambala and Ferozepore 8½, Lahore and Rawalpindi 8½ and Lyallpur 6½ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—Slight rain has fallen in Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan. Sowings of autumn crops in Bannu and of spring crops in Peshawar are proceeding. Harvesting prospects are average on irrigated and below average on unirrigated areas in Peshawar and Bannu and poor in Dera Ismail Khan owing to want of rain. Cotton is being picked and rice reaped in Peshawar with outturn average. Prices of wheat in Peshawar are 7½ and in Dera Ismail Khan 8½ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—No rain fell during the week. Prices are rising.

Kashmir.—Report not received.

Rajputana.—The weather during the week was rainless with cool nights. Irrigated crops are in fair condition and unirrigated crops are withering. Cattle are generally in fair condition. Fodder is getting scarce. Water is sufficient. Prices are high and rising.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was insufficient except in Indore and Bhopal. Autumn crops are being weeded and harvested. Preparation of land for and sowing of spring crops are in progress. Standing crops are withering in Gwalior north and are in fair to good condition elsewhere except in parts of the Southern States where their condition is indifferent. They have been damaged in parts of Malwa and the Southern States for want of rain. Agricultural stock is in fair to good condition. Scarcity of fodder is reported in parts of Gwalior and Malwa. Prices are high.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been warm and occasionally cloudy. No rain fell during the week except 11 cents at Amroha. Standing crops are in good condition in Seoni, Mandla, Narmar, Raipur, Bilaspur, Akola and Amraoti. Late sown crops in Jabulpore, rice, juar and late sown winter millets in Saugor, Damoh, Betul, Chhindwara, Bhandara and Chanda, juar in Wardha and juar and cotton in Nagpur and those grown on light soils are deteriorating in parts of the plateau districts. Early juar (white) would have given a good crop but without rain it has been seriously damaged by smut but the early millets which have been now cut and early broadcast rice as well as maize have or are sure to yield a fair outturn. Rain is immediately required to save the crops from further deterioration and to provide moisture for the sowings of spring crops. Reaping of minor millets and pulses continues. Preparation of land and sowing of spring crops are in progress. Relief works in Simsha are proceeding. The condition of cattle is generally good but fodder and water are insufficient in parts of the Betul and Berar districts. Cattle disease prevails in a sporadic form in parts of five districts. The price of gram in Damoh and Akola, of wheat in Yeotmal, of rice in Seoni and Yeotmal and of juar in Nirmar and Wardha rose by 1 to 1½ seers per rupee while that of rice in Betul fell by 1 seer per rupee. Elsewhere prices fluctuated slightly, exhibiting an upward tendency.

Feudatory States.—Standing crops are doing well except on light soils. More rain is urgently required everywhere.

Bombay.—Moderately good rain fell during the week in parts of the Karnatak, Savantvadi, Sholapur, Ratnagiri and Kanara. More rain is needed everywhere. Standing crops have been damaged by rats, insects and winds in Karachi, by rats in Hyderabad, by wind in Sukkur and by insects in Thar and Parker. They are withering generally everywhere except in parts of the Konkan, Sholapur, the Karnatak and Satara where the recent rain has improved the situation slightly. Preparation for spring crops continues in parts of Sind, West Khandesh and Dharwar. Sowing for spring crops continues in Nasik, Poona, Sholapur, Satara and the Karnatak. The fodder supply is generally deficient but pasture has improved in some districts. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient but cattle are deteriorating in parts of Karachi, Hyderabad, Ahmedabad, Kaira and Satara. Irrigation is deficient in parts of Sind, Kaira, Surat, Poona and Dharwar. Prices of food grains are generally steady.

Hyderabad.—The rainfall during the week was light in six districts and fair to good elsewhere. The average fall was 1 inch and 55 cents. Autumn crops are in fair to good condition and are being harvested in places. Early rice is in fair to good condition and is being weeded. Lands for the sowing of spring crops are being prepared. Cattle are generally healthy. Fodder scarcity prevails in four districts. Prices of grains are abnormally high. Juar is selling at 3 seers per rupee in the Bir, Parbhani, Nander and Raichur districts.

Mysore.—The week was generally wet. Ploughing and sowing operations are in progress. Standing crops are in fair condition. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are fluctuating.

Ceorg.—Report not received.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was heavy in Guntur and Kurnool, good in Ganjam, the Visagapatam littoral, Godavari, Kistna, Banganapalle, Bellary, Anantapur, Cuddapah, North Arcot, Malabar, Cochin and the Carnatic except South Arcot, as in Pudukkottai and Tinnevely and fair or light elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair condition generally but more rain is still required urgently in parts. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is limited with outturn fair generally but poor in four districts and in parts of eight others. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding and are being much encouraged by recent rains. The condition of cattle is generally good. Water is insufficient except in five districts. Pasture is sufficient except in five districts and parts of three others. Fodder is sufficient except in two districts and parts of seven others. Prices are showing a tendency to fall.

PARDON FOR DESERTERS.

No. 2404.—His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor has been graciously pleased to approve of pardons being granted to all persons subject to the Indian Army Act, who were in a state of desertion or were absent without leave on the date of the issue of this notification and who surrender themselves at any place in or out of India where there are regular troops on or before the 1st day of January 1919.

2. The provisions of this notification will not apply to men who have deserted whilst on field service and to men who, subsequent to desertion, have enrolled themselves improperly in the same or any other corps or department.

3. This general amnesty to deserters and to persons who are absent without leave is final.

4. Men who have deserted or become absent without leave before the introduction of an enrolment bonus and who now surrender themselves before the 1st January 1919 will not be eligible for this bonus. They will, however, if recruits, be considered eligible for the training bonus sanctioned in Army Instruction (India) No. 893 of 1918, on passing the recruits' course.

5. Men who desert or become absent without leave after the date of the issue of this notification and men who deserted or became absent without leave before the issue of this notification and who do not avail themselves of this amnesty before the date prescribed in paragraph 1 of this notification, will, on apprehension or on surrendering, if retained in the service, be ineligible to receive any enrolment, training or war bonus [Army Instruction (India) No. 893 of 1918] to which they would otherwise have been entitled, except as may be directed by the Brigade Commander on the recommendation of their Commanding Officer.

No 2405—The following Proclamation by His Excellency the Governor-General, dated the 8th October 1918, is published for general information :—

PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS His Imperial Majesty the King Emperor has been graciously pleased to grant on certain conditions His Imperial pardon to all persons subject to the Indian Army Act, who on the 11th October 1918 were in a state of desertion or absence without leave, excluding such persons as have deserted whilst on field service and such persons as after desertion have enrolled themselves improperly in the same or any other corps or department ;

AND WHEREAS, it is expedient that a pardon should likewise be granted to all persons subject to the Indian Army Act, 1911, who have been convicted, by Court-Martial held in India (excluding Aden), of the offences of desertion or absence without leave other than persons who have deserted whilst on field service and persons who after desertion have enrolled themselves improperly in the same or any other corps or department ;

Now, therefore, I, Frederic John Napier, Baron Chelmsford, P.C., G.M.S.I., G.C.M.G., G.M.L.E., G.B.E., Viceroy and Governor-General of India, in exercise of the prerogative of pardon delegated to me by His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor, do hereby pardon such persons and remit the unexpired portions of the sentences of transportation or imprisonment now being undergone by such persons subject to the condition that they at once re-enter military service on the same terms as those on which they were originally enrolled.

GIVEN under my hand and seal at Simla this eighth day of October one thousand nine hundred and eighteen.

CHELMSFORD,

Viceroy and Governor-General of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 10th October 1918, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. A western disturbance gave some rain and snow in the extreme north of India, two heavy falls being recorded at Gulmarg. Rainfall was of daily occurrence in Burma, chiefly in the coast districts, and local falls were reported from Assam, the southern half of the Peninsula and the Bombay Deccan.

2. Burma.—Rainfall was nearly general in the coast districts on the 5th.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—The only stations that reported rain were Tezpur, Silchar and Shillong.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Nagpur and Jagdalpur had light falls of rain : elsewhere weather was dry.

Northwest India.—Light rain fell at Lyallpur, and falls of rain and snow occurred in the hills of the extreme north.

The Peninsula.—Rainfall was nearly general in Mysore on the 5th. A few falls occurred during the week in the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, northwest Hyderabad and Madras.

3. The chief amounts of rainfall reported were as follows :—

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
5th October 1918.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout the Province. It was moderate on the Arakan and Tenasserim coasts and light elsewhere. Transplantation of winter rice has been completed in Lower Burma and in irrigated tracts of Upper Burma. Harvesting of early sesamum has been completed. Cultivation of miscellaneous crops continues in Upper Burma. Standing crops are generally good. Livestock is healthy. The price of unhusked rice in Rangoon has risen slightly to Rs. 155 per hundred baskets and is much above normal. The market for white rice is steady at Rs. 865 per hundred baskets for specials.

Assam.—The weather was seasonable. Manufacture of tea continues. Harvesting of autumn rice and jute and transplantation of winter rice are approaching completion. Ploughing for mustard and masticata is proceeding. Prospects of crops are fair to good. Cattle disease is reported from four districts. The price of common rice is stationary.

Bengal.—The rainfall during the week was generally light in the western and northern districts and was moderate elsewhere. Standing crops are suffering for want of rain in places in the Burdwan division. Weeding of winter paddy still continues. Cutting, steeping and washing of jute are well advanced. Prospects of standing crops are generally fair. Lands are being prepared in places for the cultivation of spring crops. Fodder is reported to be scarce in parts of the Rajshahi division. The average price of common rice has risen by about 3·3 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—There was no rain during the week. Harvesting of autumn crops continues. Rain is urgently wanted for winter paddy which is withering on high lands and in unirrigated areas. In the Orissa, Chota Nagpur and Patna divisions cultivation of lands for the sowing of spring crops has also been retarded. Prospects are now distinctly gloomy. The price of common rice has risen in twelve districts, fallen in one and remained stationary in the remaining districts as compared with that of the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from twelve districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is generally fair but more rain is badly wanted in almost all States.

United Provinces.—The week was rainless and more rain is very urgently needed everywhere. Damage to crops through drought is reported from several districts. Preparation of land for spring crops and poppy, harvesting and irrigation of autumn crops and sugarcane and picking of cotton continue. Standing crops are reported to be suffering for want of rain. Prospects are unfavourable. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition but slight cattle disease is still reported. Water and market supplies are adequate but fodder is scarce in some places. Prices are rising generally.

Punjab.—Except for light showers in parts of a few western districts the weather remained dry. Rain is urgently wanted for standing autumn crops which are withering and for the sowing of spring crops. The condition of standing irrigated crops is average to good and of unirrigated crops much below average. Picking of cotton and reaping of rice and maize continue with yield below normal to normal. Sowings of gram and oilseeds are in progress and are below normal to normal. Cattle are generally healthy and water is sufficient. Fodder is scarce in some districts. Prices are generally stationary but have risen slightly in some districts. They are generally above scarcity rates. Price of wheat :—Ambala and Rawalpindi 6, Ferozepore and Lahore 6½ and Lyallpur 6½ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of the Province. Sowings of spring crops are proceeding in places. Prospects of standing crops are average on irrigated and below average on unirrigated areas in Peshawar and Bannu and poor in Dera Ismail Khan owing to want of rain. Cotton is being picked and rice reaped in Peshawar with outturn average. Prices of wheat in Peshawar and in Dera Ismail Khan are 7½ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are stationary.

Kashmir.—Report not received.

Rajputana.—The weather during the week was rainless. Irrigated crops are in fair condition but unirrigated crops are withering. Cattle are generally in fair condition. Fodder is getting scarce. Water is sufficient. Prices are high and rising.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was practically nil, except in Indore and in Bhopal. Autumn crops are being weeded and harvested. Preparation of land for and sowing of spring crops are in progress except in Bundelkhand where the operations have been stopped for want of rain. Standing crops are in bad condition in Gwalior, are withering in Bundelkhand and are in fair to good condition elsewhere. Their probable cutturn is fourteen annas in Bhopal, fair in the Southern States, Indore and Malwa and two to four annas in Bundelkhand if rain falls. They have been damaged in Bundelkhand and in parts of Bhopal and Malwa for want of rain. Agricultural stock is in fair to good condition. Scarcity of fodder is reported in parts of Gwalior. Prices are high.

Central Provinces.—The weather during the week has been hot with occasional clouds. During the week Nagpur received 38 cents of rain and Betul, Chhindwara, Akola and Yeotmal also had a sprinkling of rain not exceeding 17 cents at any place. Standing crops on light soils are withering and rain is immediately required everywhere. Harvesting of minor crops and of early rice is proceeding. Ploughing of fields for spring sowings is in progress and sowings continue but the operations are hampered for want of moisture in the soil. Relief work in Sironeha continue and a test work has been opened in the Harsud tahsil of the Nimar district. Wages are low in Akola. Fodder is dear or scarce in Berar. Wheat in Akola, gram in Mandla and rice in Saugor, Betul and Bilaspur rose by 1 to 1½ seers per rupee. Other variations are insignificant but indicate an upward tendency.

Residual States.—Crops on poor soils are withering. Rain is badly required everywhere. Early rice is being gathered.

Bombay.—Moderately good rain fell during the week in parts of the Karnatak and Kolhapur. It was slight in the Deccan. More rain is needed everywhere. Standing crops have been damaged by rats in Hyderabad and are withering generally everywhere except in parts of the Karnatak and the Deccan where the recent rainfall has slightly improved the situation. Preparation for spring crops continues in parts of Sind. Sowing for spring crops continues in parts of the Deccan, the Karnatak and Kolhapur. Harvesting of autumn crops continues in parts of Sukkur, Hyderabad, Surat, Thana, the Panch Mahals, Rewa Kantha, Khandesh and Satara. The fodder supply is generally deficient but pasture has improved in some districts. Agricultural stocks is generally sufficient but cattle are deteriorating in parts of Karachi, Hyderabad, Ahmedabad, Kaira, Nasik, Satara and Kolhapur. Irrigation is deficient in parts of Sind, Kaira, Surat, Poona and Dharwar. Prices of food grains are high but generally steady.

Hyderabad.—The rainfall during the week was light to nil. The average fall was 15 cents. Autumn crops are generally in fair to good condition and are being harvested. Early rice is in fair to good condition and needs rain. Spring crops are being sown. Cattle are generally healthy. Fodder scarcity prevails in four districts. Prices of grains are abnormally high. Juar is selling at three seers per rupee in the Bir, Parbhani, Nander and Raichur districts.

Mysore.—Report not received.

Coorg.—More rain fell during the week except in two talukas. It was insufficient for the standing paddy crop in two talukas. Picking of cardamom continues with outturn fair. Reaping of dry crops in north Coorg continues. Cattle disease prevails in some villages. Water and fodder are sufficient. The public health is fair. Prices of food grains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was good in Malabar, South Kanara and in the hills, fair in Coimbatore, Trichinopoly, Travancore and Cochin and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair condition generally but more rain is still required urgently in parts. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is limited with outturn fair generally but poor in two districts and in parts of ten others. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding but are restricted in parts for want of more rain. The condition of cattle is generally good. Water is insufficient except in four districts. Pasture is sufficient except in three districts and in parts of six others. Fodder is sufficient except in one district and in parts of eight others. Prices are stationary or have fallen in the majority of cases.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

AGRICULTURE.

Simla, the 11th October, 1918.

RESOLUTION.

The Government of India have decided to discontinue further purchases of wheat for export overseas other than (1) wheat which is absolutely necessary on military and Government account and (2) supplies to Mesopotamia; and they have under consideration the question of reducing these commitments. The Government of India further purpose to exercise closer control over the export of all other kinds of food grains. These decisions, which have been taken in order to conserve for use in the deficit provinces in India such supplies of wheat and other foodstuffs as are not immediately required for local consumption in those provinces which have a surplus, are now to be supplemented by further measures designed to secure the most effective distribution to deficit provinces of the supplies of wheat, rice and subsequently of other foodstuffs, which are not required for local consumption in the surplus provinces. For this purpose the Government of India propose to set up a single executive authority, working directly under them, to be designated the Foodstuffs Commissioner. When the Government of India have, after consultation with the various Provincial Governments, decided what quantities of foodstuffs are available for transfer from time to time from surplus to deficit provinces, and the maximum prices at which such foodstuffs should be purchased, the Foodstuffs Commissioner will arrange, through the Agency of selected commercial firms, for the purchase of the foodstuffs in question and their despatch to the destinations and consignees indicated by the Directors of Civil Supplies in the deficit provinces.

2. Initially the operations of the Foodstuffs Commissioner will be directed to the question of supplies of wheat and rice, in respect of which there are already in full working order the two agencies represented by the Wheat Commissioner, whose headquarters are in Karachi, and the Rice Commissioner in Burma. These two agencies will continue to work, generally speaking, on their present lines as regards purchases of wheat and rice, and will in addition exercise such other functions as may be allotted to them by the Foodstuffs Commissioner to whom they will in future be subordinate.

3. It will be a primary condition of supplies to dealers in deficit provinces that they should be licensed by the Director of Civil Supplies, or other local authority, and that the grant and continuance of such licenses shall be conditional on the holder selling within such prices as the Local Government may fix, with due regard to the prices previously fixed for purchases by the Foodstuffs Commissioner. It will also be within the discretion of Local Governments, if they think this necessary, to arrange for the opening of Government and municipal depots or shops for the sale of foodstuffs at fixed prices.

4. Under this scheme it is contemplated that licenses for the export of wheat and rice, and subsequently of other foodstuffs shall not be granted by the Director of Civil Supplies of any surplus province save in respect of purchases made through the Foodstuffs Commissioners; nor shall the Director of Civil Supplies in any deficit province issue licenses for import in respect of articles under the control of the Foodstuffs Commissioner to a larger aggregate amount than the total quantity of such articles allotted by the Government of India for import into such province.

5. The essence of this scheme is inter-provincial allotment, the fixing and control of the quantities to be supplied by surplus to deficit provinces, the control within each province of arrangements for distribution and sale and the appointment of a Foodstuffs Commissioner as an essential link between Local Governments and the Government of India and as the authority to arrange for the purchase and despatch of foodstuffs from one province to another.

6. The Foodstuffs Commissioner will enter on his functions at the beginning of November, and the Governor General in Council has selected for this post Mr. M. M. S. Gubbay, C.S.I., C.I.E., by reason of his financial experience and ability, and his successful management of the somewhat analogous Wheat Scheme of 1915-16. Pending the assumption of his duties by Mr. Gubbay, steps are being taken to give such immediate effect as is possible to the scheme formulated in this Resolution.

ORDERED that a copy of this Resolution be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations; to the Agent to the Governor General in Central India; to the several Departments of the Government of India; to the Wheat Commissioner for India; to the Rice Commissioner in Burma; to the Secretary to the Central Transport and Foodstuffs Board; to the Secretary to the Communications Board; to the Publicity Board; to the Controller of Traffic; and to Mr. M. M. S. Gubbay, C.S.I., C.I.E., I.C.S.

ORDERED also that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India for general information.

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Patent Office Handbook (price one rupee) which contains the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary Rules) Act, 1915, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary) Rules, 1915, together with current regulations and instructions. These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs or on their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. For information regarding patents in countries other than India applications should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration. Neither does this Act deal with pictures, photographs, etc., for which copyright is obtainable under the Indian Copyright Act, 1914.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

FOREIGN AND POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 16th October 1918.

No. 3336-I.C.—The following correspondence is published for general information.

J. B. WOOD,

Political Secretary to the Government of India.

Kharita, dated Simla, the 25th April 1918.

From—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India,

To—LIEUTENANT-GENERAL HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS ASAF JAH MUZAFFAR-UL-MULK WAL MAMALIK, NIZAM-UL-MULK NIZAM-UD-DAULA, NAWAB MIR SIR USMAN ALI KHAN, BAHADUR, FATEH JANG, G.C.S.I., G.B.E., Nizam of Hyderabad.

After compliments.—I have much pleasure in transmitting to your Exalted Highness the enclosed letter from His Imperial Majesty the King, Emperor of India, addressed to Your Exalted Highness in which His Imperial Majesty has been graciously pleased to confer on you the special style of "Exalted Highness" and to confirm to you formally the honourable title of "Faithful Ally of the British Government."

His Imperial Majesty's letter is an abiding testimony to the loyal assistance which Your Exalted Highness has rendered during the war and a signal token of the friendship which has existed for so long between the British Government and Your Exalted Highness's illustrious House.

In offering to Your Exalted Highness my warmest congratulations on this mark of His Imperial Majesty's favour, I desire once more to express my deep gratitude for the staunch and generous assistance which I have received from Your Exalted Highness during the past two years.

BUCKINGHAM PALACE,

24th January 1918.

Your Exalted Highness,

It has given me great satisfaction to show my appreciation of the eminent services which you have rendered to my Empire during the war by conferring on you the special style of "Exalted Highness" and by confirming to you formally the honourable title of "Faithful Ally of the British Government" by which Your Exalted Highness and your predecessors have long emphasized your loyalty to my ancestors and myself.

Following the high example of your illustrious predecessors at the time of the signature of the early treaties between the British Government and the Hyderabad State, and afterwards in the days of the Indian Mutiny, Your Exalted Highness has again given in your own person clear proof of your right to bear that historic title. In the prominent position enjoyed by Your Exalted Highness as the leading Muhammadan Prince of India, your loyalty was displayed in the early months of the present war by the issue of a proclamation enjoining on your subjects and impressing on your co-religionists throughout India the duty of firm and steadfast devotion to my Throne and Empire.

The munificent contributions made by Your Exalted Highness from time to time for objects connected with the war have borne striking and public testimony to the strength of the enduring bond which unites the destinies of Great Britain and Hyderabad.

Trusting that Your Exalted Highness may long continue to enjoy health and prosperity, I sign myself

Your sincere friend, and Emperor,

GEORGE R. I.

Kharita, dated Hyderabad, Deccan, the 23rd May 1918.

From—LIEUTENANT-GENERAL HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS ASAF JAH MUZAFFAR-UL-MULK WAL MAMALIK, NIZAM-UL-MULK NIZAM-UD-DAULA, NAWAB MIR SIR USMAN ALI KHAN, BAHADUR, FATEH JANG, G.C.S.I., G.B.E., Nizam of Hyderabad,

To—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India.

After compliments.—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of Your Excellency's Kharita, dated the 25th April 1918, enclosing a letter from His Imperial Majesty the King, Emperor of India, conferring the special style of "Exalted Highness," and confirming formally the honourable title of "Faithful Ally of the British Government."

I enclose herein my reply, which I hope will be duly transmitted to His Imperial Majesty.

I am exceedingly obliged to Your Excellency for your kind congratulations which I highly appreciate.

I was glad to see from the newspapers that the recent War Conference at Delhi passed off successfully, and I take this opportunity of expressing my deep appreciation of the way in which Your Excellency laid the situation before the Princes and people of India. With respect to the demonstration of unity which the Conference has called forth, I can only repeat the assurance of my State's co-operation and practical support.

HYDERABAD,

DECCAN.

23rd May 1918.

Your Imperial Majesty,

I desire to offer to Your Imperial Majesty my loyal and sincere thanks for the gracious letter, dated the 24th January 1918, which I have had the honour to receive through His Excellency the Viceroy, conferring on me the special style of "Exalted Highness" and confirming formally the honourable and historical title of "Faithful Ally of the British Government."

It is a matter of supreme gratification to me that whatever services I, following in the footsteps of my ancestors, have been able to render to Your Imperial Majesty's Crown during the present war, should have met with this signal recognition at the hands of the Emperor himself.

There was nothing of which my late lamented father was more proud, than being styled "The Faithful Ally of the British Government." And the formal confirmation of this title is therefore an honour which I shall always prize very highly. I am led to value this title all the more by the admiration we feel at the glorious part which is being played by the mighty British Empire in the present struggle to preserve the freedom and civilization of the world. The longer the war lasts the closer will be drawn the bonds uniting the Princes of India with your Imperial Majesty's Throne, Person and Government, and with the assurance that my State will always be ready and willing in every way to assist according to its means the Government of Your Imperial Majesty,

I beg to subscribe myself Your Imperial Majesty's sincere Friend and the Faithful Ally of the British Government.

MIR OSMAN ALI KHAN,

Nizam of Hyderabad.

His Imperial Majesty

King-Emperor of India.

COTTON PRESS RETURN

No. 24 OF 1917-18.

PREFATORY NOTE.

THE COTTON SEASON, 1917-18.

The yield of the cotton crop of 1917-18 was estimated in February, 1918, at 4,035,000 bales on an area of 24,781,000 acres, as compared with 4,489,000 bales on an area of 21,745,000 acres, the revised final figures of the preceding year. There was a decrease of 10 per cent in outturn. There were 1,675,000 bales of cotton pressed in the pressing factories, and 541,000 bales of unpressed cotton received in the spinning mills, from 1st September, 1917, to 31st August, 1918, as against 2,169,000 bales and 527,000 bales, respectively, during the corresponding period of last year, showing a decrease of 23 per cent in the case of presses, but an increase of 3 per cent in the case of mills. Too much stress should not be laid on the accuracy of these returns as a means of checking the forecast estimates of outturn, as there is at present no system in vogue of furnishing complete returns from all presses and mills. The figures for the Native States of Hyderabad, Central India, Rajputana, and Mysore are, as will be seen from the footnotes to the tables, mostly incomplete and have been excluded from this comparison.

REWARDS.

No. 2473—The revised Statutes of the Distinguished Service Order are published below:—

GEORGE R I.

GEORGE THE FIFTH, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting;

Whereas Her late Majesty Our Beloved Grandmother Queen Victoria by a Warrant dated the 6th day of September 1886 did institute and create a new Naval and Military Order of Distinction designated the Distinguished Service Order for the purpose of rewarding individual instances of meritorious or distinguished service in war;

And Whereas the said Royal Warrant was subsequently amended by Royal Warrants dated 24th July 1902, 2nd July 1905, 15th October 1903 and 23rd August 1916,

And Whereas it is Our Royal Will and Pleasure that the Officers of Our recently constituted Air Force shall be eligible for appointment to Our said Distinguished Service Order;

And Whereas We deem it expedient that all amendments to the Statutes of Our said Order heretofore promulgated, or now to be promulgated, shall be incorporated in a Royal Warrant under Our Sign Manual;

Now Therefore We do hereby declare that the rules and ordinances heretofore in force for the government of Our said Order shall be abrogated, cancelled and annulled, and We are graciously pleased to make, ordain and establish the following rules and ordinances in substitution for the same, which shall henceforth be inviolably observed and kept;

Firstly: It is ordained that this Order shall henceforth be styled and designated the "Distinguished Service Order"

Secondly: It is ordained that the Order shall consist of the Sovereign, and of such Members or Companions as We, Our Heirs or Successors, shall appoint.

Thirdly: It is ordained that We, Our Heirs and Successors, Kings and Queens, Regnant of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Emperors and Empresses of India, are and for ever shall be Sovereigns of this Order

Fourthly: It is ordained that no person shall be eligible for this distinction who doth not actually hold at the time of his nomination, a Commission in Our Navy, in Our Land Forces or Marines, in Our Air Force or in Our Indian or Colonial Naval or Military Forces, or a Commission in one of the Departments of Our Navy, Army or Air Force, the holder of which is entitled to Honorary or relative Navy, Army or Air Force rank; nor shall any person be nominated unless his services shall have been marked by the especial mention of his name, by the Admiral or Senior Naval Officer Commanding a Squadron or detached Naval Force, or by the Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in the Field, in despatches for meritorious or distinguished service in the field, or before the enemy.

Fifthly: It is ordained that Foreign Officers who have been associated in Naval, Military or Aerial operations with Our Forces shall be eligible to be Honorary Members of this Order.

Sixthly: It is ordained that when We, Our Heirs and Successors, shall be pleased to appoint any person to be a Member of this Order, such appointment shall be made by Warrant under Our Sign Manual, and countersigned by one of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

Seventhly: It is ordained that anyone who, after having performed services for which this Order is awarded, subsequently performs an approved act of gallantry which, if he had not received the Order, would have entitled him to it, shall be awarded a Bar to be attached to the ribbon by which the Badge is suspended, and for every additional such act an additional Bar may be added.

Eighthly: It is ordained that an Officer shall be appointed to this Order, that is to say, a Secretary and Registrar.

Ninthly: It is ordained that the Secretary and Registrar of this Order shall be appointed by Us, Our Heirs and Successors, and shall have the custody of the archives of the Order. He shall attend to the service of the Order and shall execute such directions as he may receive from our Principal Secretary of State for War.

Tenthly: It is ordained that this Order shall rank next to and immediately after our Order of the British Empire, and that the Companions thereof shall in all places and assemblies whatsoever have place and precedence next to and immediately after the Commanders of Our said Order of the British Empire and shall rank among themselves according to the date of their respective nominations.

Eleventhly: It is ordained that the Badge of the Order shall consist of a gold cross, enamelled white, edged gold, having on one side thereof in the centre, within a wreath a laurel enamelled green, the Imperial Crown in gold upon a red enamelled ground and on the reverse, within a similar wreath and on a similar red ground, the Royal Cypher, and shall be suspended from the left breast by a red riband, edged blue, of one inch in width.

Twelfthly. It is ordained that the names of those whom We may be pleased to admit to Membership of this Order shall be published in the London Gazette, and a registry thereof kept in the Office of Our Secretary of State for War.

Thirteenthly: In order to make such additional provision as shall effectively preserve pure this honourable distinction, it is ordained that if any person admitted to Membership of this Order shall be convicted of treason, cowardice, felony, or of any infamous crime, or if he be accused of any such offence and doth not after a reasonable time surrender himself to be tried for the same, his name shall be erased, by an Order under the Royal Sign Manual, from the register of Members of the said Order. And it is hereby declared that We, Our Heirs and Successors, shall be the sole judge of the conduct which may require the erasure from the register of the name of the offending person, and that it shall at all times be competent for Us, Our Heirs and Successors, to restore the name if such restoration should be justified by the circumstances of the case.

Lastly: We reserve to Ourselves, Our Heirs and Successors, full power of annulling, altering, abrogating, augmenting, interpreting or dispensing with these Regulations or any part thereof by a notification under the Sign Manual of the Sovereign of the Order.

Given at Our Court at St. James's this first day of April, in the eighth year of Our Reign, and in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen.

By His Majesty's Command,

MILNER.

No. 2474—The Governor General in Council is pleased to announce that His Majesty the King Emperor has approved the grant of a Recruiting Badge, for which Indians only will be eligible, to selected Indian serving soldiers, military pensioners and civilians for recruiting work during the War.

2. The Badge consists of a five-pointed bronze star enclosing a gilt plaque bearing an effigy of His Majesty; the plaque is surrounded by a wreath bearing the inscription "For recruiting work during the War."

3. The Badge will be worn only with plain clothes, except when attending a Durbar on which occasion it may be worn in full dress suspended by a gilt ring to a dark green ribbon 27 inches in length worn round the neck.

4. The conferment of the Badge will not carry with it any title, alphabetical letters, or privilege other than that of wearing it.

5. Subsidiary instructions with regard to the distribution of the Badge will be issued separately.

No. 2475—His Excellency the Governor General of India has been pleased to confer the Volunteer Officers' Decoration upon Honorary Colonel Percy Bingham Arbuthnot, 35th East Coast Battalion, Indian Defence Force.

No. 2476—The Governor General in Council is pleased to sanction the grant of the following reward for devotion to duty in the field:—

Admission to the 2nd class of the Order of British India with the title of "Bahadur"

Mirza Kader Beg, Captain in the 1st Hyderabad Imperial Service Lancers, Imperial Service Troops.

This appointment will be supernumerary to the authorised establishment.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
12th October 1918.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general throughout the Province. It was light in Lower Burma and good in Upper Burma. Replanting of the flooded areas is progressing in Lower Burma. Gathering of groundnuts, picking of cotton and cultivation of miscellaneous dry crops in Upper Burma are proceeding. Standing crops are in good condition. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice has risen further to Rs. 165 per hundred baskets and is much above normal. The market for white rice is strong at Rs. 426 per hundred baskets for specials.

Assam.—The weather during the week was seasonable. Transplantation of winter rice has been finished, manufacture of tea and ploughing for mustard and matikalai are in progress. Prospects of crops are fair to good. Cattle disease is reported from three districts. The price of common rice is practically unchanged.

Bengal.—The week was almost rainless. Standing crops are suffering for want of rain. Weeding of winter paddy has been finished. Cutting, steeping and washing of jute are approaching completion. Lands are being prepared for cultivation of spring crops. Scarcity of fodder is reported from Dinajpur. The average price of common rice has risen by about 1.5 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—There was no rain during the week. Harvesting of autumn crops has been nearly completed. Rain is urgently wanted for winter paddy which is withering on high lands and on unirrigated areas in many districts especially in those of the Orissa, Chota Nagpur and Patna divisions. Prospects of standing crops are bad. Preparation of lands for spring sowings has also been retarded. The price of common rice has risen in nine districts, fallen in seven and remained stationary in the remaining districts as compared with that of the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from ten districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is generally fair but more rain is badly wanted in almost all the States.

United Provinces.—The week was rainless except for a slight fall at Sitapur. Rain is urgently wanted everywhere. Standing crops are withering generally for want of rain. Prospects are mostly unfavourable. Land is being prepared for spring crops and irrigation of autumn crops and sugarcane is going on where possible. Picking of cotton continues. Very little cattle disease is reported. The condition of agricultural stock is fair. Fodder is becoming scarce in places. Water and market supplies are generally sufficient. Prices are almost stationary with a tendency to rise.

Punjab.—During the week the weather remained dry almost throughout the Province. Rain is badly wanted everywhere. Standing crops are suffering from drought, especially on unirrigated areas. Their present condition is average to good on irrigated and much below average on unirrigated areas. Picking of cotton and reaping of rice, maize and fodder continue with yield below normal to normal. Spring crops are being sown. The area sown is below normal to normal. Cattle are generally healthy and water is sufficient. Shortage of fodder is reported from some districts. Prices are generally stationary and are above scarcity rates. Price of wheat:—Ferozepore, Lahore and Rawalpindi 6½ and Lyallpur 6½ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—During the week some showers fell in one district. Sowing of spring crops is proceeding in places. Prospects of standing crops are average on irrigated and below average on unirrigated areas in Peshawar and Bannu and poor in Dera Ismail Khan owing to want of rain. Harvesting of rice in Peshawar and picking of cotton in Peshawar and Bannu are proceeding with outturn average. Prices of wheat in Peshawar are 7½ and in Dera Ismail Khan 7½ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—No rain fell during the week. Prices are stationary.

Kashmir.—During the week the weather was generally rainy and cold. Crops are being harvested and the outturn will probably be below normal. Prices are high. Cattle are generally healthy.

Rajputana.—The weather during the week was rainless. Irrigated crops are in fair condition but unirrigated crops are withering. The condition of cattle is generally fair. Fodder is getting scarce. Water is sufficient. Prices are high and are rising.

Central India.—During the week the rainfall was insufficient in Gwalior, Baghelkhand and Bundelkhand. Autumn crops are being weeded and harvested. Preparation of land for and sowing of spring crops are in progress except in Bundelkhand where the operations have been stopped for want of rain. Standing crops are withering in Gwalior, parts of Indore and Bundelkhand and in parts of Bhopal. They are below average in Baghelkhand and fair to good elsewhere. Their probable outturn is average in Bhopal, below average in Baghelkhand, fair to good in the Southern States and Indore if rain falls. They have been damaged in Baghelkhand, Bundelkhand and Gwalior (north) for want of rain. Agricultural stock is in fair to good condition. Scarcity of fodder is extending gradually in Gwalior. Prices are high. Scarcity is apprehended in Bundelkhand and in the Nagod State in Baghelkhand.

Central Provinces.—The days are clear and warm but the nights and the mornings are cool. During the week no rain fell anywhere. Autumn crops particularly on light soils are deteriorating for want of rain. Reaping of minor crops and of early rice continues and picking of cotton has begun in parts of Nagpur and Berar. Preparation of land for the sowing of spring crops is in progress and sowings have been started in several districts but the continued drought has considerably retarded the operations. Relief works are proceeding in the Sironcha tahsil. Cattle disease prevails in a sporadic form in parts of four districts. The supply of fodder is inadequate in Berar. The price of wheat and rice in Narsinghpur and of rice in Buldana rose and that of juar fell in Bhandara by one seer per rupee. Elsewhere prices remained stationary or fluctuated slightly exhibiting an upward tendency.

Penodatory States.—Rain is urgently required everywhere to save the crops from withering and to push on spring operations.

Bombay.—Moderately good rain fell during the week in parts of the Karnatak, Ratnagiri and Kanara. The fall was very slight in Kathiawar and the Deccan. More rain is generally needed. Standing crops have been damaged slightly by rats and winds in Karachi, by rats in Hyderabad, by winds in Nasik and by blight in Nawabshah. They are withering generally everywhere except in parts of Kanara, the Karnatak and Ahmadnagar where the recent rainfall has slightly improved the situation. Preparation for the sowing of spring crops continues in parts of Sind. Sowing of spring crops continues in parts of the South, the Deccan, the Karnatak, Baroda and Kolhapur. Harvesting of autumn crops continues in parts of Sind, the Konkan, Surat, the Deccan and Baroda. The fodder supply is generally deficient but pasture has improved in some districts. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient but cattle are deteriorating in parts of Karachi, Hyderabad, Ahmedabad, Kaira, Satara and Kolhapur. Irrigation is deficient in parts of Sind, Kaira, Surat, Poona, Dharwar and Sholapur. The Indus gauge is 3½ feet against 7 feet on the same date last year. Prices of food grains are very high but steady.

Hyderabad.—Slight showers were received during the week. The average fall was 5 cpts. Autumn crops are in fair to good condition and are being harvested. Early rice is in fair to good condition but needs rain. Spring crops are being sown generally. Cattle are healthy. Fodder scarcity prevails in parts of four districts. Prices of grains are abnormally high. Juar is selling at three seers per rupee in the Bir, Nander, Parbhani and Gulbarga districts.

Mysore.—The week was slightly wet. Weeding operations are in progress. Standing crops are withering for want of rain. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are stationary.

Coorg.—Moderate rain fell during the week. Rain is insufficient in parts. Picking of cardamom continues. Reaping of dry crops in north Coorg continues. Cattle disease prevails in some villages. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient. The public health is fair. Prices of food grains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was good in Coimbatore, Trichinopoly, Pudukkottai, Madura, Malabar, Cochin and the hills, fair in Ramnad, Tinnevely and South Kanara and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair condition generally but are withering in parts and require rain immediately. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is limited with outturn fair generally but poor in two districts and in parts of ten others. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding but are restricted in parts for want of more rain. The condition of cattle is generally good. Water is insufficient except in four districts. Pasture is sufficient except in three districts and in parts of five others. Fodder is sufficient except in one district and in parts of eight others. Prices are stationary or have fallen generally but show a tendency to rise in places.

Such officers will, on passing the examination, be entitled to a reward of Rs. 500.

9. The following officers who, while serving in other Provinces, have passed an examination according to Appendix A or Appendix B to these rules, as the case may be, or an equivalent examination, shall, on appointment to a locality where the allowance is admissible, be entitled to the following allowances and rewards:

(a) the officers mentioned in rule 1-I (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f) and (g), to the allowances specified in rule 3.

(b) the officers mentioned in rules 4(a), (b) and (c), and 6 to the rewards to which they would have been entitled had they passed the examination when serving in the North-West Frontier Province provided that they have not already received such reward;

(c) the officers mentioned in rule 4 (d), to the allowance to which they would have been entitled under rule 5 had they passed the examination while serving in the North-West Frontier Province or to the reward admissible under paragraph 376, Army Regulations, India, Volume I, provided that they have not already received such reward; but in the event of their having already received such reward outside the North-West Frontier Province or in the North-West Frontier Province previous to the 29th November 1917, they may be permitted to refund the reward and draw the allowance under rule 3, this refund being made by forgoing the monthly allowance for the requisite number of months. Advantage may not, however, be taken of the option above allowed to draw the allowance with effect from an earlier date than the 22nd March 1916.

10. No officer who is eligible for an allowance under these rules will be permitted to draw it until he has refunded the lump sum reward if any, that he has already received for the same, or an equivalent, examination held on or after the 31st April 1917. This refund may be made by forgoing the monthly allowance for the requisite number of months.

APPENDIX A.

I.—The following are prescribed as text-books for the examination —

- | | | |

| (1) Ganj-i Pakhtu | } | As given in the Kalid-i-Afghani |
| (2) Tarikh-i Mahmud-i-Ghaznavi | | |

II. The following are the subjects of the examination and the marks allotted to each :—

First day.

Examination in the colloquial consisting of Marks.

(a) Translation aud voce and with readiness a paper of conversational sentences	100
(b) Conversation with a native of the country with fluency and such correctness of grammar, idiom and pronunciation as to be at once intelligible	100

Second day

(c) A written translation of a passage in narrative or historic style from English into Pashtu	100
(d) Reading and construing portions of the text-book	100

Candidates who fail in either of the colloquial tests on the first day will be liable to be excluded from the examination on the second day.

III.—No candidate will be held to have passed the examination who does not obtain half-marks on the whole at least 50 marks in the conversational sentences [subject (a)], and at least 50 marks in the conversation with a native. No candidate will be held to have passed with credit who does not obtain at least 65 marks in each of the four subjects, and at least 200 in the total. The object of Government is to ensure a good colloquial knowledge of the language, and consequently no officer will be considered to have passed the examination, however thorough his grammatical knowledge may be, unless he is able to converse fluently with the people.

IV.—Examinations will be held at Peshawar, Dehra Ismail Khan, Lahore Cantonment, Gilgit and Chitral twice a year, on the first Monday in April and on the last Monday in October and the following days.

V. All officers in civil and military employ, who may wish to attend the Pashtu examination, must forward their applications, through their superior officers, to the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor General, North-West Frontier Province, or the Commissioner of the Lahore Division, or the Resident in Kashmir, or the Political Agent for Dir, Swat and Chitral, according as they desire to be examined at Peshawar, Dehra Ismail Khan, Lahore Cantonment, Gilgit, or Chitral, not less than a month before the time fixed for the examination. The foregoing part of the rule is not intended to give candidates the option of selecting any of the five places at which examinations are held, as a rule they must present themselves for examination at the place nearest to the station at which they are residing.

VI.—For the conduct of these half-yearly examinations, the following Committee will be appointed

By the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, North West Frontier Province—

- (a) A Central Committee to assemble at Peshawar, consisting of a President and four members, one of whom shall be an Indian whose vernacular language is Pashtu.
 (b) A Local Committee to assemble at Dera Ismail Khan, consisting of a President and two members.

By the Commissioner of Lahore—

- (c) A Local Committee to assemble at Lahore Cantonment, consisting of a President and two members.

By the Resident in Kashmir—

- (d) A Local Committee to assemble at Gilgit, consisting of a President and two members.

By the Political Agent for Dir, Swat and Chitral—

- (e) A Local Committee to assemble at Chitral, consisting of a President and two members.

VII.—Officers who are in receipt of a monthly allowance for having passed this examination, or who are otherwise eligible for the allowance, but are debarred from drawing it because their substantive pay amounts to Rs. 1,500 a month or more (Rs. 1,600 a month or more in the case of officers of the Political Department of the Government of India) shall, when available, be employed as examiners for the conduct of this examination and of the examination according to Appendix B, and shall not be entitled to any remuneration in respect of such examinations. When such officers are not available, other duly qualified persons, whether officials or non-officials, may be employed and shall be entitled to rewards at the following rates :—

European Examiner.

A minimum honorarium of Rs. 100, and, when the number of candidates for examination exceeds ten, an additional honorarium of Rs. 10 for each candidate in excess of that number.

Indian Examiner.

A minimum honorarium of Rs. 50, and, when the number of candidates for examination exceeds ten, an additional honorarium of Rs. 6 for each candidate in excess of that number.

VIII.—The Central Committee shall set the papers and arrange for having them printed. The Central Committee shall also be responsible for sending a sufficient number to the Local Committees at Dera Ismail Khan, Lahore Cantonment, Gilgit, and Chitral. The Committees at Dera Ismail Khan, Lahore Cantonment, Gilgit, and Chitral shall examine only in subjects (b) and (d) mentioned in Rule II of this Appendix, and shall report to the Central Committee the marks given in those subjects, forwarding at the same time the written translations of the candidates in the case of subject (c), and the rendering of the colloquial sentences [subject (a)], which shall be taken down by the Board in the Roman characters as the candidate repeats each sentence. With the rendering of the colloquial sentences shall be forwarded the remarks made by the Local Committee on the candidates' fluency and accent, with their recommendations as to the marks to be awarded to each. The Central Committee shall assign marks in all subjects for candidates examined at Peshawar, and in subjects (a) and (c), for candidates examined at Dera Ismail Khan, Lahore Cantonment, Gilgit and Chitral, and shall report the results of the examinations to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, North-West Frontier Province, for publication in the Gazette of India.

APPENDIX B.

I.—The following are the subjects of the examination and the marks allotted to each :—

	Marks.
(a) Translation word for word and with readiness a paper of conversational sentences read out by one of the examiners	100
(b) Conversation with a native of the country with fluency and such accuracy of grammar, pronunciation and idiom as to be at once intelligible	100
	<hr/> 200

Order to pass the examination candidates must obtain half marks in each subject.

IV—The examination will be held at Peshwar twice a year, on or about the first Monday in April and the last Monday in October. Candidates will be examined in colloquial Pashtu only, but the examination will be searching.

III—Such officer as the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, North-West Frontier Province may appoint, shall be President of the Committee of examination in Pashtu of Indian Extra Assistant Commissioners, Tahsildars and others referred to in Rule 6, and the President shall, with the previous concurrence of the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, North-West Frontier Province, appoint two further members of the examining Committee, one of whom shall be an Indian whose vernacular language is Pashtu, and the other an officer who shall have passed the examination according to Appendix A.

IV—Officers who are in receipt of a monthly allowance for having passed the examination according to Appendix A, or who are otherwise eligible for the allowance, but are debarred from drawing it because their substantive pay amounts to Rs. 1,500 a month or more (Rs. 1,600 a month or more in the case of officers of the Political Department of the Government of India) shall, when available, be employed as examiners for the conduct of this examination and shall not be entitled to any remuneration in respect of such examination. When such officers are not available other duly qualified persons whether officials or non-officials, may be employed, and shall be entitled to rewards at the following rates:—

European Examiner—Rs. 10 per candidate

Indian Examiner—Rs. 6 per candidate.

V. Candidates who may wish to attend the Pashtu examination must forward their applications, through their superior officers, to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, North West Frontier Province, not less than a month before the time fixed for the examination.

VI—The Committee of Examiners shall report the results of the examinations, with the marks obtained by the candidates, to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, North-West Frontier Province.

IMPORT AND EXPORT REGULATIONS.

The 26th October, 1918

No. 11730—The following War Trade Department list, dated the 6th August 1918, of goods the export of which from the United Kingdom is prohibited or restricted, is published for general information :—

WAR TRADE DEPARTMENT,

4, CENTRAL BUILDINGS,

WESTMINSTER, S.W. 1.

6th August, 1918.

List of goods the export of which is prohibited by the Royal Proclamation of the 10th May, 1917, as amended by Orders of Council of the 22nd June, 1917, the 13th July, 1917, the 14th August, 1917, the 28th August, 1917, the 18th October, 1917, the 27th November, 1917, the 18th December, 1917, the 22nd January, 1918, the 8th February, 1918, the 26th February, 1918, the 8th March, 1918, the 12th April, 1918, the 25th April, 1918, the 14th May, 1918, the 11th June, 1918, the 2nd July, 1918, the 30th July, 1918, and the 6th August, 1918, to be exported from the United Kingdom to the following Destinations, viz. :—

Goods marked (A) to All Destinations ;

Goods marked (B) to All Ports and Destinations Abroad other than Ports and Destinations in British Possessions and Protectorates ;

Goods marked (C) to all Destinations in European and Asiatic Russia and in other Foreign Countries in Europe and on the Mediterranean, except France and French Possessions, Italy and Italian Possessions, and Portugal, and to all Ports in any such Foreign Countries.

The dates appended to various prohibitions are those of Orders of Council imposing or amending those prohibitions since the Royal Proclamation of 10th May, 1916. Where no date appears it may be assumed that the prohibition stands as it did on the 10th May, 1916.

List E (page 1706).—Goods specially prohibited by Royal Proclamation of the 25th June, 1918, to be exported to Switzerland. The goods in this list are consignable to the Société Suisse de Surveillance Economique. It must be understood, however, that all goods mentioned in the General List, pages 1088-1706, are prohibited to be exported to Switzerland whether mentioned in List E or not. Goods mentioned in the General List but not in List E are not consignable to the Société Suisse de Surveillance Economique.

List F (page 1714).—Goods specially prohibited by Royal Proclamation of the 29th September, 1917, to be exported to Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Holland.

Orders of Council issued subsequently to the date of this list are published in the "Board of Trade Journal," which may be obtained either directly or through any bookseller from the undermentioned branches of H. M. Stationery Office :—

London : Imperial House, Kingsway, W.C. 2 ;

Cardiff : 1, St. Andrew's Crescent ;

Manchester : 37, Peter Street ;

Edinburgh : 23, Forth Street ; or from Messrs. E. Ponsonby, Ltd., 115, Grafton Street, Dublin.

The attention of exporters is drawn to the fact that various articles marked B or C may, in view of the percentage of copper contained in them, be subject to the Copper Prohibition (List A) (See "Copper.")

Application must therefore be made to the War Trade Department for licences to export goods which fall within the aforementioned copper prohibition on account of the quantity of copper contained therein. Such applications should always indicate clearly the actual quantity of copper and/or copper alloys the goods contain.

Fuel, manufactured, see Coke.
Fuel oil, see Oil.
Furniture fittings, see Castings.
- (c) Furs and manufactures thereof (except Seal-skin Fur, which see) (12-3-17) (1-5-17).
- (A) Fusel oil (amyl alcohol).
(A) Fuses.
(A) Fustic (chips and extracts); (22-1-18).
- G.
- (A) Gall nuts and extracts thereof; (28-8-17).
(A) Galvanised sheets, corrugated or flat; (2-7-16) (10-5-17).
Galvanised wire, see Wire.
(A) Gambier and extracts thereof; (28-8-17).
(A) Game.
Gas carbon, see Carbon.
Gas mantles, see Incandescent, Mantles, Rame.
Gas masks, see Respirators.
Gasmeters, see Tinplate.
Gauges for cartridges and shells, see Implements, etc.
Gelatine, see Glue.
(A) Germanium root; (12-4-18).
(A) Gentian root; (10-5-17) (11-6-18).
Gilding solution, see Gold.
Gill pins, see Steel.
Gimlets, see Tools.
- (A) Ginger, crystallised or preserved; (2-2-17) (10-5-17).
- (A) Glass for optical instruments.
Glasses, Field, see Field.
- (B) Gloves made wholly or partly of leather, not otherwise specifically prohibited; (8-9-16) (23-10-16) (10-3-17) (12-4-18).
- (A) Gloves, men's, made wholly or partly of leather; (12-4-18).

- (A) Green forage; (12-12-18).
- (A) Green oil, and mixtures and preparations containing green oil; (26-7-16) (2-2-17):

(A) Grenades and component parts thereof; (10-5-17).

(A) Grindelia; (12-1-18).

Grindery, see Boots and Shoes, Material for.

(A) Grindstones; (8-9-16).

Ground nut, or earth nut cake and meal, see Cakes and Meals.

Ground nuts, see Oleaginous Kernels.

Groovers, see Boots and Shoes, Material for.

(B) Guaiacol and guaiacol carbonate.

(A) Guanos; (2-2-17).

(B) Gums containing caoutchouc.

(A) Gums not otherwise specifically prohibited; (1-5-17) (12-4-18).

Guns, see Cannon, Firearms, Machine.

Gun-metal, see Copper.

Gutta-percha, see Rubber.

(A) Guts; (19-2-17). See also Silkworm.

(A) Gutting cast iron, and cast iron gutter fittings and connections; (2-7-18).

H.

Hackle pins, see Steel.

Hacksaws and their component parts; see Tools.

(A) Hair, animal, and tops, nails, mixtures, waste, and yarns thereof; (8-9-16) (18-10-17).

(B) Hair, human, and tops, nails, mixtures, waste, and yarns thereof; (10-5-17) (14-8-17).

(B) Hair, all manufactures, mixtures and products of, except such as are prohibited to all destinations; (8-3-18).

Hair, see Belting; Blankets; Carpets; Feet; Rugs.

(C) Halogen derivatives of aliphatic hydrocarbons (except carbon tetrachloride, chloroform and iodoform, which see); (12-4-18).

(B) Hammers, not otherwise specifically prohibited; (12-3-17) (27-11-17); see also Tools, also Handles.

(A) Handles and helms for grubbers, pickaxes, spades, and shovels; (12-3-17).

(A) Handles for adzes, axes, forks (agricultural, stone, roadmaking, and coke), hammers (hand), hose, hooks (brushing and reaping), road scrapers and scythes; (27-11-17) (14-5-18).

(A) Harness and metal fittings therefor, see also Leather.

Harness and saddlery, materials and tools used in the manufacture of, the following (18-12-17):—

(A) Harness and saddlery making machines and their component parts;

(A) Harness and saddlery tools, hand and machine;

(A) Needles for harness and saddlery making machines.

Haricots, see Beans.

(A) Hatchets; (10-5-17) (14-5-18).

Hat hangers, see Castings.

Hawseers, see Steel.

(A) Hay.

(A) Hellographs and their component parts (2-7-18).

Hemp and hemp manufactures, the following:—

(A) Hemp ropes, old.

(A) Hemp waste.

(A) Hemp of all kinds (including Indian hemp used in textile manufacture), Maguey fibre and manufactures thereof, except Tagalbraid; (8-3-18).

(C) Tagalbraid; (7-6-16) (29-9-16) (23-10-16) (17-11-16).

See also Indian Hemp

Hempseed, see Oleaginous Kernels.

Hempseed cake and meal, see Cakes and Meals.

(B) Henbane and its preparations; (10-5-17).

(A) Hexamethylene tetramin (urotropine) and its compounds and preparations; (11-6-18).

(A) Hides of cattle, buffaloes and horses.

(A) Hides and pelts, clippings of; (1-12-16) (14-5-18).

Hides and pelts untanned, see also Gluestock, etc.

Hides, manufactures of, the following:—

(A) Pickers and drop box pickers; (14-8-17) (4-3-18).

(B) Pinions, centres and other goods manufactured from hide, suitable for textile machinery, not otherwise specifically prohibited; (14-8-17) (4-3-18).

Hinges, see Castings.

Hods, see Hollow-ware.

Hoe handles—see Handles.

Hollow-ware, wrought made wholly or or partly from iron and steel sheet or plate the following (2-7-18):

Bottles, empty, brazers, cans, measures, scoops, pails, pans, riddles, skips, troughs and trunks;

Cisterns and tanks;

Domestic utensils;

Fountains;

Hods;

Hoppers, seed;

(A) Hominy.

Hooks, see Boots and Shoes, material for; Fish; Handles.

Hoppers, seed, see Hollow-ware.

(A) Horns, animal, and articles manufactured therefrom in which the total weight of horn exceeds fifty per cent of the total weight of the article (2-7-18).

Horse clippers, see Castings.

Horsehides, see Hides.

Horse rugs, see Rugs.

(B) Horse, mule, and pony shoes; (23-2-17).

Hosiery needles, see Needles.

Hosiery, see Cotton manufactures.

Hosiery, see Wool.

Hubnerite, see Tungsten Ores.

Hulk meal, see Cakes and Meals.

(B) Huts, wooden.

(A) Hydrastis canadensis and hydrastine; (22-6-17) (22-1-18) (12-1-19).

(A) Hydrobromic acid; (11-6-18).

(B) Hydrochloric acid.

(A) Hydrocyanic (prussic) acid and solutions thereof; (22-6-17).

(B) Hydrogen peroxide, (30-3-17).

(A) Hydroquinone, and mixtures containing hydroquinone.

I.

(A) Implements and apparatus designed exclusively for the manufacture of munitions of war, for the manufacture or repair of arms or of war material for use on land or sea, the following:—

Cordite presses;

- Dies for cartridge cases;
 Gauges for cartridges or shells;
 Incorporators;
 Lapping machines;
 Rifling machines;
 Wire winding machines
 Implements for cutting or fixing barbed wire, see Wire.
- (A) Incandescent gas mantle rings; (18-12-17)
 Incandescent mantles, see Mantles; Ramie Incorporators, see Implements.
- (B) Indian hemp (Cannabis indica), (27-11-17)
 (C) Indigo, natural; (6-5-18)
 (A) Indigo, synthetic; (6-5-18)
 Infusorial earth, see Diatomite
 (A) Ingot moulds manufactured of hæmatite iron; (14-5-18).
 (C) Insecticides, not otherwise prohibited; (22-6-17).
 Insulated cables, see Cables.
 Insulated wires, see Wires.
- (C) Insulating materials (28-6-16) (17-11-16) (2-2-17) (30-3-17), the following:—
 (C) Compounds intended for the purpose of electrical insulation;
 (C) Leatheroid;
 (A) Oiled insulating cloth, paper silk and tape; (14-5-18).
 (B) Vulcanised fibre; (14-5-18).
 See also Mica.
- (A) Invert sugar, and articles, mixtures and preparations containing invert sugar; (28-8-17)
 (C) Iodine and its compounds and preparations (except in form); (12-4-18).
 (A) Iodoform; (12-4-18).
 (A) Ipecacuanha root.
- (B) Iridium and its alloys and manufactures containing iridium; (12-12-16) (22-6-17) (27-11-17).
 (B) Iridium compounds; (27-11-17).
 Iron and steel casings and forgings for hulls and machinery of ships, see Shipbuilding Material.
- (A) Iron and iron articles containing chrome, cobalt, molybdenum, nickel, tungsten or vanadium; (1-5-17).
- Iron (1-5-17) the following:—
 (A) Angles, channels, joists, tees and other sectional material.
 (A) Bars, including flats, rounds and other sections and shapes.
 (A) Billets, blooms and slabs.
 Bins, see Bins.
 Bolts, see Bolts.

 Lamp fittings, see Castings.
 Lamps, see Electric; Signalling Tinplate.
- (B) Lanterns suitable for camp use.
 Lapping machines, see Implements.
- (A) Lard of all kinds and imitation lard (19-2-17) (10-5-17).
 Lasts, see Boots and Shoes, material for.
 Latch needles, see Needles.
 Lathe tools, see Tools, small.
- (A) Lead coated sheets; (15-8-16).
 (A) Lead ore; (18-10-17).

(A) Lead, lead alloys, and manufactures of lead or of lead alloys; (12-12-16) (30-3-17).

(A) Lead compounds and mixtures containing lead compounds; (30-3-17).

(A) Leather; (30-3-17).

Leather goods of the following descriptions:—(8-9-16) (30-3-17).

(A) Articles of personal equipment suitable for military purposes; (6-8-18).

(A) Bandoliers; (6-8-18).

(B) Belting, leather manufactures suitable for textile machinery (except pickers and drop box pickers, which see), and leathers cut or shaped for hydraulic or pump purposes; (18-10-17) (8-3-18).

(A) Belts; (6-8-18).

Boots, see Boots.

Gloves, see Gloves.

Hydraulic leather, see Belting above.

(A) Laces; (6-8-18).

(A) Pickers and drop box pickers (8-3-18).

(A) Pouches; (6-8-18).

Pump leather, see belting above.

Shoes, see Boots.

Textile machinery leather, see Belting above.

(B) Goods manufactured wholly or partly of leather, not otherwise prohibited; (19-2-17) (22-1-18).

(A) Waste, leather (8-3-18).

Leatheroid, see Insulating materials.

Leek seed, see Seeds.

(A) Lentil flour and meal.

(A) Lentils; (12-12-16).

Lettuce seed, see Seeds.

Levels, spirit, see Tools, small.

(A) Linen waste.

(A) Linoleum; (15-8-16) (22-1-18).

Linseed, see Oleaginous Kernels.

Linseed cake and meal, see Cakes and Meals.

(A) Liquorice roots and juice; (22-6-17) (11-6-18).

(C) Lithium; (22-6-17).

(C) Lithium compounds; (22-6-17).

Locomotives, see Railway Carriages.

Locust bean meal, see Cakes and meals.

(A) Logwood (chips, extract, and preparations); (22-1-18).

(A) Lubricants not otherwise specifically prohibited and articles and mixtures containing such lubricants; (22-3-17) (27-11-17).

Lupin seed, see Seeds.

(C) Lycopodium; (22-6-17).

M.

(A) Macaroni.

(A) Machine guns, mountings for machine guns, and component parts thereof.

(A) Machinery, agricultural or farming, and component parts thereof, including hand tools for agricultural or farm purposes; (26-7-16) (12-12-16) (12-3-17) (14-5-17) (18-10-17).

(C) Machinery, metal-working, and component parts and accessories thereof, not otherwise specifically prohibited; (27-11-17).

Machinery, Ships, see Shipbuilding material.

Machines, harness and saddlery making, see Harness.

Machines, shoemakers, see Boots and Shoes, material for.

(A) Magnesite and magnesite bricks.

(A) Magnesite, caustic or lightly calcined, and dead burnt magnesite.

(B) Magnesium chloride, and sulphate and mixtures containing magnesium chloride or sulphate.

(A) Magnesium and its alloys.

(A) Magnetos and component parts thereof; (10-5-17).

Manuey Fibre, see Hemp.

(A) Maize; (12-12-16).

(A) Maize germs; (12-12-16).

Maize germ meal, see Cakes and Meals.

 Colchicum and its preparations.
 Collodion.
 Colophony.
 Colts.
 Colza oil.
 Conicine.
 Copal gum.
 Copper: ore (including pyrites); pure metal and alloys of, in all forms; waste.
 Copper wires, including carbons for electricity containing copper, and including all metal articles containing 10 per cent. or more of copper or its alloys; enamelled or plated copper wares; perforated copper plates; copper leaf; insulated and non-insulated copper cables; insulated electrical copper wires; copper cables with lead sheath, or iron fittings; electrical cables of all kinds containing copper; copper trellis work; copper bolts, screws, nails, rivets; church and other bells; unfinished brass machine parts; brass valves and taps imported apart from their machines; copper or alloyed copper wares not otherwise specified, whether turned or not; bronze wares.
 Copper, suboxide of, and articles containing suboxide of copper.
 Copper, sulphate of.
 Copra butter.
 Copra oil.
 Cordage.
 Cordage (old).
 Cork in sheets, including cork unworked, waste and old corks.
 Corks worked, including corks.
 Cornflower.
 Corozo (vegetable ivory) nuts and buttons made thereof.
 Corundum, all forms.
 Cotton and cotton waste (including cotton yarn waste), carded or not; cotton wool.
 Cotton rags.
 Cotton-seed oil.
 Cotton stearine.
 Cotton tissues, all kinds, made up or otherwise.
 Cotton yarn.
 Cream.
 Cream of tartar.
 Creosote, wood.
 Creosote oil.
 Cresol and nitro-cresol, and their compounds and preparations.
 Crucibles.
 Cryolite.
 Crystalline.
 Cutch.
 Cyanides.
 Cycles and motor cycles and component parts.

- Cylinders and discs for phonographs and gramophones with or without impressions, new or old, broken or waste.
 Cylinders and receptacles of iron or steel for compressed or liquid gas.
 Damar gum.
 Dari.
 Dates.
 Datuline.
 Degras.
 Delphinine.
 Dental apparatus, teeth sets, and their accompaniments.
 Dental rubber, waxes, cement, and fillings.
 Dermatol.
 Detonators.
 Dextrines.
 Diamonds, cut or pierced for industrial use.
 Diamonds, industrial, including rough diamonds for cutting into Jewellery gems, and bort.
 Digitaine.
 Di-methyl-aniline.
 Distillers' grana, and residues from apples, raisins, or olives.
 Diuretic.
 Down.
 Drains, rubber.
 Draw-plates, jewelled.
 Dress protectors proofed.
 Dyeing substances, all kinds, except coal-tar dyes.
 Dynamite.
 Dynamos.
 Earth containing infusoria.
 Ebouite.
 Eggs.
 Eggs, preserved and egg yolk.
 Electrical appliances adapted for use in war, and their component parts.
 Electric fire-lighters.
 Electrical insulated wire and cables.
 Electric insulation, compositions or products, suitable for.
 Electrodes, (unmounted).
 Electrodes (mounted), piles and component parts.
 Emery, all forms including wheels and paper.
 Emetine and emetic salts.
 Engines (loc motive).
 Engines, marine and aerial, and parts.
 Equipment military.
 Erasers, rubber.
 Ether sulphuric and ether acetic.
 Eucaine, hydrochloride, eucaine (benzamine) lactate and their preparations.
 Explosives, gunpowder and similar explosives, nitroglycerine, dynamite, melinite, etc.
 Extracts, liquid and solid, for dyeing; extracts of colouring matter other than those derived from coal-tar.
 Extracts tanning.
 Extracts of meat.
 Farinaceous articles of all kinds being food-stuffs: wheat, rye, oats, barley, maize, buckwheat, grain, meal and flour, malt, bread and biscuits, groats, semolina, Italian paste, sago, salep, mandiocca and flour, tapioca and flour, rice of all kinds, dried vegetables of all kinds and their meal, chestnuts and flour, dari, millet, and alpiste, (long millet).

No. 2536.—The following rewards have been granted to the undermentioned for gallantry or devotion to duty in the field :—

Awarded the Military Cross.

Subadar Harnath Singh, I.O.M., Infantry.

During an attack at dawn on the 11th April 1918, when there were heavy casualties, he was the only Indian officer left in that portion of the line. He assumed command of two platoons, rallied the men and three times gallantly led them against the enemy. His utter disregard for personal safety greatly inspired the men and set a splendid example to all.

● Resaidar Bur Singh, Cavalry.

On the night of the 22nd-23rd May 1918, in a raid on enemy trenches he led the attack on the right hand post with great dash and resolution. Though only leading a troop, he did not hesitate to attack a post estimated to contain seventy-five or more of the enemy, under heavy machine gun and rifle fire at point blank range. His troop killed and wounded a large number of the enemy.

Jemadar Pola Khan, Infantry.

On the night of the 18th-19th June 1918 he was sent in command of a patrol of twelve other ranks. When nearing a village the patrol came across three of the enemy. The patrol called on the enemy to surrender, but this they showed no signs of doing making ready to throw bombs and open rifle fire. Seeing this Jemadar Pola Khan at once dashed forward, seizing the lumber with one hand and the rifle of another man with the other and calling on his men to follow. All three of the enemy were captured. On seeing these three men captured, a party of the enemy about thirty-five strong, who were apparently out as an ambush a short distance off, immediately charged, but were repulsed with loss. There is no doubt that but for Jemadar Pola Khan's cool courage and prompt action both in capturing the prisoners and conducting his fighting retirement with prisoners to guard, the patrol would have suffered badly, both in casualties and morale. He showed a splendid example and leadership, many of the men being under fire for the first time.

Awarded the Indian Order of Merit (1st Class)

Subadar Bahadur Thapa, I.O.M., Infantry.

For conspicuous gallantry during a night attack on a hill on the 11th April 1918. After the first assault had failed owing to the first line having become nearly all casualties, Subadar Bahadur Thapa crawled back to the second line in the dark, immediately led in another rush on the position. This attack also failed, but he rallied a party of slightly wounded and stragglers in the dark and led them to a third assault.

Awarded the Indian Order of Merit (2nd Class).

Jemadar Dhamraj Gurung, Infantry.

For most conspicuous bravery and resource in action under adverse conditions. On the 10th April 1918, during an attack he led his men with great dash and utter disregard of danger. When the advance was held up by the heavy casualties from machine gun fire from the front and both flanks, he directed the fire of his platoon with the greatest skill, thus inflicting many casualties on the enemy. When owing to repeated counterattacks part of the line gave way, he held his men together, telling them that they were not to retire till orders had come from a British officer.

1344 1st Class Sub-Assistant Surgeon Abdul Rahim, Indian Medical Department.

For conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty. On the 9th April 1918, during an attack he frequently exposed himself to heavy shell fire in search of wounded men. When the stretcher bearers had failed to find an officer who was severely wounded, he went into the firing line and brought him in himself.

3741 Rifleman Man Sing Thapa, Infantry

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty. On the 10th April 1918, during an attack he was an ammunition carrier in a Lewis gun section. The whole of his section became casualties, he himself being wounded in the foot, but he took over the Lewis gun and continued to fire it until ordered to withdraw, when he carried back his Lewis gun over one thousand yards in spite of his wounds, being under fire the whole way, and posted it on the forward slope of the next hill.

Jemadar Nanig Ram, Infantry.

On the 11th April 1918, during an attack he gallantly led a charge against the enemy and drove them from their positions. He behaved most gallantly, regardless of his own safety. Also on the night of the 11th-12th April 1918, when all other Indian officers had become casualties, he assumed command of a company, and in a critical situation when the enemy in force had approached to within bombing distance, he held up their counterattack and drove off the enemy with bombs and rifle fire, rallying the men and keeping the line intact.

Jemadar Bhagwan Singh, Lancers.

On the night of 22nd-23rd May 1918, in a raid on enemy trenches he led the attack on a post with the greatest dash and resolution. Though only leading a troop, he did not hesitate to attack a post estimated to contain fifty of the enemy, under heavy machine gun and rifle fire at point blank range.

Subadar Rahim Khan, Infantry.

On the night of 30th-31st May 1918, he displayed much skill and initiative in leading his patrol forward to surround an enemy post. At the head of his men, he personally sprang upon the enemy sentry, silenced and disarmed him without raising an alarm, with the result that the total enemy post of four was brought in, although the neighbouring occupied enemy posts were within 150 and 200 yards of either flank. He set a splendid example of dash and pluck to his men.

Bhagwan Singh, Captain in the Patials Imperial Service Infantry.

For gallantry and devotion to duty on the night of the 24th-30th April 1918, when in command of the advance guard, which was suddenly held up by a party of the enemy with machine guns concealed in thick scrub. Captain Bhagwan Singh led his men in such a prompt and fearless manner that the enemy were forced to retire hastily.

Subadar Dharm Singh, Patials Imperial Service Infantry.

For gallantry and devotion to duty on the 30th April 1918. His platoon came under very heavy shell and machine gun fire.

An order was issued for the company to withdraw to a more sheltered position, but Subadar Dharm Singh remained where he was, as he had two seriously wounded men with him whom he could not remove. He remained there for over two hours until stretcher bearers could go out and bring the men in.

Subadar-Major Manbir Thapa, Infantry.

For conspicuous gallantry, devotion to duty and initiative. On the 8th June 1918, Subadar-Major Manbir Thapa was in command of a platoon at a time when a position was counter attacked. The occupants of the positions were giving way and some ground had already been lost when Subadar-Major Manbir Thapa called upon his platoon to stand their ground and led them forward to counter attack the enemy. His personal example and leading inspired his men with confidence at a very critical moment, and largely assisted in the recapture of the position.

2283 Sowar Shahzad Khan, Lancers

For gallantry and devotion to duty on the 17th June 1918. During an attack by two troops under Ressaidar Imdad Khan on a party of the enemy, Ressaidar Imdad Khan's horse was shot. Sowar Shahzad Khan dismounted and gave up his horse to his Ressaidar. Having done so he went on foot to the assistance of Jemadar Muhammad Yusuf Khan, whose horse had been shot and the Jemadar himself wounded in the thigh, extricated him from the dead horse, carried him on his back into thick scrub, caught a loose horse, placed the wounded Jemadar on it and brought him back to the support squadron. This occurred under continuous machine gun fire at about 150 yards from the enemy.

Awarded a Bar to the Indian Distinguished Service Medal.

Subadar Akbar Khan, I.D.S.M., Infantry.

(The Indian Distinguished Service Medal was awarded in Army Department Notification No. 1388 of 1916)

The Secretary of State for War has received the following despatch addressed to the Chief of the General Staff, India, by Lieut.-General Sir Stanley Maude, K.C.B., Commanding in Chief, Mesopotamian Expeditionary Force:—

General Headquarters,
Mesopotamian Expeditionary Force,
2nd November 1917

Sir,--With reference to the concluding paragraph of my Despatch dated 15th October, 1917, I have the honour to submit herewith a list of names of those officers, ladies, non-commissioned officers and men serving, or who have served, under my command, whose distinguished and gallant services and devotion to duty I consider deserving of special mention.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

F. S. MAUDE,

Lieut.-General,
Commanding in Chief,
Mesopotamian Expeditionary Force.

War Office,

24th August, 1918

With reference to the awards conferred as announced in the London Gazette dated 26th March 1918, the following are the statements of service for which the decorations were conferred

Awarded the Distinguished Service Order

Maj. (A -Lt.-Col) George Kendall Channer, I A

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During the defence of the ridge his position was subjected to heavy artillery bombardment and repeated and determined enemy attacks, which had as their object the envelopment of his left flank. These attacks were only frustrated by heavy counter-attacks, led by himself, and although he was wounded on two successive days he continued to command his battalion personally directing and organising the defence. By his total indifference to danger cheerfulness and splendid example he maintained the spirits of his men and enabled them to hold out.

Awarded a Bar to the Military Cross

Lt. (A.-Capt.) Wilfred Philip Oddie, M.C., I.A. R.O., attd. Punjabis

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When his commanding officer was killed during an attack he took command of the battalion in a most difficult situation, and showed the greatest ability and courage throughout the engagement

Awarded the Military Cross.

 Lt. Denis Robert Ambrose, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When in command of three platoons during the attack he lost touch with the battalion, and finding that he had missed his original objective, he rushed three successive lines of trenches and penetrated 3,000 yards beyond his original objective. Though he had captured thirty prisoners and a machine gun, he found himself outflanked, outnumbered, and in danger of being surrounded, but he succeeded in withdrawing his command coolly and skilfully and in rejoining his battalion. His skilful leadership was beyond all praise.

 T. Lt. V. K. Apte, I.M.S.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He attended to the wounded during an action with great courage and coolness.

Capt. Edwin James Caldwell Ashmore, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his company across the open under heavy fire with exemplary steadiness, assaulted the enemy's position with great dash and complete success, and consolidated the ground gained with marked skill. His conspicuous courage throughout was an inspiring example to his men.

 Lt. Claude Wells Woolloton Baxter, I.M.S.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When under heavy shell and rifle fire he displayed great gallantry and devotion to duty in attending to and evacuating the wounded. His services proved of incalculable value.

 Subadar (A-Subadar-Maj.) Bhagwan Singh, Baluchis.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When his company commander was wounded early in an engagement he took command, and led the company with great courage and skill, setting a most inspiring example to the men. Later when the adjutant and the Subadar Major became casualties, he carried out their duties in addition to commanding his company, and rendered invaluable assistance during the ensuing night.

 Lt. (A-Capt.) Rainald Hugo Burne, I.A.R.O.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led an attack in a most courageous and determined manner, and showed the greatest coolness and skill. His dispositions were excellent, and it was largely due to his splendid example that the attack was successful.

 Lt. (A-Capt.) George Roy Dowland, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He took his platoon right up to a hill, whence he came under fire of some hostile picquets. Driving back one picquet, he rushed the second, capturing seven prisoners. Remaining in this position all night, at dawn the next day he captured a further nine prisoners, the position he took up being essential to the safe passage of the division through the pass. His endurance and courageous determination were of the highest order.

 Capt. Charles Aubrey Godson, I.M.S.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an attack. All day he organised stretcher parties and collected the wounded often under shell fire and at night searched the whole area covered by the attack and cleared it of all the wounded. It was largely due to his courage and initiative that the evacuation of the wounded was carried out so successfully.

 Lt. (A-Capt.) Gordon Edward Hawker, Sikhs, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He rallied parties of men who were being forced back by the enemy's attack. He collected a small party, with which he formed a rear guard, and held up the enemy's advance. His courageous example was of the greatest value at a critical time.

 Jemadar Janak Singh, Dogras.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in an engagement. He led his men with great success, continually exposing himself to the enemy's fire. Though severely wounded, he remained with his men until he was ordered to go to the aid post. He set a most inspiring example to all ranks by his courage and contempt of danger.

 2nd Lt. Alfred Henry Bertram Joyce, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He showed great courage in attempting to bring in a wounded man under heavy fire. He has rendered valuable service on several other occasions.

 Lt. Joseph Harold Lang, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an attack. When the advance was held up he personally got a Lewis gun into action with great effect. At the final assault he showed great courage and captured a number of prisoners single-handed.

Lt. Arthur Geoffrey Lucas, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. His courage and energy under heavy fire during an action furnished a splendid example to his men, and contributed largely to the success of the attack.

* * * *

Subadar Mit Singh, Sikhs.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When his company commander was wounded during an engagement, he at once took command, and led the company with great coolness and skill. By his excellent dispositions he repelled a counter-attack, and maintained the ground won. He set a magnificent example to his men.

* * * *

Capt. Charles Newton-Davis, M.B., I.M.S.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During the attack, when the battalion was brought to a standstill by frontal and enfilade fire of all kinds he exposed himself continually in moving from place to place to render aid to wounded cases. It was owing to his courage, devotion to duty and skilful organisation that the wounded were successfully collected and evacuated.

* * * *

Lt. Albert Victor Rooth, I.A.R.O.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an attack. When all communications had been cut and the two runners who were sent back had been killed, he went back under heavy fire and personally directed the advance of the reserve company, whose officers had become casualties. His prompt and courageous action enabled the advance to continue successfully.

* * * *

Lt. Gerald Noel Storrs, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During the defence of the position gained he held off a number of the enemy and led a counter-attack which cleared the flanks of the position and enabled the relief to arrive safely. He displayed a skill and leadership of the highest order.

* * * *

Capt. Edward George Thomas Tuite-Dalton, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. After the battalion had cleared three successive heights and had received orders to advance in the open, he finding that battalion headquarters had temporarily lost touch, assumed command, and on his own initiative issued orders to join in the attack, to the success of which his prompt action materially contributed.

* * * *

Lt. Robert Geoffrey Woodward, I.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He held his men together in the face of a strong enemy attack, encouraging them by his courageous example. His gallantry afforded a most inspiring example at a critical time.

* Includes previous weeks. The actual number of cases and deaths reported during the week ending October 12, were 807 and 243 respectively.

In the return for the week ending 5th October 1918 add 6 cases, 36 deaths against Gwalior State.

The incidence of plague remains extremely low for the time of year. There were only 1,646 deaths reported during the week ending the 12th of October as compared with 7,898 in the corresponding week of 1917. The mean daily incidence of plague mortality in the month of October, for the last twenty years, works out at 900. The continued relative freedom from plague of the northern provinces of India augurs well.

4. The week's rainfall was 20 per cent or more in defect in the Bay Islands, Burma, Assam, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, the United Provinces, the Punjab East and North, Kashmir, Rajputana East, Gujarat, Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad, Mysore and the Madras Presidency. No rain usually falls at this time of year in the Punjab Southwest, the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan, Sind and Rajputana West.

The rainfall from the 3rd May to date is 20 per cent or more in defect in the United Provinces, the Punjab, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan, Sind, Rajputana, Gujarat, Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces West, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad, Mysore and the Madras Presidency. It is 20 per cent or more in excess in Bengal and Bihar, and differs from the normal by less than 20 per cent in the remaining divisions.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
19th October 1918.

Purma.—During the week light to moderate rain fell in several districts of the Province. In Upper Purma gathering of cotton and groundnut is proceeding. Cultivation of miscellaneous dry crops continues and standing crops are satisfactory. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice has fallen considerably but is still much above normal. The market for white rice is steady at Rs. 400 per hundred baskets for specials.

Assam.—The weather during the week was seasonable. Manufacture of tea, ploughing for mustard and sowing for pulses are in progress. Prospects of crops are in fair to good condition. Cattle disease is reported from two districts. The price of common rice is practically unchanged.

Bengal.—During the week light scattered showers fell in parts of the western and northern districts. Elsewhere the rainfall was generally light to moderate. More rain is needed for growth of winter paddy especially in the Western districts. Steeping and washing of jute is almost finished. Preparation of lands for spring crops is proceeding and sowing has commenced in places. Prospects of standing crops are generally fair. The average price of common rice has fallen by about 0.37 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—During the week there was no rain except a few light showers in parts of the Santhal Parganas. Harvesting of autumn crops is completed. Rain is urgently wanted for sowing of spring crops which is being retarded. Paddy is withering for want of rain in most districts and prospects are very bad. The price of common rice has risen in twelve districts and remained stationary in the remaining districts, as compared with that of the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from ten districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is fair but rain is badly wanted in all the States.

United Provinces.—Report not received.

Punjab.—During the week the weather was dry. Rain is badly wanted for spring sowings and for standing crops which are withering from drought, specially on unirrigated areas. Condition of irrigated crops is average to good and of unirrigated generally bad. Picking of cotton and reaping of rice and other autumn crops are in progress with yield below normal to normal. Sowings of wheat, gram, etc., continue and are below normal to normal. Cattle are generally healthy and water is sufficient. Fodder is scarce in some districts. Prices are generally stationary and above scarcity rates. Prices of wheat :—Ambala and Rawalpindi 6, Ferozepore and Lahore 6½ and Lyallpur 6½ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was rainless. Sowings of spring crops are in progress. The condition of standing crops is average on irrigated and below average on unirrigated areas in Peshawar and Bannu and poor in Dera Ismail Khan for want of rain. Cotton is being picked in Peshawar and Bannu with outturn average. Harvesting of maize has commenced in Peshawar. Prices of wheat in Peshawar are 7½ seers and in Dera Ismail Khan 7½ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—Report not received.

Kashmir.—During the week the weather was generally dry and cold. Autumn crops are being harvested with outturn fair. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are high.

Rajputana.—During the week the weather was rainless. Irrigated crops are in fair condition but unirrigated crops are withering. Sowings of spring crops are proceeding in places. The condition of cattle is generally fair. Fodder is getting scarce. Water is sufficient. Prices are high and rising.

Central India.—During the week the rainfall was nil. It was insufficient in Gwalior and Baghelkhand. Autumn crops are being harvested. Preparation of land for and sowing of spring crops are in progress. Standing crops are bad in Gwalior and Baghelkhand, withering in Malwa and parts of Nimar in Indore and fair elsewhere. Their probable outturn is 7 to 12 annas of normal crop in Gwalior, below average in Baghelkhand and fair elsewhere. They have been damaged in Baghelkhand, Malwa and Manipur in the Southern States. Agricultural stock is in fair condition. Scarcity of fodder prevails in parts of Gwalior, Malwa and the Southern States. Prices are high.

Central Provinces.—During the week the weather has been clear. The days are warm and the nights and the mornings are cool. No rain fell anywhere. Unirrigated autumn crops have generally suffered considerably for want of rain. Harvesting of minor crops and of early rice and picking of cotton are in progress. Sowings of spring crops on restricted areas continue. Germination is generally fairly satisfactory but early rain is required in some places to save the young seedlings from withering. Relief operations continue in the Sironcha Tehsil. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition but cattle disease is reported in parts of Damoh, Jabulpore, Chanda and Raipur. Fodder is dear or scarce in parts of Berar. Gram in Chhindwara and Nagpur, rice in Drug and rice and juar in Yeotmal rose by one to one and half seers per rupee. Other variations are unimportant but indicate an upward tendency.

Feudatory States.—Standing crops are withering and spring operations are hampered for want of rain.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of the Karnatak, Kanara, Kolhapur and Savantvadi. More rain is needed everywhere. Standing crops have been damaged by blight in Nawabshah. They are withering generally everywhere except in parts of Dharwar where the recent rainfall has slightly improved the situation. Preparation for the sowing of spring crops continues in parts of Sind. Sowing of spring crops continues in East Khandesh, Satara, Dharwar and Baroda. Harvesting of autumn crops continues in parts of Sind, Konkan, the Deccan, Baroda and Savantvadi. Picking of cotton continues in Nawabshah, Thar, Parkar and Khandesh. Fodder supply is generally deficient. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient but cattle are deteriorating in affected districts. Irrigation is deficient in parts of Sind, Kaira, Surat, Kanara, Poona and the Karnatak. Prices of food grains are high but generally steady.

Hyderabad.—During the week the rainfall was nil. Autumn crops are being harvested and have suffered in parts. Early rice is in fair to good condition and is being harvested. Spring crops are being sown. Sprouts have been damaged by insects in parts of the Nalgonda district. Cattle are healthy. Fodder scarcity prevails in parts of four districts. Prices of grains are abnormally high. Juar is selling at three seers per rupee in the Bir, Parbhani, Nandor and Gulbarga districts.

Mysore.—The week was practically rainless. Weeding operations are in progress. Standing crops are withering for want of rain. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are fluctuating.

Coorg.—Light rain fell during the week. Picking of cardamon and reaping of crops continue. Agricultural prospects are fair. Cattle disease prevails in some villages. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient. The public health is fair. Prices of food grains are high.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was heavy in Malabar and in the hills, good in Vizagapatam agency, Coimbatore, Madura, Ramnad, Tinnevely and on the West Coast except Malabar, fair in Vizagapatam littoral, Trichinopoly, Tanjore, Pudukottai, and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair condition generally but in parts they are withering and require immediate rain. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is limited with outtura fair generally but poor in two districts and in parts of eleven others. Sowing of paddy and dry crops is proceeding but is restricted in parts for want of more rain. The condition of cattle is generally good. Water is insufficient except in four districts. Pasture is sufficient except in five districts and parts of six others. Fodder is sufficient except in four districts and parts of six others. Prices show a tendency to rise.

ANNUAL REPORT ON THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS OF INDIA
FOR THE YEAR
1917-18.

No. 16s.-B.P., dated Simla, the 1st October 1918.

FROM—THE HON'BLE MR. G. R. CLARKE, O.B.E., I.C.S., DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS,

TO—THE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

I have the honour to submit the Annual Report on the Posts and Telegraphs of India for the year 1917-18.

2. The administration was in the hands of Sir William Maxwell for practically charge the whole year as I took over charge from him on the 26th March 1918.

POSTS—General Remarks.

3. The year 1917-18 has been remarkable for a general increase in postal work. On March 31st, 1918, there were 97,364 postal officials, 19,410 post offices and 157,606 miles of mail lines. During the year, 1,114 million articles, including over 28½ million registered articles, were posted; stamps worth Rs. 3 crores 24 lakhs were sold for postal purposes; over 35 million money orders of the total value of Rs. 75½ crores were issued; a sum of nearly Rs. 14½ crores was collected for tradesmen and others on value-payable articles; over 3½ million insured articles valued at over Rs. 89 crores were handled; customs duty aggregating about Rs. 23½ lakhs was realised on parcels and letters from abroad; pensions amounting to nearly Rs. 53½ lakhs were paid to Indian military pensioners; 17,307 lbs. of quinine were sold to the public. On the 31st March 1918 there were 1,637,600 Savings Bank accounts with a total balance of over Rs. 16½ crores and 27,095 Postal Life Insurance policies with an aggregate assurance of over Rs. 3 crores 81 lakhs. Cash certificates representing a face value of nearly 13 crores were sold to the public. The total revenue and expenditure for the year, after making the various administrative adjustments, amounted to Rs. 4 crores 36½ lakhs and Rs. 3 crores 90 lakhs, respectively, leaving a surplus of 46½ lakhs.

Principal events in the inland post.

4. With effect from the 1st April 1917, the Post Office undertook the duty of issuing War Loan Bonds and five-year Cash Certificates. The latter were on sale at all post offices authorised to transact Savings Bank business and the number of Certificates sold during the year was 4,694,233 with a face value of 12 crores and 90 lakhs of rupees. The work of dealing with Cash Certificates entailed a special procedure which had to be devised at very short notice and which was perhaps at first a little too complicated for the less educated portion of the public. The procedure has been greatly simplified and Certificates can now be presented for discharge at any post office in the country which transacts Savings Bank business.

Postal arrangements in Bombay were considerably disturbed by the postmen's strike which occurred on the 19th September 1917. 813 out of 837 postmen of the Bombay General Post Office and its town sub-offices struck work. The demand of the strikers was for more pay and had they not been led astray by political agitators, whose only object was to harass the Government, it is probable that no strike would have taken place, as the question of improving the men's pay was under consideration at the time. The best possible arrangements were made for dealing with the delivery work at Bombay by utilising the clerical and telegraph staff and also by the help of unofficial agency. Undoubtedly a certain amount of inconvenience was caused to the public, but on the whole the situation was dealt with promptly and effectively, and the strike ended on the 8th October with the unconditional surrender of the postmen.

On the 1st January 1918 the constitution of the Railway Mail Service was revised. The Railway Mail Service of India which was formerly divided into four circles was reduced to three by the abolition of the Southern Circle, which had not sufficient work to justify its existence as a separate administrative unit.

It is regrettable to note that the number of deaths which occurred from plague during the year under report increased by 110 as compared with the previous year, the numbers being 265 against 155. Plague was especially prevalent in the Bombay Presidency, Central Provinces and United Provinces. Very great courage and devotion to duty were displayed by all ranks of the Department in recognition of which rewards were given to a large number of postal officials.

Postal Co-operative Credit Societies were in existence at Rangoon, Bombay, Nagpur, Lucknow, Madras, Calcutta and Jalpaiguri with a total membership of 5,079 and a subscribed capital of Rs. 1,50,830. They are all making satisfactory progress and are doing much useful work.

Foreign post.

5. The letter mails for and from the United Kingdom continued to travel via Marseilles up to the end of November 1917, but since then both the letter and parcel mails have been conveyed all the way by sea.

Owing to the shipping position caused by the war, the weekly mail service for and from the United Kingdom was reduced to a fortnightly one with effect from July 1917. Consequently the British Post Office tried the experiment of sending an alternate weekly despatch to India via Colombo by the Messageries Line steamers, and five mails were received in India by that route. However, this arrangement was not a success and was abandoned.

The following mail steamers of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company were lost at sea through enemy action :—

The "Salsette," with London parcel mails of the 18th July 1917, was sunk off Dover.

The "Mongolia," which left London on the 1st June 1917, struck a mine and sank off Bombay on the 23rd June 1917 with letter and parcel mails for India on board.

The "Medina" and the "Namur," which left Bombay on the 30th March 1917 and the 28th September 1917, respectively, were sunk in the English Channel with the parcel mails on board, the letter mails having already been landed at Marseilles.

The "Mooltan," sailing from Bombay on the 7th July 1917, was lost in the Mediterranean with all its mails on board.

The British India Steam Navigation Company had to contend with many difficulties in supplying the mail services on its various contract lines. The Company were, however, able to provide an almost regular service between Calcutta and Rangoon (16 knots), Rangoon and Mergui (10 knots) and Bombay and Durban (10 knots), and an irregular service on five other contract lines.

Owing to the discontinuance of the services to Australia provided by the Peninsular and Oriental and the Orient Lines, special arrangements had to be made during the year for the transmission of mails from India to the Australasian colonies. The British India Steam Navigation Company generously agreed to convey these mails free of charge.

A telegraphic money order service was established between India and the United Kingdom with effect from the 1st November 1917.

A very important territorial addition to the Imperial penny postage rate was the South-West Africa Protectorate (late German South-West Africa) and the foreign money order service and the British postal order system were extended to that country and to British Togoland. The parcel post service was extended to the territory formerly known as German East Africa.

The Phillippine Islands, the Virgin Islands of the United States of America and the Portuguese colony of Macao joined the International Reply-Coupon system.

The rate of conversion from sterling to Indian money and vice versa in respect of foreign money orders and British postal orders was altered from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. to the rupee. As money order remittances to India from certain foreign countries increased to an alarming extent owing to speculators taking advantage of the favourable rates of exchange, it was found necessary to place restrictions on the remittances from those countries to India. For the same reasons, it had also to be arranged not to pay to any person in India in one day more than £20 worth of British postal orders issued from one and the same country.

In fact the war has been the cause of such kaleidoscopic changes in foreign postal arrangements, that the staff has found great difficulty in coping with them and some excuse can be found for the bewilderment of the postal clerk who is in doubt when asked whether he can accept a pound of butter or a Madeira cake for despatch by letter or parcel post to Jerusalem.

6. On the 31st March 1918 the total number of postal officials was 97,364 as Post Office staff, compared with 96,260 at the close of 1916-17. The figure includes 269 pensioned soldiers of the Indian Army and 114 women of whom 401 were Europeans or Eurasians.

The number of officials dismissed was 490 against 498 in the previous year. Of this number 257 were postmen or village postmen.

Increases of pay.

7. The question of improving the pay of the subordinate staff of the Department is one that is always under the consideration of the Director-General. It cannot be denied that with the present abnormal rise in prices, the market rates of wages in many places are higher than the rates of pay given to lower paid clerks and menials. To make a general revision of pay on this artificial basis would have been an unwise policy and to meet the temporary deficiency a special war allowance on a 5 per cent. basis was sanctioned with effect from 1st November 1917, for all non-gazetted officials up to the grade of Rs. 600. Though nominally 5 per cent., this war allowance with its minimum of 1 rupee gave menials increases of pay varying from 15 to 5 per cent. and to clerks increases varying from 10 to 5 per cent. In addition to this special war allowance the pay of 17,251 employes was raised during the year as shown in the following table :—

Head Postmaster	1
Assistant Postmasters	2
Sub-postmasters	664
Deputy Sub-postmasters	2
Branch Postmasters	301
Inspectors of post offices	3
Clerks and Sorters	1,452
Mail Guards	32
Overseers	17
Postmen and Village postmen	6,159
Paid probationers	479
Runners	4,183
Other inferior servants in the Post Office	3,953
Total ..	17,251

In the city of Bombay, the entire menial establishment of both the Post Office and Telegraph Department was granted a further allowance of 10 per cent. of their pay subject to a minimum of Rs. 2 in each case.

It will therefore be seen that the Department has not neglected its duty to its employes, for whose benefit it devotes annually a very large portion of the finances at its disposal.

Recruitment.

8. Recruitment of capable clerks was a difficulty in some parts of India. The usual standard of education demanded is the entrance examination of a recognised university, but it cannot be said that this examination is a satisfactory test for a commercial department. An examination on the lines of the Second Division, Civil Service Examination in England is required for the clerical appointments in the Posts and Telegraphs. An examination of this kind at least ensures that a passed candidate has a fair knowledge of such subjects as English, Arithmetic, Accounts, Geography, Précis writing, etc., which fit him to be an intelligent clerk. There is no likelihood that the University entrance passed man has a working knowledge of any of these subjects and the result is that the Department has to educate its own employes of whom many are inefficient clerks for the first few years of their service. It is of the highest importance to the subordinate branches of the public service that some examination should be devised, which, having no connection with any university, would guarantee that a man who has passed it possesses a fair general education.

Field Post Office work.

9. During the year under report Indian Field post offices continued to work with the overseas forces in France, Egypt, East Africa, Mesopotamia, South Persia and Aden and the Post Office was further called upon to serve the Waziristan Field Force, the Marri Punitive Forces and the Eastern Persian Cordon. The number of postal officials serving with the various overseas Expeditionary Forces increased during the year from 1,087 to 1,708 and all ranks performed their duties in a very creditable manner.

The Chief Base Post office for all the overseas Expeditionary Forces, which was established in the Bombay General Post Office at the very beginning of the war, was separated from the General Post Office in February 1918 and placed in charge of a retired officer of the department. It was removed to the Mole Building at the Alexandra Docks, which was originally intended to be the sorting office for foreign mails. This office maintains a record under the Card Index system of all officers and men who are absent from their units and had at the close of the year a record of the movements of 133,000 officers and men from the overseas Forces as against 50,000 at the close of the year 1916-17. The card index system has worked most successfully as is evidenced by the fact that out of 3,830,171 letters (registered and unregistered) for officers and men received in the Enquiry Branch of the Chief Base Office during the year, 2,420,831 were redirected for delivery at hospitals, camps, depots, etc., and 1,409,340 were returned to the country of origin for delivery to the senders, as the addressees were either deceased or untraceable.

The Mesopotamia Expeditionary Force is far the largest of all the Expeditionary Forces served by the Indian Post Office, but the Egyptian Expeditionary Force has been increasing in importance too. The work of the Indian Postal Services in all the theatres of the war was carried on satisfactorily and several of the officers of the Department serving with each of the Forces have been granted distinctions or been mentioned in Despatches. Over 200 officials also have, since 1914, been rewarded departmentally for specially meritorious services in the field.

All members of the staff of the Department on Field Service greatly appreciated the interest taken in their behalf by the "Post and Telegraph Comforts Fund" which continued to provide them with special comforts. The management of this fund was under Mrs. Harrison up to the close of the year. It is now entrusted to Mrs. Sharpe, wife of Mr. W. S. Sharpe, Director of Telegraph Engineering, Bombay.

10. Owing to the difficulties created by the war the weekly mail service to and from Europe by the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamers was reduced to a fortnightly one with effect from July 1917. Working of the P. and O. Contract

Thirty-one steamers were despatched with letter and parcel mails from the United Kingdom during the year. Two of these were lost at sea and the remaining twenty-nine reached India safely. In the reverse direction thirty-five steamers were despatched from Bombay with letter and parcel mails of which two were lost at sea and the remaining thirty-three reached London safely.

Post Offices and Postal Communications.

11. There were 19,410 post offices and 49,749 letter-boxes at the close of the year, or one post office more and 14 letter-boxes less than in the preceding year. There was a slight falling off in the number of post offices in charge of schoolmasters and other extra-departmental agents. Post Offices, letter boxes and village postmen. (Appendix A page 23.)

12. The total length of all mail lines by road, rail, river or sea was 157,606 as detailed below :— Postal communications. (Appendix B page 23.)

	Runners.	Railway.	Mail carts, horses, camels, etc.	Steamers.	Motor cars.
Mileage at close of 1917-18	90,986	35,179	12,149	18,420	972
Increase (+) or decrease (—)	—551	+255	+ 191	+14	+231

The expansion of the railway system and the substitution of mail cart and motor services have caused a large reduction in the total length of runners' lines. The figure 972 represents an annual travel of about nine hundred thousand miles by motor car.

Postal Articles and Postage Stamps.

Statistics of postal articles.
Appendix II,
page 24.)

13. The total number of postal articles of all kinds, excluding money orders, transmitted during the year is estimated at 1,114 millions, being 26 millions more than in the preceding year, as detailed below :—

Classes of postal articles.	1917-18.	Increase (+) or decrease (—).	Percentage of increase (+) or decrease (—).
Articles of the letter mail.
Paid unregistered letters	424,899,003	+8,671,176	+2.06

Total	14,150,948	+543,003	+3.99
GRAND TOTAL	1,114,019,143	+26,115,675	+2.40

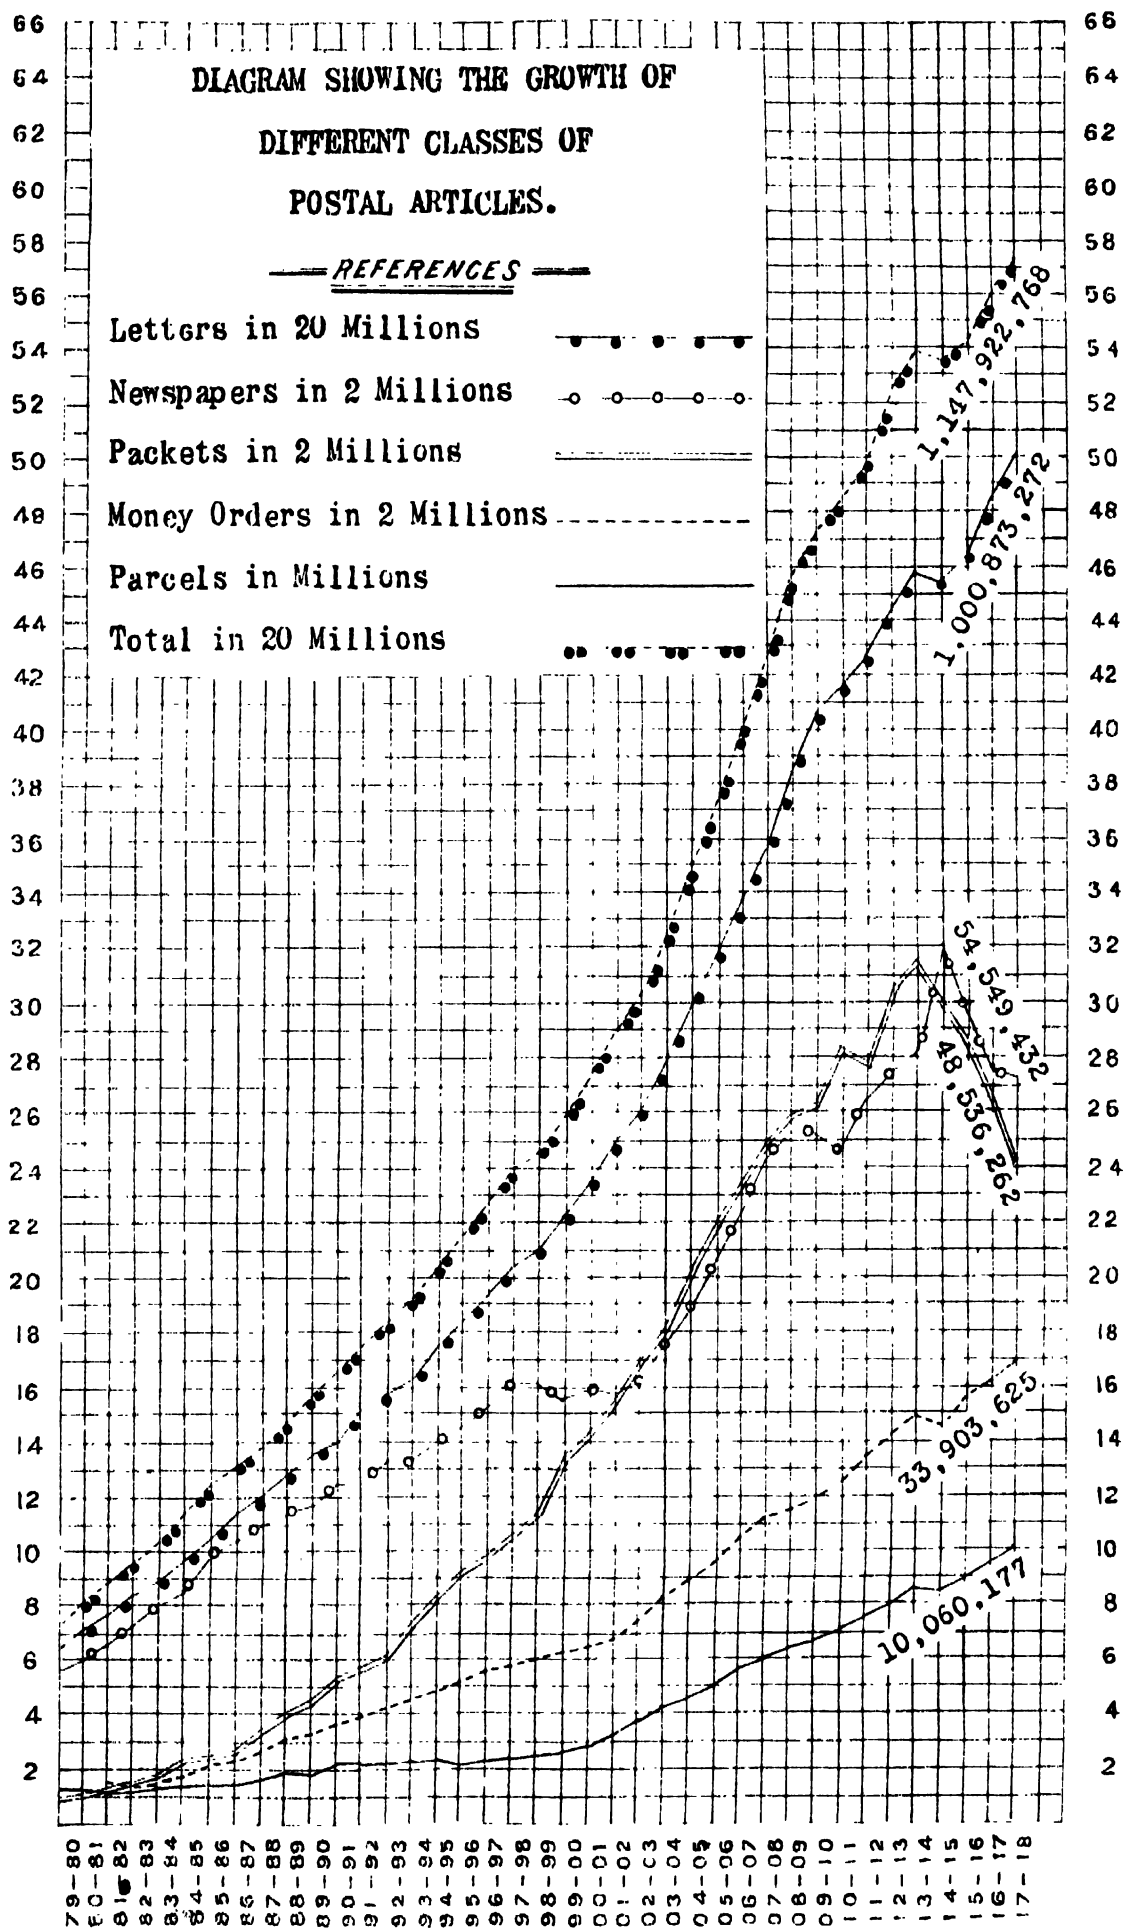

The diagram on the adjoining leaf shows graphically the growth of postal traffic in its principal branches since 1879-80.

14. It is computed that out of the total of 1,149 million articles and money orders which were posted 99.78 per cent. were actually delivered or paid, as compared with 99.76 per cent. out of a total of 1,121 millions in the preceding year.

15. The following details show the work done by Dead Letter Offices :—

	1916-17.	1917-18.
Postal articles received in Dead Letter Offices	12,252,680	13,537,018
Redirected to addressees	43 per cent.	47 per cent.
Re-directed to senders	26 per cent.	27 per cent.
Finally treated as undeliverable	2,557,399	2,161,335

In Bengal, Madras and Bombay alone 155 articles without address, many containing money or valuables, were posted every day on an average. In articles opened by the five larger Dead Letter Offices, cheques, hundies, currency notes, bills of exchange, coins and other property of the nominal value of over 12 lakhs of rupees were found, and the great majority of these were successfully redirected to the addressees or the senders.

16. Owing to the general dislocation of the foreign mail service, statistics of ^{Foreign correspondence.} correspondence sent to and received from foreign countries during the year were not kept.

17. The total number of parcels despatched by the foreign post from this ^{Foreign parcels.} country was 551,054 as compared with 513,596 during the previous year, and the number received was 609,839 as compared with 760,240 in 1916-17. There was thus an increase of 7·29 per cent. in the number of parcels exported and a decrease of 19·78 in the number imported.

The parcels sent to and received from the United Kingdom numbered 187,660 and 436,285 as compared with 184,506 and 594,163, respectively, during 1916-17. In addition 1,013 parcels were despatched from India through the medium of the Peninsular and Oriental Company while none were received in this country through that agency.

18. The aggregate value of stamps issued for sale from treasuries was :— ^{Postage stamps.}

Ordinary postage stamps and postal stationery.	Nearly Rs. 4 crores 88 lakhs—increase 33½ lakhs.
Service postage stamps and postal stationery.	Nearly Rs. 67 lakhs— increase about 4 lakhs.

The varieties of ordinary postage stamps and postal stationery issued in the largest quantities from the Central Stamp Depots were as follows :—

	Number issued in 1916-17	1917-18
	(In millions)
¼ anna single postcard	231½	241½
½ anna adhesive stamp	156½	159
1 anna adhesive stamp	89	97½
¼ anna adhesive stamp	105	95
¼ anna reply postcard	80½	93
Small ½ anna envelope	78	86½

The total number of stamp booklets issued from the Central Stamp Depots was 3,902,268 as compared with 3,286,925 in 1916-17, the increase being 18·72 per cent. Trade advertisements were printed on the covers and interleaves of a number of these booklets.

In addition to postage stamps, non-judicial and court-fee stamps are sold in many post offices but, except in Burma, postmasters act as private vendors of these stamps which do not form part of the Post Office balance. In Burma where such stamps are kept by postmasters in the same way as postage stamps the sales during the year amounted to Rs. 75,945-8-0 against Rs. 91,666 in 1916-17.

Insured and Value-payable Post.

19. The number of insured letters and parcels posted was 3,606,045 of the ^{Insurance business.} aggregate declared value of more than 89 crores of rupees, being an increase of 284,689 or 8·57 per cent. in number and 10·24 per cent. in value. The insurance fees realised amounted to 11½ lakhs of rupees.

20. The number of claims for compensation received in respect of insured ^{Claims for compensation.} articles was 346, of which 160 were admitted as well grounded. The total amount paid as compensation was Rs. 38,701, against Rs. 25,375 in 1916-17. Recoveries to the extent of Rs. 19,964 were, however, made so that the net loss to the Department was Rs. 18,737 compared with Rs. 13,299 in the preceding year.

Value-payable business.

21. The total number of value-payable articles posted advanced from 9,819,015 to 10,068,093 and the aggregate amount specified for recovery from Rs. 13,68,66,943 to Rs. 14,45,14,114, an increase of 5.59 per cent.

In Calcutta alone 2,403,604 value-payable articles were posted, and the Department realised for the tradesmen of that city a total sum of Rs. 3,21,20,136. The corresponding figures for the city of Bombay were 1,249,997 articles and Rs. 2,03,57,057 collected.

The number of value-payable articles despatched from India to Ceylon was 152,284 representing a total sum of Rs. 19,19,406, as compared with 148,524 articles valued at Rs. 17,11,955 in 1916-17.

Money Orders.

Money order business generally.
[Appendix IV (a), page 26.]

22. The total number of money orders of all kinds, Inland and Foreign, issued was a little over 35 millions of the aggregate value of Rs. 75½ crores as compared with over 33 million money orders for Rs. 63 crores in the preceding year. This enormous increase is due partly to large numbers of foreign money orders received owing to favourable exchange and partly to the fact that all family remittances are sent by money order from regimental depots to the dependents of men serving in the field.

Inland money orders.
[Appendix IV (b), and IV (c), pages 27 and 28.]

23. More than 33½ million inland money orders, ordinary and telegraphic, for a total sum of 62½ crores of rupees were issued, on which 74 lakhs of rupees was realised as commission. There was an increase over the previous year of 4.86 per cent. in number and of 9.10 per cent. in value.

Telegraphic money orders.
[Appendix IV (b), page 27.]

24. The number of telegraphic money orders issued fell from 898,104 to 875,012, while their total value increased from Rs. 6 crores 8 lakhs to Rs. 6 crores 21 lakhs. The commission realised was Rs. 6,55,242 as compared with Rs. 6,27,098 in the preceding year.

Foreign money orders.
[Appendix IV (d), page 29.]

25. In the sterling exchanges, which are in force with the United Kingdom and British Dominions and with foreign countries generally, the total number of money orders sent and received was 268,123 of the aggregate value of £4,490,313 as against 185,734 orders for £1,372,316 in the preceding year.

Foreign rupee money orders which are exchanged with Ceylon, the Portuguese Settlements in India and countries and places in East Africa and the Far East rose from 547,940 to 606,444 in number and from Rs. 2 crores 67 lakhs to Rs. 5 crores 48 lakhs in amount.

Remittances to India exceeded those from this country, the balance in India's favour being over £3,750,000 on sterling money orders and Rs. 5,05,00,000 on foreign rupee orders. In the case of the sterling money order exchanges the largest amounts were received from Egypt (£2,727,944), Union of South Africa (£508,252), the United Kingdom (£467,024), Italy (£219,099) France (£56,216), New South Wales (£25,083) and Fiji Islands (£21,350) and in the case of the rupee exchanges from the Straits Settlements (Rs. 187 lakhs) the Federated Malay States (Rs. 185 lakhs), Ceylon (Rs. 103 lakhs) and British East Africa (Rs. 20 lakhs).

26. The following figures show the year's transactions in British postal orders :— British postal orders

	SOLD IN INDIA.		PAID IN INDIA.		Commission realised.
	Number.	Value.	Number.	Value.
		£		£	Rs.
1917-18	157,338	92,704	435,273	218,357	17,778
Increase (+) or decrease (—) ..	—123,671	—84,984	+139,043	+92,207	+461

Nearly three-fourths of the orders sold were for 1, 5, 10 and 20 shillings although there are 41 denominations of postal orders ranging from 6d. to 21 shillings. 42,031 orders of the total value of £24, 694 were sold in the field post offices with the Indian Expeditionary Forces overseas.

Of the orders cashed, 15,006 had originally been issued in India and their value aggregated £7,829.

Post Office Savings Bank.

27. The number of active accounts was 1,637,600 representing a decrease of 60 per cent. The total balance at the credit of depositors exceeded 16 crores 58 lakhs, which is less by 1 lakh, or 06 per cent., than the balance at the close of the preceding year. The average balance at the credit of a depositor was 101 as compared with Rs. 100 in 1916-17. General results. [Appendix V (a), page 30.]

28. There has been a remarkable increase of investments in Government securities through the Post Office as shown in the following statement :— Transactions in Government securities.

	GOVERNMENT PROMISSORY NOTES. (NOMINAL VALUE).			INVESTMENT CERTIFICATES FOR FRACTIONAL AMOUNTS OF (GOVERNMENT PROMISSORY NOTES. (NOMINAL VALUE).

These transactions have been almost wholly in War Loan, 1929-47 and War Bonds, and in the exercise of the conversion rights afforded by the former. Of the total value of the notes held on behalf of saving bank depositors Rs. 1,77,62,975 is invested on the 1st Indian War Loan.

Financial result of working of the Post Office Savings Bank.

29. The following estimate of the financial result of working the Savings Bank is prepared in accordance with Resolution No. 2428, dated the 13th May 1902, of the Government of India in the Finance and Commerce Department :—

Receipts.	Amount.	Expenditure.	Amount.
	Rs.		Rs.
Interest at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum on total balance at credit of depositors.	54,71,763	Interest actually paid to depositors	44,40,317
		Estimated cost of managing the Bank	5,49,800
Total	54,71,763	Total	49,89,017

Miscellaneous Post Office Matters.

Post Office Guarantee Fund.
(Appendix

30. The surplus of receipts over charges against the Guarantee Fund during the year was Rs. 28,799 as against the deficit of Rs. 50,307 which occurred in 1916-17 owing to an unusual charge of Rs. 58,773 for converting $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Government Promissory Notes into the 4 per cent Conversion Loan of 1916-17. The amount decreed against the Fund was Rs. 7,179 as compared with Rs. 12,321 in the previous year. A sum of Rs. 8,014 was paid as compassionate gratuities to deserving postal officials and their families as compared with Rs. 13,453 in 1916-17.

The balance of the Fund was Rs. 10,53,895.

Complaints by the public.

31. The number of complaints made by the public was 93,991 as against 81,531 in 1916-17. Of the total number 34 per cent. were found to be justified as compared with 36 per cent. in 1916-17, while 44,757 or 47 per cent. proved to be groundless. In the remaining cases either no definite conclusion could be arrived at or the investigation had not been completed by the end of the year.

Compensation for uninsured registered
articles.

32. Compensation amounting to Rs. 4,430 was paid during the year in respect of inland uninsured registered letters, packets and parcels lost or damaged in course of transmission by post.

Offences by postal officials.
(Appendix VII,
page 33.)

33. The number of postal officials dealt with for criminal offences was 419, of whom 232 were convicted in Court and the remainder punished departmentally, as against 485 offenders and 253 convictions in the preceding year. The defalcations and losses amounted to Rs. 43,165 as compared with Rs. 47,738 in 1916-17. By the end of the year adjustments had been effected to the extent of Rs. 20,962, of which only Rs. 1,441 was written off.

Offences by other persons.

34. The offences against the Post Office committed by persons not belonging to the Department included 36 cases of money order fraud involving a sum of Rs. 5,259 and 3 cases of fraudulent withdrawal from the Savings Bank of sums amounting to Rs. 818. There were 157 cases of theft of Government money amounting to Rs. 15,377 from mails and post offices, in addition to highway robberies which are dealt with in the next paragraph. The total amount stolen was Rs. 21,454, of which Rs. 5,697 was recovered and Rs. 2,181 written off as finally lost, Rs. 13,576 remaining unadjusted at the close of the year.

35. There were 29 cases of highway robbery, six of which were attended with murder. Highway robbery of mails.

At Makrapara in the Jalpaiguri district a postman was murdered while on his beat. Another postman was strangled to death while returning from his beat at Pearpur in the district of Mymensingh, and an overseer was stabbed to death while conveying cash from Bolaram to Secunderabad. In none of these cases were the culprits traced.

A runner was murdered while conveying mails from Danipiplia to Sarwan in the Banswara Native State. The murderer is undergoing trial in the Rutlam State Court.

A village postman at Bindwall in the Azamgarh district who was carrying a mail bag containing Rs. 151 in cash was robbed and murdered. Three men were convicted of murder and sentenced to death. A runner was murdered on the way from Masauli to Bindaura Railway Station in the Bara Banki district. Two men were tried for the murder, of whom one was sentenced to death and the other acquitted.

There were six cases of raids on mails in transit through the districts of Zhob and Dera Ismail Khan.

Of the total number of robberies 25 occurred in British territory and 4 in Native States. The mail was recovered entirely in 4 and partly in 7 cases, the loss to Government up to the close of the year amounting to Rs. 502. Prosecutions were instituted in ten cases, in seven of which convictions were obtained.

36. A runner and a postman were murdered, the former as the result of a private quarrel and the latter for causes which could not be ascertained. A sub-postmaster was shot dead by Mahsuds who raided a post office in the Punjab. Of other postal servants who met their deaths while on duty, one, a mail peon, died from the effects of a severe beating by the owners of a field in which he was trespassing, another, an overseer, from a fall down the slope of a hill, while a third, a runner, was carried off by a tiger. Other casualties.

37. The most important buildings completed during the year were the Postal Administrative Offices including the post and telegraph offices at Patna and the telegraph office at Rangoon. Among other less important projects finished were the post offices at Gaya and Azamgarh. Buildings.

38. The revenue obtained from post offices situated in the Kashmir and Jammu State was Rs. 3,08,239 as compared with Rs. 2,69,115 in 1916-17 and Rs. 2,47,919 in 1915-16, while the expenditure amounted to Rs. 3,09,487 as against Rs. 2,86,054 in 1916-17 and Rs. 2,80,124 in 1915-16, the actual deficit during the year being Rs. 1,248. The growth in expenditure was chiefly owing to increases in the cost of establishment. Financial results of working the posts in Kashmir.

Non-Postal Branches of the Post Office.

39. There were 1,566 new Life Insurance and Endowment Assurance policies of the aggregate value of Rs. 22,81,293 against 1,739 for Rs. 25,43,685 last year. The number taken by pure Asiatics was 1,485. Of the policies held by women two were surrendered and one discharged by death of the insurant and there are now 27 female policy-holders. Five new contracts for monthly allowances were entered Post Office Insurance Fund.
[Appendix VIII
(a) VIII (1) and in pages 24, 25 and 26.]

into for a total amount of Rs. 83-0-0. Four Life Annuities were also purchased from the Post Office under Article 807 of the Civil Service Regulations.

The total sum realised on account of premia on old and new policies taken together amounted to Rs. 15,06,303 as compared with Rs. 14,68,152 representing the revised figures for the previous year. Claims to the extent of Rs. 10,26,972 were discharged compared with Rs. 8,96,850 in 1916-17, while 472 policies for a gross sum of Rs. 4,95,693 lapsed or were surrendered or cancelled.

Receipt of salt revenue.

40. The Post Office acted as an agent for the receipt of salt revenue at certain selected offices in the Punjab and North-West Frontier, United Provinces, Bihar and Orissa, Bengal and Assam, and Central Circles. As shown by the following figures, there was a decrease in this class of business which was due to some extent to the temporary stoppage of the issue of salt in November last and the restriction subsequently imposed on the acceptance of indents from the general public :—

		1917-18.	1916-17.
Post offices authorised to receive salt revenue	Number	353	298
Indents received ..		1,263	1,871
Quantity of salt indented for ..	Mds	173,132	528,290
Value of salt indented for ..	Rs.	6,87,631	7,61,580
Postal commission realised ..	Rs.	1,012	1,293

At the instance of the Indian Munitions Board a number of offices in the Bihar and Orissa Circle were authorised to receive indents for salt towards the end of the year, and this accounts for the increase in the number of post offices doing this business.

Sale of quinine

41. The Post Office obtained 17,307 lbs. of quinine for sale to the public during the year under report compared with 16,873 lbs. in the preceding year.

Payment of Indian military pensioners.

42. The number of men of the Indian Army whose pensions were paid through the agency of the Post Office in the Punjab and North-West Frontier Province was 76,611 as compared with 65,670 in 1916-17, the amount disbursed being Rs. 53,31,750 against Rs. 43,55,347 in the previous year. The Post Office received Rs. 39,988 as commission for this special service.

Post Office cash certificates. [Appendix V (b), page 31.]

43. Post Office Cash Certificates of all denominations issued during the year numbered 4,694,233 representing an investment of approximately 10 crores of the nominal value of 12 crores 90 lakhs. The amount repaid to investors on 606,185 certificates was 1 crore 11½ lakhs leaving a net investment for the year of about 8 crores 88 lakhs of rupees.

Financial Results of the Post Office.

Financial position of the Post Office. (Appendix X, page 37.)

44. The Post Office accounts show the following results :—

				Receipts.	Charges.	Surplus.
				Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1916-17	3,93,37,391	3,17,21,057	76,16,334
1917-18	4,16,10,225	3,54,24,461	61,85,764

After allowing for the sum of Rs. 6,98,619 charged against the Post Office in the Finance and Revenue Accounts of the Government of India and after making the usual adjustments, notably in connection with free services rendered by or to the Department, the net surplus was Rs. 46,51,397 as compared with Rs. 56,39,292 for the previous year. This amount is exclusive of any credit for the maintenance of unremunerative post offices and lines required for military or political purposes. The decrease in the surplus is largely due to the cost of the special war allowance given to the staff and partly to the increased cost of all postal services arising from the high prices prevailing in the country.

TELEGRAPHS—General Remarks.

45. At the close of the year under review the total number of telegraph officials was 10,960 of whom 169 were women. The number of telegraph offices was 10,559 of which 9,044 were open to the public. The latter comprised 202 departmental offices, 3,337 combined post and telegraph offices, 5,498 railway and 7 canal offices. General Survey.

During the year 19,897,787 telegrams were transmitted over the lines of the Department, an increase of 600,095 over 1916-17.

The total number of signalling operations entailed in the transmission of all telegrams from the office of origin to the office of destination was 94,811,022 with an average of 4.76 operations per telegram as against 4.78 for 1916-17.

The need for conserving stores referred to in last year's report continued during the year and the construction of new lines was again curtailed and was practically confined to meeting urgent military and political requirements.

To meet the shortage of stores many miles of lines along railways which had been temporarily abandoned were dismantled, and in some cases where two telegraph lines ran parallel along railways the wires were placed on one set of posts and the disused posts recovered for issue to more urgent works. The net extension to the telegraph and telephone system was 234 miles of line and 4,419 miles of wire and cable conductors and on the 31st March 1918 the whole system consisted of 87,714 miles of line and 347,906 miles of wire and cable conductors.

Statistics maintained by 75 of the principal offices showed that 31 per cent. of the telegrams handed in were transmitted within 10 minutes of acceptance and 49 per cent. within 20 minutes, also that 65 per cent. of the telegrams received for delivery were sent out to the addressees within 10 minutes of receipt.

The total receipts of the Telegraph Department amounted to Rs. 2 crores and 47 lakhs and the working charges to Rs. 1 crore and 27 lakhs as against Rs. 2 crores and 8 lakhs and Rs. 1 crore and 37 lakhs respectively for the previous year:—

The chief items of revenue were:—

	Rs.
Fees on telegrams	1,86,86,000
Claims from railways and canals	30,59,000
Claims from guarantors	88,100
Rent of telephone connections	12,06,000
Royalties from telephone companies	1,25,000

Despatches. 46. With effect from the 4th January 1918 a reduction of 10 annas a word was made in the rate for press telegrams exchanged between India and the Union of South Africa.

With effect from the 1st November 1917, a telegraphic money order service was introduced between India (including Burma) on the one side and the United Kingdom on the other. The telegraph charges for these advices are the same as for private foreign messages, at the full or deferred rate.

Certificates in telegraphy were granted to 212 soldiers and 475 post office clerks.

The Co-operative Credit Societies at Central Telegraph Offices have all continued to do very good work.

The sum of Rs. 1,51,850 was disbursed to the members of the signalling establishment as overtime allowance for the disposal of work outside the ordinary hours of duty, as compared with Rs. 1,26,357 in the preceding year. The increase was due to the replacement of the skilled telegraphists deputed to the various expeditionary forces by less highly trained and experienced operators and to the growth in the traffic.

A sum of Rs. 2,06,096 was earned by telegraphists as "Pie-money" or remuneration for messages disposed of in excess of certain standards, the corresponding amount for 1916-17 being Rs. 1,87,255. The increase in the pie-money earnings is due to some extent to the extension of pie-money to the Wheatstone system from the 1st April 1917, but largely to the growth in traffic.

In connection with the tribal rising in Waziristan in the early part of the year temporary telegraph offices had to be opened at Khirgi, Jandual, Mari-Indus, Chagmalai, Haidri-Kach and Manzal and the offices at Rawalpindi, Bannu, Dera Ismail Khan and Tank had to be strengthened. A number of Field telegraph offices had also to be opened in February between Derajat and Eastern Baluchistan for the punitive expedition sent out to suppress the Marri tribes.

During the strike of the postal peons of Bombay in September and October 1917 a number of delivery peons were lent to the Presidency Postmaster by the departmental telegraph offices in Bombay, and rendered valuable assistance in accelerating the delivery of letters, etc., under the supervision of the Inspector of Peons of the Central Telegraph Office.

The Allahabad Engineering Division was abolished with effect from the 25th January 1918, its area being absorbed in the Lucknow and Delhi Divisions. From the same date a new division was created with headquarters at Rawalpindi, comprising portions of the Lahore and Karachi Divisions. The result of this re-arrangement will be that the North-West Frontier lines will be more closely controlled.

The pay and prospects of the Line Staff were improved by increasing the numbers in the higher grades and the establishment of training classes for linemen has proved a great success.

The Telegraph contingents in Mesopotamia and East Africa at the end of the year numbered 3,327 composed as follows:—

Superior officers	17
Deputy Superintendents, telegraph masters, inspecting telegraphists, civil and military telegraphists, clerks, telephone inspectors and operators	807
Sub-inspectors, linemen (Indian and British) and workmen	2,066
Other staff	437

In addition a considerable number of men have been deputed for service with other military forces and to the Indo-European Telegraph Department.

The total value of Telegraph stores issued to Mesopotamia and East Africa amounted to Rs. 14,44,350 and Rs. 30,764, respectively. Stores worth Rs. 1,34,090 was supplied direct to the Military authorities and the Indo-European Telegraph Department.

Inland Telegrams.

47. The number of inland telegrams was 17,148,230, an increase of 143,579 ^{Inland telegrams.} over the preceding year or about 84 per cent. in number and of Rs. 16,71,172 or ^[Appendix XIV (1), page 45.] about 14 per cent. in value. The disproportionate increase in value is due to the enhancement of the unit charge for ordinary telegrams from 6 to 8 annas which took place with effect from 1st December 1916.

State telegrams which constitute about 11 per cent. of the inland traffic rose by about 9 per cent. in number and by about 9 per cent. in value.

Private telegrams increased by 22 per cent. in number and by 15 per cent. in value.

Press telegrams decreased by 13 per cent. in number and 2·5 per cent. in value. The decrease in the number of this class of traffic is partly due to a reduction of the number of Government officials authorised to receive Reuter's Summary.

The average value of a State telegram was Rs. 1·496 as compared with Rs. 1·498 in the previous year; of a private telegram Re. 0·706 as against Re. 0·611 in 1916-17; and of a press telegram Re. 0·899 in 1917-18 and Re. 0·795 in 1916-17.

48. The total number of inland telegraphic money orders was 849,307 yielding ^{Inland telegraphic money orders.} telegraph revenue of Rs. 4,76,216 as against 922,759 and Rs. 4,48,144, respectively. ^[Appendix XIV (2), page 46.] in the previous year.

49. During the year further expansion of Printing Telegraph systems has taken ^{Apparatus.} place. Creed apparatus has been installed in Simla, Delhi and Madras, and Baudot apparatus has been installed at Rawalpindi. A considerable quantity of replacement apparatus which had been on order for a long time was received during the year. Five of the early pattern Creed receivers have been replaced by receivers of the latest pattern, and eight of the earlier Baudot sets have been replaced by new apparatus.

In Non-Printing Telegraph systems there has also been development, the reintroduction of Quadruplex working being the most important. At the request of the Telegraph administration in Mesopotamia experiments were carried out with a view to devising a system of Central Battery Duplex working which would work satisfactorily on lines of 100 to 150 miles practically double the distance that any previously known method of Central Battery Duplex was capable of working over. Such a system was successfully devised and has given great satisfaction, and the use of it is being extended as opportunity offers.

The following new and improved patterns of telephone apparatus were introduced.

Central Battery private sub-exchange switch boards.

Portable Magneto telephones.

Pillar pattern Magneto desk telephones.

Combined post and telegraph offices.

50. The total number of combined post and telegraph offices open on 31st March 1918 was 3,337 with a staff of 4,827 clerks employed on signalling against 3,332 offices and 4,724 signallers at the close of the preceding year. The net increase in the number of combined offices was 5 compared with 44 in the preceding year.

Excluding free messages, the number of telegrams sent from combined offices increased from 11,188,649 to 11,349,659 or by 1 per cent. The revenue rose from Rs. 65,05,568 to Rs. 82,05,119 or by 26 per cent. The number of telegrams delivered by these offices was 9,297,575 against 9,241,692 during 1916-17.

Postal receiving offices.

51. In addition to the messages sent and received from combined post and telegraph offices, 72,755 telegrams were accepted by other post offices for transmission by post to telegraph offices and the revenue realised on them was Rs. 46,250. The corresponding figures for 1916-17 were 73,721 and Rs. 41,328.

The total number of telegrams received at post offices in the Persian Gulf, for the Indo-European Telegraph Department, was 273, as against 180 during the preceding year, and the fees levied on them amounted to Rs. 1,298 as compared with Rs. 884 in 1916-17.

Growth of inland traffic, private and state.

52. Charts are appended showing year by year the number and value of inland private, and inland state telegrams during the ten years 1907-08 to 1917-18. These have been drawn on a logarithmic scale so as to show clearly to the eye the relative changes which have taken place. The actual changes in number and value can be inferred from the numerical scales. Any causes which have affected the normal increase in the growth of traffic have been noted at the appropriate points on the charts themselves.

Foreign Telegrams.

Foreign telegrams generally.
[Appendix XIV (3), page 48]

53. The total number of foreign telegrams dealt with rose from 1,715,35 containing 30,799,724 words in 1916-17 to 1,988,825 containing 38,245,565 in 1917-18, the increase being 16 per cent. in the number of telegrams and 24 per cent. in the number of words. The Indian share of the value was Rs. 44,14,551 as against Rs. 34,36,794 in the previous year, an increase of 28 per cent.

The chief items responsible for this increase were State foreign telegrams which rose by 31 per cent. in number, 28 per cent. in words and 26 per cent. in value and private foreign telegrams at full rates which increased by 18 per cent. in number, 24 per cent. in words and 32 per cent. in value.

Telegrams exchanged with Ceylon.

54. The total number of telegrams originating in India for delivery in Ceylon and vice versa was 253,583, an increase of 59 per cent. over the preceding year.

55. The number of telegraphic money order advices exchanged with Ceylon was 45,702 as against 44,058 in the previous year, an increase of 3 per cent.

Telegraphic money order advices exchanged with Ceylon, Mesopotamia, the Persian Gulf and the United Kingdom.

There were 1,206 telegraphic money order advices exchanged with Mesopotamia and the Persian Gulf during the year as compared with 45 in the previous year during the period from 1st September 1916 to 31st March 1917.

There were 1,451 telegraphic money order advices exchanged with the United Kingdom during the period from 1st November 1917 to 31st March 1918.

56. There was only one direct telegraphic route, namely viâ Suez, open from India to the United Kingdom during the year. The routes to Europe viâ Teheran and viâ Turkey remained interrupted and the result was that the traffic on the Suez route was congested on several occasions when it became necessary for the Eastern Telegraph Company to restrict the booking of deferred and week-end telegrams.

Interruptions of telegraphic communication with foreign countries.

The route to China viâ Bhamo was interrupted for 337 hours beyond India and 17 hours within India. During 1916-17 this route was totally interrupted from the 31st January to the 19th July 1916, and subsequently for 199 hours beyond India and 9 hours within India.

Direct cable communication with Australia viâ Madras was maintained throughout the year without interruption.

57. Charts are appended showing the changes in number and value of foreign private and state telegrams during the ten years 1907-08 to 1917-18. The remarks made under the heading "Inland Telegrams," regarding the corresponding charts, apply to the charts for foreign telegrams also.

Growth of foreign traffic, private and state.

Wireless Telegraphy.

58. The wireless stations in India continued to work satisfactorily except during periods of atmospheric disturbance.

Working of wireless stations.

The accumulator batteries at three stations were renewed during the year the work being carried out, without interruption of communication.

A small wireless station was opened at Serampore on the 28th of October 1917 and the four mobile wireless stations at Miranshah, Bannu, Thull and Landikotal were transferred to No. 3 wireless signal squadron in January 1918.

His Majesty's Navy took over control of the maritime traffic and discipline of the staff of the Coast Radio stations at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Karachi, Rangoon and Port Blair on the 28th February 1918, this Department remaining responsible for providing the personnel and apparatus required, and for technical supervision of the stations.

A fire broke out in the Butcher Island Radio station on the 29th of March and much damage was caused. Repairs were effected with commendable energy and while the station was out of action His Excellency the Naval Commander-in-Chief deputed a Naval vessel to carry on the wireless duties of the Bombay station.

Telephones.

59. The policy of restricting new telephone connections was continued during the year and they were allowed only for military or political purposes.

Progress in provision of telephonic communication.

Non-departmental exchanges were established for the military at various centres and some of these were connected by junction lines to existing neighbouring exchanges.

A non-departmental exchange was opened for the civil department at Hazaribagh.

The telephone system in the Bengal Coal-fields was largely extended at the request of the Coal Controller as a war measure.

The telephone toll trunk from Calcutta to Asansol and Loyabad erected last year was brought into use in May 1917 and the revenue from this source showed a steady increase throughout the year.

A 100-line extension to the Simla automatic exchange was installed during the year replacing the Central Battery board which had been in use temporarily. The latter has had again to be added to pending the arrival of further extensions which have been ordered from England.

The Delhi exchange was put out of action by fire owing to a contact between the telephone and power wires on the 3rd March 1918, but temporary connections were made for the principal officials of the Government of India without any appreciable loss of time. The annual move to Simla made it possible to restore the connections of the permanent subscribers by the end of March.

The Rangoon exchange was removed to the new telegraph office.

The work of laying underground cables for the Lahore telephone system was in progress at the end of the year.

Progress has continued in the use of systems for simultaneous telegraphy and telephony. The 4-wire phantom system, giving three telephone and one telegraph circuit simultaneously on four wires, has continued to give satisfaction on the Delhi-Simla trunk lines and the system has been extended to other lines. The 2-wire phantom system giving one telephone and one telegraph circuit simultaneously on two wires has also continued to give satisfaction and its use has been extended. The 2-wire composite system giving one telephone and two telegraph circuits simultaneously on two wires has been successfully introduced.

Telephonic statistics.

60. The gross rental of all telephones provided by this Department, excluding those supplied to railways and canals, was Rs. 11,99,213 in 1917 against Rs. 10,56,625 for the preceding year. There are now 238 telephone exchanges owned and maintained by Government of which 58 are operated by this Department and the number of connections at the end of 1917 was 6,905 against 226 exchanges with 6,511 connections on the 31st December 1916. There were also 1,127 offices connected to independent non-exchange circuits compared with 1,115 in the previous year. The number of operators employed in the exchanges worked by the Department was 207.

Telephone exchanges worked by Companies.

61. At the end of 1917 the number of exchanges established by licensed telephone companies was 13 with 14,741 connections compared with 13 exchanges and 12,894 connections at the close of the preceding year. The rental of these systems rose from Rs. 23,68,685 to Rs. 24,86,193. The restrictions referred to in paragraph 53 apply also to these systems and must have adversely affected their extension during 1918.

Construction and Maintenance.

Line Construction and Maintenance.

62. No important construction works were carried out, but certain extra wires were erected in the Northern and Southern Circles to cope with extra traffic caused by military expeditions on the frontier and the general growth of traffic in these districts due to the war. Further extensions and re-arrangement of railway control working on the Great Indian Peninsula and Bengal-Nagpur Railways were carried

Three river cables to replace existing ones, were laid across the Ganges at Mokamehghat, the Meghna at Ashuganj and the Channel Creek at the Mudpoint Island.

The telegraph lines between Rupsa and Baripada were severely damaged by the rioters in the Sonthal rising of May 1917. The lines in the Shahabad district were also damaged by rioters in September 1917. Communication was promptly restored in both cases.

The storm in the Chittagong District in April 1917, and the unprecedented floods in the Gya District did considerable damage. In these cases, too, communication was promptly restored.

Telegraph Stores and Workshops.

63. The value of the stock at the beginning of the year was Rs. 41,78,926 and stores to the value of Rs. 45,38,870 were received during the year, of which Rs. 20,83,402 represented the value of stores imported from England ready for issue, Rs. 10,89,373 the value of stores transferred from the workshops and Rs. 7,27,223, the value of stores purchased in India. The issues during the year amounted to Rs. 39,96,254 of which Rs. 15,08,300 was transferred to other Government Departments and sold to the public. The value of stock in hand on 31st March 1918 was Rs. 47,21,542. Telegraph Stores

64. Notwithstanding the great decrease in expansion of telegraphs in India the telegraph workshops continue very busy. The value of outturn was Rs. 13,58,000 as against Rs. 15,05,000 in 1916-17. Telegraph Workshops.

The output of galvanized tubes for posts numbered 59,000 as against about 140,000 in normal times. 1,233 tons of iron castings were made as against 1,500 tons in 1916-17.

Considerable attention has during this year been given to redesigning patterns of standard articles by means of which many previously imported are now being made in the workshops and others hitherto made of imported materials are being made from materials produced locally. Among such articles were 32,000 insulator stalks, 59 steel masts and quantities of special field service stores.

The instrument shops were fully employed. 9,197 of the principal instruments were made; many of them, including 1,500 field telephones, being for the Army Department. 14,329 instruments were repaired as against 14,661 in 1916-17.

The workshops throughout the year assisted with the manufacture of munitions. An important addition of recent years to their work is the maintenance of the vans of the Calcutta Motor Postal Service which numbered 15 on the 31st March and are being added to rapidly. The workshops are also equipping a Motor Postal Service for Kashmir, which includes the fitting of 20 touring chassis and six lorries with van bodies.

The value of raw materials and stores consumed during the year was Rs. 10,42,352 of which about half were obtained by local purchase.

Financial Results of the Telegraph Department.

Financial position of the Telegraph Department.
(Appendix XVII,
page 50.)

65. The Telegraph Accounts for the last four years show the following extraordinary results :—

	Receipts.	Revenue charges.	Surplus.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1914-15	1,70,59,934	1,40,66,947	29,92,987
1915-16	1,85,78,406	1,41,20,653	43,57,753
1916-17	2,07,82,482	1,36,74,010	71,08,472
1917-18	2,46,85,258	1,27,22,959	1,19,62,299

There are several reasons for these remarkable results :—

1. The increase in the unit charge for ordinary telegrams with effect from 1st December 1916.
2. The extended use by the public of foreign fully paid cables due to the uncertainty of the mail service and the delays to deferred traffic.
3. The increase in State traffic due to the war.
4. The reduction in revenue charges owing to the substitution of lower paid staff in the place of telegraphists sent on field service.

Revenue charges include gratuities, leave allowances paid out of India and the average capitalised value of pensions paid to telegraph officials, while the receipts include the pro forma value of news free and concessional traffic. No credit is, however, taken for the services rendered by the Department in the care and maintenance of large quantities of mobilisation telegraph stores which are kept at the disposal of the military authorities at various centres ; nor is any allowance made for the very heavy expenditure, both initial and recurring, that has been incurred in connection with the erection and upkeep of the various wireless stations for which there is practically no monetary return.

The capital account of the Department was increased by Rs. 29,40,980 during 1917-18 and amounted to Rs. 13,32,55,339 at the end of the year.

PERSONAL MATTERS.

Personal matters.

66. During the year under review the following rewards were conferred upon officials of the Department for meritorious service in the field :—

POST OFFICE.

Lieutenant J. H. Owens, R.E. .. Created a Companion of the Indian Empire.
Mr. R. K. Gossain Awarded the Indian Distinguished Service Medal.

TELEGRAPHS.

Lieutenant-Colonel E. L. Bagshawe, C.I.E., R.E. Appointed a Member of the Distinguished Service Order.
Captain J. G. P. Cameron, R.E. .. Created a Companion of the Indian Empire.
Captain G. E. O. deSmidt, R.E. .. Appointed a Member of the Distinguished Service Order
Mr. F. Rowland Appointed a Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.

24 postal and 37 telegraph officials were mentioned in despatches for service in the field.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

G. R. CLARKE, *

Director General of Posts and Telegraphs.

GAZETTE OF INDIA.

NOTICE.

The 30th September, 1918

On and after 9th November and until further notice, Parts I, IV, V and VI of the Gazette of India and the Weather and Crop Report will be published in Delhi. Parts II and III will continue to be published in Calcutta. All notifications and other matter intended for publication in those Parts should be addressed to the Publisher at Delhi and Calcutta, respectively.

Attention is invited to the following Circular Memorandum of the Government of India, Home Department, of August 1901:—

"It has been brought to the notice of this Department that matter for the Gazette of India is sometimes sent to the Press late on Friday evenings for publication in the next day's Gazette and that this involves considerable inconvenience to the Press and expense to Government. In the Circular Memorandum of this Department, No 777—79, dated 9th February 1870, the Government of India directed that all notifications or other matter intended for insertion in the Gazette of India should be delivered at the Press not later than 2 P.M. on Friday, and that any papers sent thereafter must be certified to be extremely urgent in order to ensure their appearance in the next day's Gazette. The undersigned is directed to request that these orders may be more strictly observed in future, and that Departments will refrain from sending to the Press as extremely urgent any papers which can without harm or inconvenience be held over for the next Gazette."

J. P. HEWETT,
Secretary to the Government of India "

NOTICES.THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Patent Office Handbook (price one rupee) which contains the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary Rules) Act, 1915, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary) Rules, 1915, together with current regulations and instructions. These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs or on their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. For information regarding patents in countries other than India applications should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration. Neither does this Act deal with pictures, photographs, etc., for which copyright is obtainable under the Indian Copyright Act, 1914.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

FOREIGN SEA-BORNE TRADE DURING SEPTEMBER, 1918.

REVIEW of the SEA-BORNE TRADE of BRITISH INDIA for the month of SEPTEMBER, 1918, and for the six months ended September, 1918.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

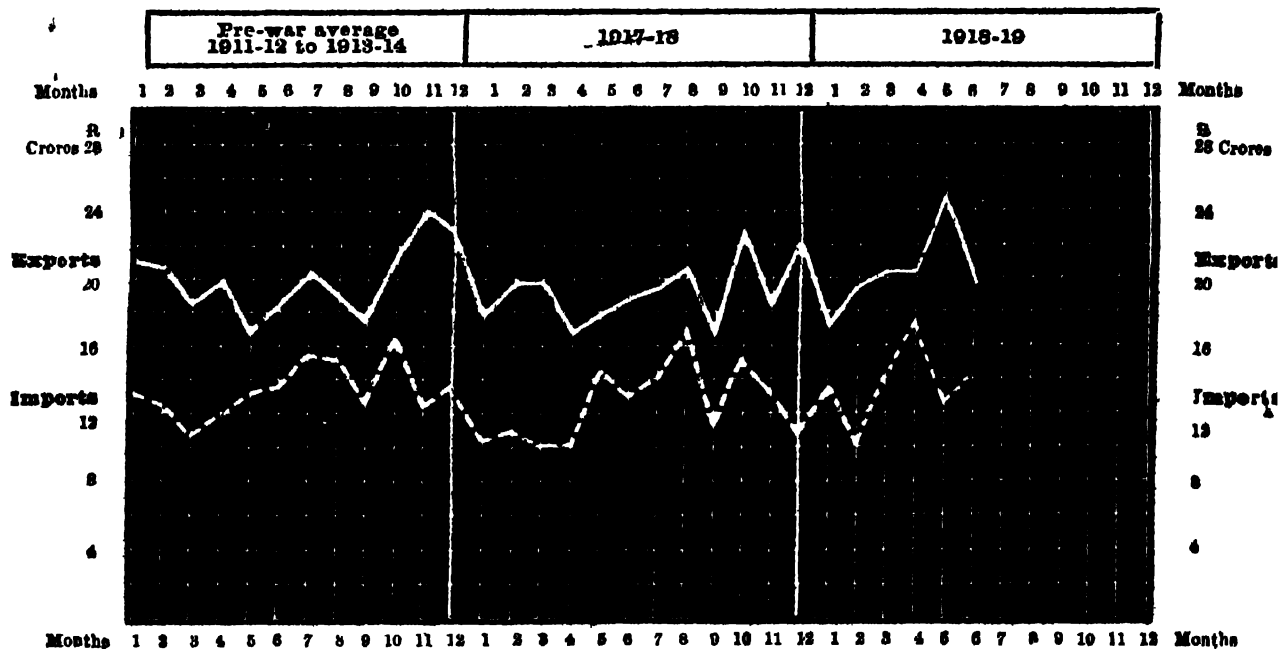

FOREIGN SEA-BORNE TRADE DURING SEPTEMBER, 1918.

The outstanding feature of the trade returns of September, 1918, was a considerable decrease in the export trade. The total imports of merchandise in September, 1918, were valued at R14 crores as against R12 crores in the preceding month, the value of the exports was R18 crores as against R24 crores, and of the re-exports was R1,25 lakhs as against R1,28 lakhs. Imports increased by 16 per cent, while exports decreased by 24 per cent and re-exports by 2 per cent. As compared with September, 1917, imports showed an increase of 11 per cent and re-exports of 2,17 per cent, but exports decreased by 2 per cent. A review of the trade of the six months ended September, 1918, will be found on page 6.

The chart showing the course of monthly imports and exports, including re-exports, from April, 1917, to September, 1918, as compared with the pre-war average, is appended below:—

MONTHLY IMPORTS AND EXPORTS FROM APRIL, 1917, TO SEPTEMBER, 1918, AS COMPARED WITH THE PRE-WAR AVERAGE.

(Private merchandise only)

The actual net excess of exports, including re-exports, over imports was R5,01 lakhs in September, 1918, and R12,59 lakhs in August, 1918. The statement below shows the figures of imports and exports, including re-exports, during August and September of the years 1916, 1917, and 1918, and the actual net excess of exports over imports during the same periods:—

	1916		1917		1918		Actual net excess of exports over imports
	Imports	Exports, including re-exports	Imports	Exports, including re-exports	Imports	Exports, including re-exports	1916	1917	1918.

TRADE BY PROVINCES.

The total imports and exports, including re-exports, of private merchandise into and from the several maritime provinces during the month of September, 1918, as compared with those of August, 1918, are stated below :—

	Imports		Exports, including re-exports
	August, 1918	September, 1918	August, 1918	September, 1918
	Rs (lakhs)	Rs (lakhs)	Rs (lakhs)	Rs (lakhs)
Bengal	5.23	4.66	12.78	8.75
Bombay	4.82	6.84	5.80	4.40
Sind	.77	1.05	2.77	2.41
Madras	1.16	1.16	1.88	1.71
Burma	.68	.65	2.02	2.10
Total	12.41	14.36	25.00	19.37

Under imports, Bombay showed an increase of 58 per cent and Sind of 36 per cent, but Bengal showed a decrease of 12 per cent and Burma of 26 per cent. The share of Madras was the same as in the preceding month. Under exports, Burma showed an increase of 4 per cent, while Bengal showed a decrease of 31 per cent, Bombay of 21 per cent, Sind of 13 per cent, and Madras of 7 per cent. These comparisons are with the preceding month (August, 1918).

BALANCE OF TRADE.

The following table takes into account the imports and exports of merchandise on private account only :—

Average rate of exchange	16 9/17	18'00(b)

In the six months ended September, 1918, the excess of exports over imports of private merchandise was Rs39.45 lakhs, as against Rs41.81 lakhs in the corresponding period of 1917 and Rs28.22 lakhs in 1913. As the publication of treasure figures has been temporarily discontinued, it is not possible to give here the net (private) exports from April to September, nor the net balance of trade in the same period. It may, however, be of interest to note that the net (private) exports are higher than those of 1917 and also than those of 1916. The balance of trade, so far as shown by the statistics of merchandise, treasure, Council Bills, and Enfaced Rupee paper, in the six months ended September, 1918, was in favour of India, but not to so large an extent as in 1916, while in the corresponding period of 1917 it was against India.

* Exclusive of Government transactions (other than articles of national importance in the case of exports).
 † Temporarily discontinued.
 (a) The figures of exports of merchandise are subject to correction.
 (b) Approximate rate for Telegraphic Transfers.

The amount of Council Bills and Telegraphic Transfers paid in India in the six months ended September, 1918, was Rs 28,18 lakhs, of which Rs 21,51 lakhs were paid through the Paper Currency Reserve and Rs 6,67 lakhs through the Treasuries. In the six months ended September, 1917, the amount was about Rs 31,27 lakhs of which about Rs 2,02 lakhs were paid through the Gold Standard Reserve, Rs 12,99 lakhs through the Paper Currency Reserve, and Rs 16,26 lakhs through the Treasuries. In the six months ended September, 1916, the amount of Council Bills paid was Rs 10,28 lakhs. As regards Enfaced Rupee paper, about Rs 10 lakhs represented the amount of paper enfaced to London and Rs 13 lakhs the amount re-transferred from London in the six months, April to September, 1918, while in the corresponding period of 1917 Rs 56,100 represented the amount of paper enfaced to London and Rs 65 lakhs the amount re-transferred from London.

DECLARED VALUE PER UNIT OF SELECTED ARTICLES.

The declared values per unit of certain selected articles imported and exported during September, 1913, 1917, and 1918, are noted below :—

The customs duty figures are an index to the volume of the import trade only, since under exports jute, rice, and tea only are subject to duty. In the six months ended September, 1918, the import duties increased to nearly R6,24 lakhs from nearly R5,52 lakhs in the six months ended September, 1917, and the export duties rose to nearly R1,90 lakhs from over R1,22 lakhs. The grand total of gross Indian sea and land customs revenue (excluding salt revenue) in the six months, April to September, 1918, amounted to nearly R9,06 lakhs, as compared with nearly R7,25 lakhs in the same period of last year.

RAILWAY STATISTICS.

Railway statistics, like the import and export statistics above, are a valuable index to the general movement of trade throughout the country, and show that the earnings from 1st April to 20th September, 1918, were R 42,47 lakhs, as against R37,49 lakhs in the corresponding period of 1917, or an increase of R4,98 lakhs.

TRADE OF ADEN.

The grand total value of the imports and exports of merchandise, by sea, into and from the port of Aden amounted to R1,38 lakhs in the month of August, 1918, and R6,19 lakhs in the five months, April to August, 1918. The value of the principal articles of imports and exports was as follows:—

PRESS COMMUNIQUE.

Rise in prices after four years of war

WHOLESALE PRICES.

Owing to the large demands on the part of the allies for Indian exports and to the high prices of cotton piece-goods, wholesale prices of all commodities in India at the end of August, 1918, showed a rise of 13½ per cent, as compared with the level immediately before the outbreak of war (end of July, 1914), and of 44 per cent as compared with the corresponding date of the preceding year, as will be seen from the following table :—

PRICES IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

It is interesting to compare the rise in the food prices in India with that in other countries. The following table, as compiled from the Labour Gazette of the Ministry of Labour, London, shows the latest available information on the rise as compared with the pre-war level in certain foreign countries:—

CALCUTTA, OCTOBER 17, 1918.

First INDIGO Forecast, 1918-19.

This forecast is based upon reports received from six provinces, which contain practically the whole area under indigo in British India.

The total area sown is estimated at 280,500 acres, being 55 per cent below the revised estimate at the corresponding date of last year. As compared with the final estimate of last year (690,600 acres), the present estimate shows a decrease of 59 per cent.

The total yield of dye is now roughly estimated at 32,100 cwts, as against 70,300 cwts estimated at this time last year, or a decrease of 54 per cent. As compared with the final estimate of last year (87,800 cwts), the present estimate shows a decrease of 63 per cent.

Weather conditions at sowing time were unfavourable owing to deficient rainfall, and the condition of the crop, on the whole, is only fair.

Details for the provinces are given below :—

Total . . .	280,500	627,100	32,100	70,300	13	13

The provincial reports are summarized below :—

Madras (53·7 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The area sown is estimated at 114,700 acres as against 275,700 acres, the revised estimate at the corresponding date of last year, or a decrease of 58 per cent. The decrease is general, but is particularly heavy in the ceded districts and Guntur, where indigo is grown as a dry crop in the south-west monsoon season. In these districts the failure of the monsoon this year has largely prevented sowings, except in Cuddapah, where the season was better. The general decrease in area is due to the dull state of the market throughout last year, and the consequent difficulty of disposing of old stocks. The season has favoured the production of dye of good quality in Vizagapatam; elsewhere the season has been generally unfavourable. The yield of dye is provisionally estimated at 14,900 cwts, as against 34,000 cwts estimated at this time last year. The Director of Agriculture remarks that in view of the rising market it is probable that most of the plants will be manufactured, instead of being used as green manure as last year.

Bihar and Orissa (20·5 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The area sown this year is estimated at 66,300 acres, which is 28 per cent below the area reported at this date last year. The decrease is attributed to agrarian disturbances and the fall in the price of indigo last year. The crop appeared to be up to the average, but the produce was poor owing to floods; and there will be practically no manufacture of second cuttings. For the province, as a whole, the outturn is estimated at 60 per cent of the normal, as against 67 per cent at the corresponding period of last year. According to the estimates furnished by the Bihar Planters' Association for Saran, Champaran, Muzaffarpur, and Darbhanga, and by the District Officers for the remaining four districts, the total yield for the province works out to 7,100 cwts, as against 10,300 cwts estimated at this time last year, or a decrease of 31 per cent. The trade estimate for the province (including the Nadia district of Bengal) amounts to 5,700 cwts.

United Provinces (16·3 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The area is estimated at 51,700 acres, which is 71 per cent below the estimate made at this date last year. Monsoon conditions have been unfavourable and the crop has in places suffered from drought. On the basis of reports received from factories the total yield of dye, after allowing for next year's seed, is estimated at 3,400 cwts, as against 15,000 cwts estimated at this time last year.

Punjab (8·2 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The area at the end of September is estimated at 30,900 acres, being 56 per cent below the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The decrease, which is most marked in Multan and Muzaffargarh, is attributed to deficient rainfall, late flowing of canals, and a short supply of water therein, and also to a fall in the price of indigo. Owing to the unfavourable season, the outturn is expected to be below average. The yield of dye is at present estimated at 4,900 cwts, being 43 per cent below the corresponding estimate of last year.

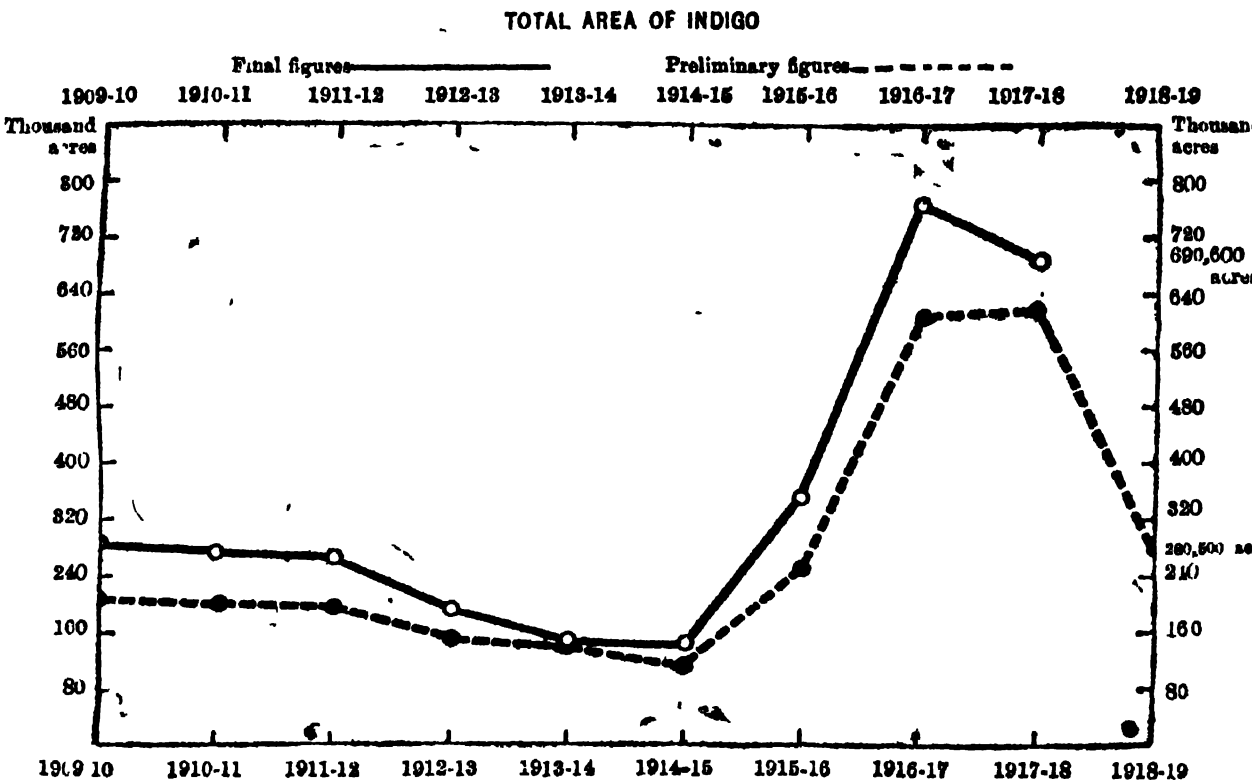

Bombay and Sind (0·7 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The area sown is reported to be 6,800 acres (4,500 acres being in the Khairpur State), which is 28 per cent below the estimate made at this time last year. The decrease is attributed to unfavourable inundation. The crop is in fair condition at present, and the yield is estimated at 1,000 cwts, as against 1,900 cwts last year.

Bengal (0·5 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The area sown is estimated at 10,100 acres, as against 7,000 acres last year. The outturn is estimated at 71 per cent of the normal, which works out to 800 cwts, as against 73 per cent reported last year.

Chart.—The chart below illustrates the variations in the preliminary estimates of acreage for the last ten years as compared with those in the final figures.

(a) Revised figure.

(b) The final estimates for 1917-18 were: Madras 15 lbs., Bihar and Orissa 13 lbs., United Provinces 10 lbs., Punjab 20 lbs., Bombay and Sind 17 lbs., and Bengal 8 lbs per acre.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

CALCUTTA, OCTOBER 18, 1918.

Second COTTON Forecast, 1918-19.

This forecast is based on reports furnished by provinces, which comprise the entire cotton crop of India. It relates generally to sowings made up to the 1st October.

The total area so far reported this year amounts to 15,814,000 acres, and is 25 per cent below the estimate at this date last year. The decrease, which is mainly due to unfavourable weather conditions at sowing time, occurs in Mysore (80 per cent), Ajmer-Merwara (60 per cent), Rajputana (46 per cent), Madras (41 per cent), Bombay and Hyderabad (38 per cent each), the United Provinces (37 per cent), Central India (12 per cent), and the Central Provinces and Berar (9 per cent). On the other hand, the North-West Frontier Province shows an increase of 41 per cent, Burma 33 per cent, Sind 31 per cent, Punjab 14 per cent, Bihar and Orissa 13 per cent, and Assam 3 per cent.

The crop has been adversely affected by deficient rainfall in most of the important cotton-growing provinces. The present condition of the crop is reported to be good in the Central Provinces and Berar, Sind, Burma, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, and Assam. Elsewhere it is generally fair. Rain is badly wanted almost everywhere, especially in the Central Provinces and Berar and in Gujarat.

The detailed figures for the provinces and States are given below :—

The provincial reports are summarised below :—

Bombay and Beroda (30·4 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown up to the 1st October with both early and late varieties of cotton is reported to be 4,007,000 acres (1,764,000 acres being in the Native States), and is 38 per cent below the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The decline is general and is mainly attributed to deficient rains for sowing. In Gujarat sowings are still unfinished in places owing to insufficiency of rain, and rain is urgently wanted everywhere. The crop is withering in the north; but in the south it is in fair condition. In north Deccan September rains were very deficient, and the crop is suffering from want of moisture almost everywhere; in the south the recent rains have somewhat refreshed the crops in places. In the Karnatak sowings still continue and the crop is just germinating.

Central Provinces and Berar (20·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown is estimated at 4,244,000 acres (2,896,000 acres being in Berar), being 9 per cent below the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The decrease, which is shared by all the important cotton growing districts, may be attributed to the reservation of larger areas for food crops. Light but well distributed rain was generally received in August and in the first part of September. The prospects are so far hopeful, but the subsequent continued break with little or no rain has damaged the crop and stunted the growth of the plants on light soils, particularly in Nimar and the Berar districts, and more rain is immediately required everywhere. The outturn for the Central Provinces is at present estimated at 120 per cent and that for Berar at 100 per cent of the normal, but unless more is at once received the present estimates are likely to be reduced in several districts.

Madras (10.2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area sown up to the end of September is estimated at 798,000 acres, being 41 per cent below the area reported at this date last year. The decrease in the south is mainly in the Coimbatore and Madura districts where lack of rain has prevented the sowing of the early crop of unirrigated cotton. The area under irrigated 'Cambodia' cotton is expected to be larger than that in last year. There is a large decrease in the 'Westerns and Northerns' and 'Cocanadas' areas, which is attributed to the failure of rains in July and August. Good rains were, however, received in the middle of September and sowings continued on the date of report (7th October). The area now reported cannot, therefore, be taken as an indication of the final area. Considering the high price of cotton, and the fact that pure cotton is now being sown in many places, where it is too late to sow the usual mixed crop, the Director of Agriculture believes that the final areas under 'Westerns and Northerns' and 'Cocanadas' will be larger than last year's, except in the western taluks of Bellary where the September rain also failed.

Punjab (6.7 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown is estimated at 1,551,000 acres (111,000 acres being in the Native States), as against 1,364,000 acres reported at this date last year, or an increase of 14 per cent. The corresponding forecast of last year was, however, an underestimate. The season has not been favourable. Good rain fell in the latter half of August and the first week of September and was useful to the standing crop. Since the 10th September the weather has been practically dry except for a few falls in the extreme north of the province. The condition of the irrigated crop is reported to be average to good and that of the unirrigated crop generally poor.

United Provinces (5.6 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area is at present estimated at 785,000 acres, being 37 per cent below the area estimated at this date last year. Sowings have continued later than usual under the influence of high prices, some land being placed under the crop during the August rain. In the principal cotton-growing tracts of the provinces the break, which lasted throughout July, came to an end about the third week of August, and in the latter half of the month most districts had well distributed rainfall. Some rain fell in the first week of September, but the greater part of the month was rainless. On irrigated land, where sufficient water was received, the crop has done well. Making allowances for damages by insect pests in its early stages and inadequate supplies of water in certain areas, the outturn is not expected to exceed 90 per cent of the normal. On unirrigated areas the outturn is reported to be very variable; in some places the crop was a total failure, in others rain was not received in time for the plants to fully recover. The probable outturn is estimated at between 40 and 60 per cent of the normal.

Sind (1.2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area is estimated at 260,000 acres, and is 31 per cent above the area estimated at the corresponding date of last year. The increase is attributed to the stimulus of high prices, and the condition of the crop is reported to be fairly satisfactory.

Burma (1.1 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area is estimated at 306,000 acres, being 33 per cent above the area reported at this date last year. The rainfall has, on the whole, been satisfactory, except in the Moiktila district; and the prospects of the crop are favourable.

Bengal (0.4 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area sown up to date with both early and late cotton is reported to be 72,000 acres, being the same as reported at this date last year. The prospects are on the whole good. The report from the Chittagong Hill Tracts forecasts a good crop, while that from Hill Tippera is fairly satisfactory.

Bihar and Orissa (0.3 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area sown up to date with both early and late cotton is estimated at 76,000 acres, and is 13 per cent above the area reported at this date last year. For both the varieties the weather conditions have been favourable. The present condition of the early crop is reported to be generally good. Fair progress has been made with the sowings of the late crop. Sowings have not yet commenced in Cuttack.

North-West Frontier Province (0.2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area sown up to the end of September is estimated at 35,000 acres, being 41 per cent above the area reported at this date last year. The area in the corresponding forecast of last year was, however, underestimated. The condition of the crop is generally below average owing to want of rain. Grass-hoppers and the boll-worm have also caused damages in parts.

Assam (0.2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The estimated area under the crop is 33,000 acres, being 3 per cent above the area reported at this date last year. The prospects of the crop continue to be generally good.

Ajmer-Merwara (0.2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area now reported is 19,000 acres, and is 60 per cent below the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The decrease is attributed to the failure of rains. The crop on irrigated areas is in good condition, but that on unirrigated lands is withering.

Hyderabad (14.7 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area sown with both early and late cotton is estimated at 2,092,000 acres, as against 3,374,000 acres reported at this date last year, or a decrease of 38 per cent. The decrease is attributed to the failure of early rains and delay in the arrival of late rains. Late sowings, however, still continue. The detailed figures are as follows:—

AREA OF COTTON

(In million acres.)

Cotton crop in foreign countries.—The latest information published by the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, shows that in the United States of America the area cultivated with cotton in 1918 is 37,058,000 acres, as against 33,827,000 acres in the previous year. The crop is starting well. Although the crop is generally somewhat late, the stand is good. In Egypt, the temperature during May was changeable and generally too cold, especially at night, to benefit the crop. Towards the end of the month the weather improved and became more favourable. Water supply was ample, but slight insect damage is reported. The crop is late, especially in Lower Egypt.

No. 53. - The following Statutes are published for general information :

1 NAVAL PRIZE ACT, 1918

[8 AND 9 GEO. 5, CH 30]

AN ACT TO AMEND THE LAW RELATING TO NAVAL PRIZE OF WAR

[8th August 1918.]

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :

(1765)

1. (1) If His Majesty is pleased by Proclamation or Order in Council to signify his intention to make a grant of prize money out of the proceeds of prize captured in the present war, the sums which have been or may be received in respect of ships and goods captured during the present war specified in Part I of the schedule to this Act shall (subject as respects money in any prize court to the assent of that court) be paid as and when the Treasury and Admiralty jointly direct into a separate fund to be called the Naval Prize Fund, and there shall be charged on and payable out of the Naval Prize Fund all such costs, charges, expenses, and claims as are mentioned in Part II of the said schedule, and any question whether any sum is payable into or out of that fund shall be determined by the Tribunal hereinafter constituted.

(2) Subject to the payment of such costs, charges, expenses, and claims as aforesaid, such sum as may be required for the payment of prize money under this Act shall be a first charge on the Naval Prize Fund, and such prize money shall be of such amounts and payable to such members of His Majesty's Naval and Marine forces as hereinafter defined, or in the case of their death their representatives, and in such manner, as His Majesty may by Proclamation or Order in Council determine.

(3) The residue of the said Fund may be applied towards any of the purposes for which provision may be made by Greenwich Hospital, and also, subject to regulations made by the Admiralty, may be applied for the benefit of members and dependants of members of forces raised and provided by the Governments of parts of His Majesty's dominions outside the United Kingdom.

27 & 28 Vict.
c. 24. (4) Section seventeen of the Naval Agency and Distribution Act, 1864 (which requires forfeited and unclaimed shares and balances of prize money, and a percentage of the proceeds of prize and prize money to be carried to the naval prize cash balance) shall not apply to sums payable into the Naval Prize Fund or to any prize money payable out of that Fund but any forfeited and unclaimed shares and balances of such prize money may be applied for the purposes for which the residue of the said Fund is applicable, without prejudice, however, to the rights of any person who may subsequently establish a claim thereto, and no ship's agent shall be entitled to any share in the money so distributed, anything in section nineteen of the Naval Agency and Distribution Act, 1864, to the contrary notwithstanding, but, save as aforesaid, and subject to the provisions of this Act with respect to the investment of funds standing to the credit of the Naval Prize Fund, the Naval Agency and Distribution Act, 1864 shall so far as applicable apply to the sums distributable out of the Naval Prize Fund and the distribution of those sums.

(5) The Naval Prize Fund shall be under the control of the Admiralty, and payments into and out of that fund and all matters relating to the fund shall be made and regulated in such manner as the Admiralty direct and any sum standing to the credit of the Fund may be temporarily invested in such manner as the Treasury may authorise, and the accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the fund shall be made up at such times, in such form, and with such particulars as may be directed by the Treasury, and shall be audited by the Comptroller and Auditor General as public accounts in accordance with such regulations as the Treasury may make and shall be laid before Parliament together with his report thereon.

27 & 28 Vict.
c. 25. (6) For the purposes of this Act the expression "goods" has the same meaning as in the Naval Prize Act, 1864, and the expression "members of His Majesty's Naval and Marine Forces" includes persons who are or have been members of His Majesty's Naval and Marine Forces, and officers and members of the crews of His Majesty's ships of war, and the expressions "His Majesty's Naval and Marine Forces" and "His Majesty's ships of war" include forces, and ships raised and provided by the Governments of any part of His Majesty's Dominions outside the United Kingdom, and the latter expression further include any ship or vessel engaged in the naval service of His Majesty whether belonging to His Majesty or not, which the Admiralty declare is a ship of war for the purposes of this section, either generally or during such period or whilst engaged on such service as may be specified by the Admiralty.

2. (1) For the purposes of this Act there shall be constituted a tribunal, in this Act referred to as the tribunal, consisting in the first instance of the following persons, namely, the Right Honourable Walter George Frank Baron Phillimore of Shiplake (who shall be chairman), Admiral of the Fleet, Sir George Astley Callaghan, G.C.B., G.C.V.O. and the Right Honourable Sir Guy Douglas Arthur Fleetwood-Wilson, G.C.I.E., K.C.B., K.C.M.G., and if any vacancy occurs amongst the members of the tribunal it shall be lawful for His Majesty to appoint a person to fill the vacancy :

30 & 40
Vict. c. 59.
50 & 61
Vict. c. 70. Provided that in the case of a vacancy in the chairmanship the person appointed to fill the vacancy shall be a person who holds or has held high judicial office within the meaning of the Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1876, as amended by the Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1887, and provided that at least one member of the tribunal shall be an officer of the Royal Navy or Royal Marines

(2) The tribunal may Act by two of its members notwithstanding a vacancy in its members, and may make rules regulating its own procedure and shall have a seal which can be judicially noticed.

(3) The tribunal may appoint a clerk who shall receive such salary or other remuneration as the Treasury may determine.

(4) The tribunal shall have all such powers, rights, and privileges as are vested in the High Court or in any judge thereof, on the occasion of any action, in respect of the following matters :

(a) The enforcing the attendance of witnesses and examining them on oath, affirmation, or otherwise, and the issue of a commission or a request to examine witnesses abroad ; and

(b) The compelling the production of documents, and

(c) The punishing persons guilty of contempt.

and a summons signed by the chairman of the tribunal may be substituted for and shall be equivalent to any formal process capable of being issued in any action for enforcing the attendance of witnesses and compelling the production of documents

3. (1) The percentage of the sums distributable as prize bounty payable to ships' agents by way of remuneration shall be such percentage

Provisions as to prize bounty not exceeding one per cent. as the Prize Court may having regard to the expense and trouble involved determine to be just.

(2) The persons entitled to share in the distribution of any prize bounty under section forty-two of the Naval Prize Act, 1864, shall include and shall be deemed as from the commencement of the present war to have included the officers and crew of such of His Majesty's aircraft, operating under the directions of the Admiralty, as are determined by the Prize Court to have been actually present at and to have assisted in, the taking or destroying of an armed ship of any of His Majesty's enemies.

4 Where, in pursuance of the Navy and Marines (Property of Deceased) Act, 1867, on the death of any person being or having been an officer, seaman or marine, the amount to the credit of the deceased in the books of the Admiralty in respect of moneys payable by the Admiralty, being an amount not exceeding one hundred pounds, has been disposed of without representation to the deceased being taken out and subsequently in consequence of an award of prize money or prize bounty there becomes payable to the estate of the deceased an amount less than one hundred pounds, the amount of such money or bounty may be disposed of by the Admiralty, if they think fit in accordance with the said Act without requiring representation to the deceased to be taken out, notwithstanding that the amount of the money or bounty is such that when added to the other sums previously paid by the Admiralty the aggregate exceeds one hundred pounds.

28 and 29
Vict. c. 111.

Short title and savings.

5 (1) This Act may be cited as the Naval Prize Act, 1918.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall be construed as prejudicing or affecting any prerogative or right of His Majesty to grant or release any ship or goods subject to prize jurisdiction, or the proceeds of sale thereof, or money representing the same, or to grant or release any droits of the Crown

SCHEDULE

PART I.

Section 1 (1).

PAYMENTS INTO THE NAVAL PRIZE FUND.

(1) Any money in court paid in respect of any ship or goods condemned by any prize court, whether in the United Kingdom or elsewhere, being droits of the Crown together with any accumulations of interest accrued on any such money

(2) Where any ship or goods condemned by any prize court, being droits of the Crown, have, whether before or after the condemnation, been delivered to the Crown with or without the payment of any money into court or any undertaking to pay any money into court, a sum equal to the value of the ship or goods at the date of delivery together with interest from the date of such delivery, after deducting any money which has been paid into court, or which may be payable under any such undertaking in respect of the ship or goods in question

(3) Any sum paid in pursuance of any bond agreement or undertaking executed or given in favour of the Crown in respect of any ship or goods subject to prize jurisdiction which are droits of the Crown or which if condemned would have been droits of the Crown or in respect of the proceeds of sale or money representing any such ship or goods, or in consideration for any money paid out of the Naval Prize Fund.

(4) Any sums received from any of His Majesty's Allies under any convention relating to prizes captured during the present war.

(5) Any other sums received in respect of ships and goods subject to prize jurisdiction which the tribunal consider may reasonably be treated, having regard to the principles and practice heretofore observed by prize courts, as being sums to which, had there been a grant of prize to captors, captors would have been entitled.

PART II

CHARGES ON NAVAL PRIZE FUND

(1) All expenses (not otherwise recovered) incurred by any prize court, or incurred in connection with, or with a view to prize proceedings (other than legal expenses), in relation to ships and goods in the custody of the court which are droits of the Crown or which if condemned would have been droits of the Crown, whether the same are condemned or are released, and whether such expenses were incurred before or after condemnation, except where, having regard to the special circumstances of the case, the tribunal may otherwise direct.

(2) Any reward or remuneration awarded to any officer or person seizing or taking any ship or goods or part thereof which are droits of the Crown or which if condemned would have been droits of the Crown, or giving information in relation thereto, or leading to the condemnation thereof.

(3) Any sum payable to any of His Majesty's Allies under any convention relating to prizes captured during the present war.

(4) Any claims in respect of any ship or goods subject to prize jurisdiction, which are droits of the Crown or which if condemned would have been droits of the Crown or of the proceeds of sale of, or money representing, any such ship or goods which the Treasury on the recommendation of the Prize Claims Committee may have paid or may hereafter pay being claims of a nature that had they been established in prize proceedings would have been ordered by a prize court to be paid by the persons entitled to the ship or goods or out of the money representing the same.

(5) Any other costs, charges, expenses and claims which the tribunal consider may reasonably be treated, having regard to the principles and practice heretofore observed by prize courts, as being costs, charges, and claims which, had there been a grant of prize to captors, captors would have been liable to pay.

(6) The remuneration of the clerk of the tribunal and any other expenses of the tribunal to such amount as the Treasury may sanction.

2 BRITISH NATIONALITY AND STATUS OF ALIENS ACT, 1918

[8 AND 9 GEO. 5, CH. 38]

AN ACT TO AMEND THE BRITISH NATIONALITY AND STATUS OF ALIENS ACT, 1914

[8th August 1918.]

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

4 & 5 Geo. 5,
c. 17.

1 The following sections shall be substituted for section seven of the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914 (hereinafter referred to as "the principal Act"), which relates to the revocation of certificates of naturalization :—

"7.—(1) Where the Secretary of State is satisfied that a certificate of naturalization granted by him has been obtained by false representation or fraud, or by concealment of material circumstances, or that the person to whom the certificate is granted has shown himself by act or speech to be disaffected or disloyal to His Majesty, the Secretary of State shall by order revoke the certificate.

"(2) Without prejudice to the foregoing provisions the Secretary of State shall by order revoke a certificate of naturalization granted by him in any case in which he is satisfied that the person to whom the certificate was granted either—

(a) has during any war in which His Majesty is engaged unlawfully traded or communicated with the enemy or with the subject of an enemy state, or been engaged in or associated with any business which is to his knowledge carried on in such manner as to assist the enemy in such war ; or

- (b) has within five years of the date of the grant of the certificate been sentenced by any court in His Majesty's dominions to imprisonment for a term of not less than twelve months, or to a term of penal servitude, or to a fine of not less than one hundred pounds ; or
- (c) was not of good character at the date of the grant of the certificate ; or
- (d) has since the date of the grant of the certificate been for a period of not less than seven years ordinarily resident out of His Majesty's dominions otherwise than as a representative of a British subject, firm, or company carrying on business, or an institution established, in His Majesty's dominions, or in the service of the Crown, and has not maintained substantial connection with His Majesty's dominions ; or
- (e) remains according to the law of a state at war with His Majesty a subject of that state ; and that (in any case) the continuance of the certificate is not conducive to the public good.

"(3) The Secretary of State may, if he thinks fit, before making an order under this section refer the case for such inquiry as is hereinafter specified, and in any case to which sub-section (1) or paragraph (a), (c), or (e) of sub-section (2) of this section applies, the Secretary of State shall, by notice given to or sent to the last-known address of the holder of the certificate, give him an opportunity of claiming that the case be referred for such inquiry, and if the holder so claims in accordance with the notice the Secretary of State shall refer the case for inquiry accordingly.

"(4) An inquiry under this section shall be held by a committee constituted for the purpose by the Secretary of State, presided over by a person (appointed by the Secretary of State with the approval of the Lord Chancellor) who holds or has held high judicial office, and shall be conducted in such manner as the Secretary of State may direct:

"Provided that any such inquiry may, if the Secretary of State thinks fit, instead of being held as aforesaid be held by the High Court, and the practice and procedure on any inquiry so held shall be regulated by rules of court.

"A committee appointed under this section shall have all such powers, rights, and privileges as are vested in the High Court or in any judge thereof on the occasion of any action, in respect of the following matters :—

- (a) the enforcing the attendance of witnesses and examining them on oath, affirmation, or otherwise, and the issue of a commission or a request to examine witnesses abroad, and
- (b) the compelling the production of documents ; and
- (c) the punishing persons guilty of contempt :

and a summons signed by one or more members of the committee may be substituted for a writ, and shall be equivalent to any formal process capable of being issued in any action for enforcing the attendance of witnesses and compelling the production of documents.

"(5) Where a person to whom a certificate of naturalization has been granted in some other part of His Majesty's dominions is resident in the United Kingdom, the certificate may be revoked in accordance with this section by the Secretary of State, with the concurrence of the Government of that part of His Majesty's dominions in which the certificate was granted.

"(6) When the Secretary of State revokes a certificate of naturalization, the revocation shall have effect from such date as the Secretary of State may direct, and the person whose certificate shall be given up and cancelled, and any person refusing or neglecting to give up his certificate shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

"7A. 1) Where a certificate of naturalization is revoked the Secretary of State may by order direct that the wife and minor children (if any of them) of the person whose certificate is revoked shall cease to be British subjects, and any such person shall thereupon become an alien ; but except where the Secretary of State directs as aforesaid the nationality of the wife and minor children of the person whose certificate is revoked shall not be affected by the revocation, and they shall remain British subjects.

"Provided that —

- "(a) it shall be lawful for the wife of any such person within six months after the date of the order of revocation to make a declaration of alienage, and thereupon she and any minor children of her husband and herself shall cease to be British subjects and shall become aliens ; and

- "(b) the Secretary of State shall not make any such order as aforesaid in the case of a wife who was at birth a British subject unless he is satisfied that if she had held a certificate of naturalization in her own right the certificate could properly have been revoked under this Act, and the provisions of this Act as to referring cases for inquiry shall apply to the making of any such order as they apply to the revocation of a certificate.

" (2) The provisions of this section shall, as respects persons affected thereby, have effect in substitution for any other provisions of this Act as to the effect upon the wife and children of any person where the person ceases to be a British subject and such other provisions shall accordingly not apply in any such case.

" (3) Where a certificate of naturalization is revoked the former holder thereof shall be regarded as an alien and as a subject of the state to which he belonged at the time the certificate was granted "

Minor amendments of the principal Act

2 The following amendments shall be made in the principal Act :—

(1) In paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section one (which defines natural-born British subject) after the words " had been granted " there shall be inserted the words " or had become a British subject by reason of any annexation of territory, or was at the time of that person's birth in the service of the Crown "; and at the end of that section the following subsection shall be inserted :—

" (4) The certificate of a Secretary of State that a person was at any date in the service of the Crown shall, for the purposes of this section, be conclusive."

(2) At the end of section two (which relates to the grant of certificates of naturalization) the following subsection shall be inserted :—

" (6) For the purposes of this section a period spent in the service of the Crown may, if the Secretary of State thinks fit, be treated as equivalent to a period of residence in the United Kingdom.

(3) In subsection (2) of section five " whether or not " shall be substituted for " although " and " not " shall be omitted, and in subsection (3) of section five " Act " shall be substituted for " section "

(4) In subsection (1) of section eight (which relates to the grant of certificates of naturalization in British possessions) after the words " United Kingdom " there shall be inserted the words " and of a High Court or superior court of the possession for the High Court, and with the omission of any reference to the approval of the Lord Chancellor," and after the words " any certificate proposed to be granted " there shall be inserted the words " and any proposal to revoke any certificate."

(5) In section ten (which relates to the national status of married women) at the end of the section there shall be added the words " and provided that where an alien is a subject of a state at war with His Majesty it shall be lawful for his wife if she was at birth a British subject to make a declaration that she desires to resume British nationality, and thereupon the Secretary of State, if he is satisfied that it is desirable that she be permitted to do so, may grant her a certificate of naturalization."

(6) In subsection (1) of section twenty-seven (which contains definitions) at the end of the definition of " British subject " after the words " has been granted " there shall be inserted the words " or a person who has become a subject of His Majesty by reason of any annexation of territory," and for subsection (2) of that section the following subsection shall be substituted :—

" (2) Where in pursuance of this Act the name of a child is included in a certificate of naturalization granted to his parent, or where, in pursuance of any Act repealed by this Act, any child has been deemed to be a naturalized British subject by reason of residence with his parent, such child shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a person to whom a certificate of naturalization has been granted."

3. (1) Where a certificate of naturalization has been granted in the United Kingdom during the present war to a person who at, or at any time before, the grant of the certificate was the subject of a country which at the date of the grant was at war with His Majesty, the Secretary of State shall refer for such inquiry as is provided for in the case of revocation of certificates the question whether it is desirable that the certificate should be revoked, and if such question shall be answered in the affirmative shall revoke the certificate, but this provision shall not apply to a person who at birth was a British subject.

(2) No certificate of naturalization shall, before the expiration of a period of ten years after the termination of the present war, be granted in the United Kingdom to any subject of a country which at the time of the passing of this Act was at war with His Majesty, but this provision shall not apply to a person who—

(a) has served in His Majesty's forces or in the forces of any of His Majesty's Allies or of any country acting in naval or military co-operation with His Majesty; or

(b) is a member of a race or community known to be opposed to the enemy governments ; or

(c) was at birth a British subject.

4. —(1) This Act may be cited as the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1918, and the principal Act and this Act may be cited together as the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Acts, 1914 and 1918.

(2) Every enactment and word which is directed by this Act to be substituted for or added to any portion of the principal Act shall form part of that Act in the place assigned to it by this Act ; and the principal Act, and any enactments referring thereto, shall after the commencement of this Act be construed as if that enactment or word had been originally enacted in the principal Act in the place so assigned, and, where it is substituted for another enactment or word, had been so enacted in lieu of that enactment or word, and the expression " this Act " in the principal Act or this Act shall be construed accordingly.

(3) A copy of the principal Act with every such enactment and word inserted in the place so assigned shall be prepared and certified by the Clerk of the Parliaments and deposited with the rolls of Parliament, and His Majesty's printer shall print in accordance with the copy so certified all copies of the principal Act which are printed after the commencement of this Act.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
26th October 1918.

Burma.—In Lower Burma five districts received no rain while in others light showers fell. In Upper Burma the rainfall was general. Reaping of autumn rice has commenced. Standing crops are in satisfactory condition. Cattle are generally healthy. The price of unhusked rice has increased slightly and is much above normal. The market for white rice has dropped to Rs. 390 per hundred baskets.

Assam.—The weather during the week was seasonable. Manufacture of tea, ploughing for mustard and sowing of pulses are proceeding. Prospects of crops are fair to good. Cattle disease is reported from one district. The price of common rice has fallen slightly.

Bengal.—Report not received.

Bihar and Orissa.—Report not received.

United Provinces.—Report not received.

Punjab.—Report not received.

North-West Frontier Province.—Report not received.

Jammu.—No rain fell during the week. Prices are stationary.

Kashmir.—Report not received.

Rajputana.—During the week the weather was rainless. Irrigated crops are in fair condition but unirrigated crops are withering. Sowings of spring crops are restricted. The condition of cattle is generally fair. Fodder is getting scarce. Water is sufficient.

Central India.—Report not received.

Central Provinces.—Report not received.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of Ratnagiri, Kanara, Dharwar, Kolhapur and Savantvadi. More rain is needed everywhere. Standing crops have been damaged by rats in Hyderabad. They are withering generally except in parts of Dharwar where the recent rainfall has slightly improved the situation. Harvesting of autumn crops generally continues. Sowing of spring crops continues in East Khandesh, Satara, Dharwar, Baroda and Sholapur. Cotton picking continues in Nawabshah, Thar and Parkar and Khandesh. The fodder supply is generally deficient. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient but cattle are deteriorating in parts of Karachi, Ahmedabad, Kaira, the Deccan, Kolhapur and Kathiawar. Irrigation is deficient in parts of Sind, Kaira, Surat, Dharwar and Sholapur. Prices of food-grains are high but generally steady.

Hyderabad.—Report not received.

Mysore.—Report not received.

Coorg.—Report not received.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was very heavy in Travancore, good in Coimbatore, Madurai, Ramnad, Tinnevely, Malabar, South Kanara, Cochin and the Hills. It was fair in South Arcot, North Arcot, Salem, Trichinopoly and Tanjore and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair condition in parts but are generally withering and require rain immediately. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is limited with culture sometimes fair but poor in two and parts of ten other districts. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding but are restricted in parts for want of more rain. The condition of cattle is generally good. Water is insufficient except in two districts. Pasture is sufficient except in seven districts and parts of seven others. Fodder is sufficient except in four districts and parts of eleven others. Prices have risen generally. Prospects are generally discouraging.

APPLICATION FOR AMENDMENT UNDER SECTION 17.

Notice is hereby given that all persons interested in opposing the following application to amend at any time within three months of the date of this Gazette of India give notice at the Patent Office in the prescribed form No. 5 of such opposition.

No. 3672 of 1918. Frederick Henry Addis, of Carriage and Wagon Department, B., B. & C. I. Ry., Ajmer, seeks leave to amend the specification and drawings of his application for patent numbered as above. The proposed amendments as shown in the printed specification are as follows:—

On page 1, line 7 by substituting "Figures 1 to 6" for "Figures 1 to 4."

- On page 2, line 1, by inserting "as shown in Figures 5 and 6," after the first word "buffers."
- On page 2, line 3, by inserting reference letter "m" after the word "spring."
- On page 2, line 5, by inserting reference letters "n, n'" after "rods" and the words "as shown in Figure 5" after "frame."
- On page 2, line 6, by inserting "spring p" after "one."
- On page 2, line 8, by inserting reference letter "r" after "rods."
- On page 2, line 9, by inserting reference letter "s" after "frame."
- On page 2, line 10, by adding "as shown in Figure 6" after "Spring."
- On page 2, Claim 5, by substituting "modifications" for "modification" and by adding "and illustrated in Figures 5 and 6" at the end. By adding Figures 5 and 6 to the drawings.

AMENDMENT ALLOWED UNDER SECTION 17.

No. 2851 of 1916. In pursuance of leave granted on 25th October 1918, the above numbered specification has been amended in the manner set forth in the Gazette of India, dated the 13th July 1918.

CESSATION OF EXCLUSIVE PRIVILEGES.

The public are warned that entries under this heading must not be accepted as final, as under the provisions of Rules 9 and 11 of "The Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary) Rules, 1915," the Controller may extend the time prescribed by the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, and by the Inventions and Designs Act, 1888, for paying the necessary renewal fees.

The Patent Office will supply on request definite information, so far as possible, as to the position of any particular Patent or Exclusive Privilege.

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Patent Office Handbook (price one rupee) which contains the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary Rules) Act, 1915, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary) Rules, 1916, together with current regulations and instructions. These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs or on their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. For information regarding patents in countries other than India applications should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration. Neither does this Act deal with pictures, photographs, etc., for which copyright is obtainable under the Indian Copyright Act, 1914.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. NOTIFICATION.

The 14th September 1918.

No. 3658-R.—The following is published for general information with reference to section 42 of the Land Acquisition Act, I of 1894 :—

MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT made this first day of June 1918 between the India General Navigation and Railway Company Limited, a Company incorporated under the English Companies Act having its principal place of business in India at No. 4 Fairlie Place in the town of Calcutta and the Rivers Steam Navigation Company Limited, a Company incorporated under the English Companies Act having its principal place of business in India at No. 2 Clive Ghat Street in the town of Calcutta hereinafter called "The Companies" of the one part and the Secretary of State for India in Council and on his behalf the Chief Commissioner of Assam hereinafter called "The Secretary of State" of the other part.

Whereas for the purpose of the construction of permanent sheds, offices and godowns for the storage and safe custody of imported and exported goods the Companies have applied to the Chief Commissioner of Assam for the acquisition under the provision of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, of the piece or parcel of land containing in all 13 bighas 17 cottahs 15 chitaks of land situated at Kadirgunge Markuli in the thana of Nabiganj and more particularly described in the schedule hereto and delineated in the plan hereunto annexed.

And whereas the said Chief Commissioner of Assam being satisfied by an enquiry held under Section 10 of the said Act that the proposed acquisition is needed for the aforesaid purpose and that the said work is likely to prove useful to the public, has consented to acquire on behalf of the Companies the piece or parcel of land hereinbefore described.

And whereas the said Chief Commissioner of Assam has required the Companies under the provisions of Section 41 of the above-mentioned Act to enter into the Agreement with the Secretary of State hereinafter contained. Now this indenture witnesseth that it is hereby agreed and declared as follows :—

- (1) On demand the Companies shall and will pay to the said Chief Commissioner of Assam all and every compensation in respect of the said land tendered, paid or awarded or to be tendered, paid or awarded by the Collector of Sylhet under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, or by the Court to which a reference under part III of the said Act may be made, or by the Court or Courts to which an appeal from the award of the said Court may be preferred and all costs, charges and expenses of the proceedings in the aforesaid Courts, or otherwise incidental to the proposed acquisition or payable in respect thereof under the provisions of the said Act.
- (2) On demand made by the said Collector the obligations of the Companies under the last preceding clause not being thereby limited, the Companies shall and will deposit with the said Collector such sum or sums of money as in his discretion the said Collector may in anticipation estimate to be necessary for the purposes mentioned in the last preceding clause.
- (3) On payment by the Companies of all demands under the foregoing first clause or in the discretion of the said Chief Commissioner of Assam (on deposit by the Companies of all estimated amounts as provided in the second clause), but not before possession shall have been taken under the provisions of the above-mentioned Act, the Secretary of State shall make over possession of the said land to the Companies and shall execute and do all such acts and deeds as may be necessary and proper for effectually vesting the same in the Companies.
- (4) The said land shall be held by the Companies for the purpose of carrying on their business as Common Carriers as is hereinbefore mentioned and without the sanction in writing of the said Chief Commissioner of Assam first had and obtained for no other purpose whatsoever.
- (5) The improvements in the present buildings, etc., shall be taken in hand as soon as the possession of the said land shall have been given to the Companies and completed in three years.
- (6) Should the said improvements not be completed (and fully equipped in all respects ready for use) within the period stated in the last preceding clause or within such further period as in his discretion may be prescribed or allowed by the said Chief Commissioner of Assam, or should the said land at any time thereafter cease for a period of 12 consecutive months, to be held and used, or cease to be required for the purpose or purposes provided for in the foregoing fourth clause then and in any such case the said Chief Commissioner of Assam may summarily re-enter upon and take possession of the said land and structures thereon and thereupon the interest of the Companies in the said land and structures shall absolutely cease and determine.
- (7) On taking such possession the Chief Commissioner of Assam may sell or otherwise deal with the said land and structures as he may think proper. Should the said Chief Commissioner of Assam sell the land and structures of the said Chief Commissioner of Assam after deducting the expenses incurred in connection with the said taking of possession and with such sale, shall pay the proceeds to the Companies. Should the said Chief Commissioner of Assam on taking possession decide not to sell the land, he shall repay to the Companies all sums received from the Companies in respect of all and every compensation as provided in the foregoing first clause (less the statutory allowance of 15 per cent) but will not repay any sums paid and received on account of costs, charges and expenses.

(8) The public shall be entitled to use the godowns on the following terms:—viz., for the storage of goods booked for despatch or for delivery to the public by the said Companies on payment of the rates in force for the time being in accordance with the rules and regulations of the said Companies.

(9) Should any dispute or difference arise touching or concerning the subject-matter of this Agreement or any covenant clause or thing herein contained the same shall be referred to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, and the opinion and decision of the said Chief Commissioner upon such dispute or difference shall be final and conclusive and binding on the parties hereto.

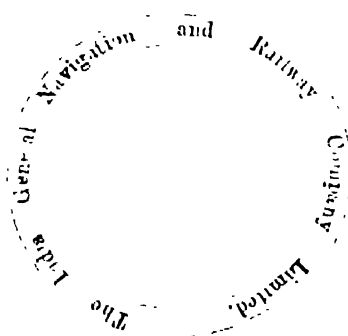

In witness whereof the Companies have caused their common seals to be affixed and the Secretary of State for India in Council and on his behalf the Chief Commissioner of Assam hath hereunto set his hand and seal the day and year first above written.

The common seals of the above-named Companies were hereto affixed in the presence of

No. 3659-B.—The following is published for general information with reference to section 42 of the Land Acquisition Act, I of 1894:—

MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT made this first day of February 1918 between the India General Navigation and Railway Company Limited, a Company incorporated under the English Companies Act having its principal place of business in India at No. 4 Fairlie Place in the town of Calcutta and the Rivers Steam Navigation Company Limited, a Company incorporated under the English Companies Act having its principal place of business in India at No. 2 Clive Ghat Street in the town of Calcutta hereinafter called "The Companies" of the one part and the Secretary of State for India in Council and on his behalf the Chief Commissioner of Assam hereinafter called "The Secretary of State" of the other part.

Whereas for the purpose of the construction of permanent sheds and offices and godowns for the storage and safe custody of imported and exported goods the Companies have applied to the Chief Commissioner of Assam for the acquisition under the provision of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, of the piece or parcel of land containing 1 (one) bigha 6 (six) katas and 10 (ten) chhataks of land situated in the town of Sonamganj in the district of Sylhet and more particularly described in the schedule hereto and delineated in the plan hereunto annexed.

And whereas the said Chief Commissioner of Assam being satisfied by an enquiry held under section 40 of the said Act that the proposed acquisition is needed for the aforesaid purpose and that the said work is likely to prove useful to the public, has consented to acquire on behalf of the Companies the piece or parcel of land hereinbefore described.

And whereas the said Chief Commissioner of Assam has required the Companies under the provisions of section 41 of the above mentioned Act to enter into the Agreement with the Secretary of State hereinafter contained. Now this indenture witnesseth that it is hereby agreed and declared as follows:—

1. On demand the Companies shall and will pay to the said Chief Commissioner of Assam all and every compensation in respect of the said land tendered, paid or awarded or to be tendered, paid or awarded by the Collector of Sylhet under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, or by the Court to which a reference under Part III of the said Act may be made, or by the Court or Courts to which an appeal from the award of the said Court may be preferred and all costs, charges and expenses of the proceedings in the aforesaid Courts, or otherwise incidental to the proposed acquisition or payable in respect thereof under the provisions of the said Act.
2. On demand made by the said Collector the obligations of the Companies under the last preceding clause not being thereby limited, the Companies shall and will deposit with the said Collector such sum or sums of money as in his discretion the said Collector may in anticipation estimate to be necessary for the purposes mentioned in the last preceding clause.
3. On payment by the Companies of all demands under the foregoing first clause, or in the discretion of the said Chief Commissioner of Assam (on deposit by the Companies of all estimated amounts as provided in the 2nd clause), but not before possession shall have been taken under the provisions of the above-mentioned Act, the Secretary of State shall make over possession of the said land to the Companies and shall execute and do all such acts and deeds as may be necessary and proper for effectually vesting the same in the Companies.
4. The said land shall be held by the Companies for the purpose of carrying on their business as Common Carriers as is hereinbefore mentioned and without the sanction in writing of the said Chief Commissioner of Assam first had and obtained for no other purpose whatsoever.
5. The improvements in the present buildings, etc., shall be taken in hand as soon as the possession of the said land shall have been given to the Companies and completed in 3 years.
6. Should the said improvements not be completed (and fully equipped in all respects ready for use) within the period stated in the last preceding clause or within such further period as in his discretion may be prescribed or allowed by the said Chief Commissioner of Assam, or should the said land at any time thereafter cease for a period of 12 consecutive months, to be held and used, or cease to be required for the purpose or purposes provided for in the foregoing fourth clause then and in any such case, the said Chief Commissioner of Assam may summarily re-enter upon and take possession of the said land and structures thereon and thereupon the interest of the Companies in the said land and structures shall absolutely cease and determine.
7. On taking such possession the Chief Commissioner of Assam may sell or otherwise deal with the said land and structures as he may think proper. Should the said Chief Commissioner of Assam sell the land and structures the said Chief Commissioner of Assam after deducting the expense incurred in connection with the said taking of possession and with such sale, shall pay the proceeds to the Companies. Should the said Chief Commissioner of Assam on taking possession decide not to sell the land, he shall repay to the Companies all sums received from the Companies in respect of all and every compensation as provided in the foregoing first clause (less the statutory allowance of 15 per cent.) but will not repay any sums paid and received on account of costs, charges and expenses.

8. The public shall be entitled to use the godowns on the following terms:—viz., for the storage of goods booked for despatch or for delivery to the public by the said Companies on payment of the rates in force for the time being in accordance with the rules and regulations of the said Companies.
9. Should any dispute or difference arise touching or concerning the subject-matter of this Agreement or any covenant clause or thing herein contained the same shall be referred to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, and the opinion and decision of the said Chief Commissioner upon such dispute or difference shall be final and conclusive and binding on the parties hereto.

In witness whereof the Companies have caused their common seals to be affixed and the Secretary of State for India in Council and on his behalf the Chief Commissioner of Assam hath hereunto set his hand and seal the day and year first above written.

The common seals of the above-mentioned Companies were hereto affixed in the presence of

IMPORTS INTO CHIEF PORTS DURING AUGUST, 1918

RETURN SHOWING the QUANTITIES of the PRINCIPAL STAPLES of AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE IMPORTED into CALCUTTA, BOMBAY, KARACHI, and MADRAS PORTS by RAIL, RIVER, and SEA during the month of AUGUST, 1918

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

October 29, 1918

N. G. BASAK,

Offg. Director of Statistics.

Published by order of the Governor-General in Council

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN SELECTED ARTICLES IN AUGUST, 1918

The object of the tables appended is to show the quantities of the principal staples of agricultural produce imported from the various provinces, etc., and from foreign countries into the ports of Calcutta, Bombay, and Karachi, and into the Madras ports during the month of August, 1918, and for the five months, April to August, 1918, as compared with the corresponding periods of 1917. The statistics include foreign sea-borne and coasting trade as well as inland (rail and river-borne) trade. They have been furnished by Collectors of Customs, Steamer Companies, Railway Audit Officers, the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta, etc.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN AUGUST, 1917 AND 1918.

It will be seen from Table I, that the imports by rail, river, and sea in August, 1918, as against the corresponding month of 1917, show (in round numbers) an increase of—

- 185 per cent in gram and pulse
(90,800 tons as against 31,800 tons last year),
- 127 per cent in linseed
(33,600 tons as against 14,500 tons last year),
- 67 per cent in rape and mustard seed
(7,600 tons as against 4,600 tons last year),
- 12 per cent in jute
(568,300 bales as against 309,000 bales last year),
- 22 per cent in raw cotton
(165,700 bales as against 135,100 bales last year), and
- 3 per cent in rice, including paddy
(90,400 tons as against 87,900 tons last year)

The imports of wheat (excluding wheat flour) by rail, river and sea into ports show a decrease of 65 per cent (55,100 tons as against 157,200 tons last year), owing mainly to smaller exports from the Punjab, the United Provinces, the Central Provinces and Berar, Rajputana and Central India, and Sind and British Baluchistan. The fall of 13 per cent (32,482,200 lbs. as against 37,540,700 lbs last year) in the imports of tea into Calcutta is chiefly due to smaller exports from Bengal.

It will be seen from Table IV (wheat, excluding wheat flour) that the principal source of the imports in August, 1917, was the Punjab. During August, 1918, the principal sources of the imports were the Punjab (40 per cent) and the United Provinces (34 per cent of the total).

NOTE.— One bale of cotton or jute is equivalent to 400 lbs.

One maund is equivalent to 82½ lbs

One maund of paddy is taken as equivalent to 25 seers of rice

GENERAL RESULTS—FIVE MONTHS' IMPORTS INTO THE PORTS FROM UP-COUNTRY, ETC., THIS YEAR AND LAST YEAR.

The five months' figures in table I show (in round numbers) an increase of—

- 95 per cent in jute
(1,957,300 bales as against 1,002,000 bales last year),
- 30 per cent in linseed
(121,500 tons as against 93,800 tons last year),
- 27 per cent in gram and pulse
(460,000 tons as against 361,200 tons last year),
- 18 per cent in tea
(99,043,300 lbs as against 83,982,300 lbs last year), and
- 6 per cent in rice, including paddy
(406,300 tons as against 385,000 tons last year).

The imports of wheat (excluding wheat flour) by rail, river, and sea into ports show a decrease of 51 per cent (642,500 tons as against 1,299,300 tons last year), mainly on account of smaller exports from the Punjab, the Central Provinces and Berar, Rajputana and Central India, and Sind and British Baluchistan. The fall of 28 per cent (1,262,800 bales as against 1,749,000 bales last year) in raw cotton is accounted for by smaller exports into the ports from Bombay, the Central Provinces and Berar, Rajputana and Central India and Madras. The decrease of 18 per cent (51,700 tons as against 66,400 tons last year) in rape and mustard seed is chiefly due to smaller exports from the United Provinces.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN AUGUST, 1918, AS COMPARED WITH THE PREVIOUS MONTH.

As compared with July, 1918, the imports in August, 1918, into the ports referred to above show (in round numbers) an increase of—

- 36 per cent in jute
(568,300 bales as against 418,100 bales previous month),
- 34 per cent in tea
(32,482,200 lbs as against 24,330,100 lbs previous month),
- 34 per cent in linseed
(33,600 tons as against 25,000 tons previous month),
- 28 per cent in gram and pulse (90,800 tons as against 71,000 tons previous month), and
- 20 per cent in rice, including paddy
(90,400 tons as against 75,000 tons previous month),

and a decrease of—

- 59 per cent in wheat, excluding wheat flour
(55,100 tons as against 135,000 tons previous month),
- 32 per cent in raw cotton
(165,700 bales as against 242,100 bales previous month), and
- 11 per cent in rape and mustard seed
(7,600 tons as against 8,600 tons previous month).

The Statistics for August, 1917 and 1918, as also for the five months ending August, 1917 and 1918, together with those for July and August, 1918, are summarised below :—

SEPTEMBER, 1918.

During the month under report, 22 companies were registered with an aggregate authorised capital of over R88 lakhs, as against 24 companies with an aggregate authorised capital of about R82 lakhs in the corresponding month of the preceding year. Bengal alone accounted for 15 companies (R69 lakhs). For the six months, April to September, 1918, the number of companies registered was 125 with an authorised capital of R5,04 lakhs, as against 119 companies with R3,51 lakhs of authorised capital in the corresponding period of the preceding year. The largest flotation in September was that of the Textile and General Investment Co., Calcutta (R25 lakhs).

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

CALCUTTA, OCTOBER 21, 1918.

Second SESAMUM Forecast, 1918-19.

This forecast is based upon reports received from eight provinces, which contain on an average 76 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India. The returns in this forecast exclude estimates for the "mixed" crop of the United Provinces and for the late crop of Bengal and Madras. The final Memorandum, which will be published in January, will include, as will usual, returns for these crops.

The total area so far reported for the present season is 1,589,000 acres, as against 2,756,000 acres reported at this time last year, or a decrease of 42 per cent. Details of the area by provinces are stated below:—

Second forecast, October.

Provinces	1918-19	1917-18	Increase + or Decrease —
	Acres	Acres	Acres
United Provinces (unmixed crop)	125,000	200,000	—75,000
Central Provinces and Berar	477,000	580,000	—103,000
Madras	400,000	661,000	—261,000
Bombay (including Native States)	190,000	703,000	—513,000
Bengal (early crop)	169,000	172,000	—3,000
Bihar and Orissa	138,000	179,000	—41,000
Punjab	67,000	194,000	—127,000
Sind (including Native States)	20,000	41,000	—21,000
Ajmer-Merwara	3,000	23,000	—20,000
TOTAL	1,589,000	2,756,000	—1,167,000

The present condition of the crop is reported to be good only in the Central Provinces and Berar and in Bihar. Elsewhere the crop has suffered through deficient rainfall, and its condition is, on the whole, only fair.

The provincial reports are summarised below:—

United Provinces (25 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The area sown with the "unmixed" crop, is estimated at 125,000 acres, which is 37 per cent below the area estimated at the corresponding date of last year. No estimate is available at present of the area sown with the "mixed" crop, which usually constitutes over two-thirds of the total area under sesamum in these provinces. Except in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions, the rainfall has been light and insufficient throughout the monsoon period, and sowings were consequently restricted. In Mirzapur and Bundelkhand, which constitute the principal sesamum growing tracts of the provinces, the crop suffered severely from drought, and the outturn is estimated at 40 per cent of the normal; elsewhere it is estimated at from 40 to 80 per cent.

Central Provinces and Berar (16 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The area sown is now estimated at 477,000 acres, being 18 per cent below the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The decrease is attributed to excessive rain at sowing time, want of sufficient seed, and failure of last year's crop. In August and the first fortnight of September the rainfall, though generally light, was well distributed, and the condition and prospects of the crop are at present on the whole satisfactory, but the crop is likely to deteriorate unless a few more showers are received soon. A normal (100 per cent) outturn is at present anticipated for the provinces as a whole.

Madras (15·8 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The area sown up to 1st October is estimated at 400,000 acres, and is 40 per cent below the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The decrease is attributed to the failure of the south-west monsoon in July and August. This estimate does not include the late crop, which is sown from January to March.

Bombay (5·5 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The area sown is estimated at 190,000 acres (117,000 acres being in the Native States), being 73 per cent below the area reported at this date last year. The decrease is mainly due to the deficiency of rain at sowing time. The crop in north Gujarat has practically withered owing to the absence of rain after sowing. In south Gujarat its condition is fair. In the Deccan and Karnatak also the crop suffered from deficiency of rain, and it has mostly dried up in the light soils in the east. Elsewhere and in the western tracts its condition has improved by the recent rains, and a moderate yield may be expected. The condition of the crop in the Konkan is fairly good, except in a few places where it has suffered for want of moisture.

Bengal (4·8 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—No report is furnished by the province in October. The figure reported in the August forecast for the early crop was 169,000 acres, as against 172,000 acres for the corresponding period of last year.

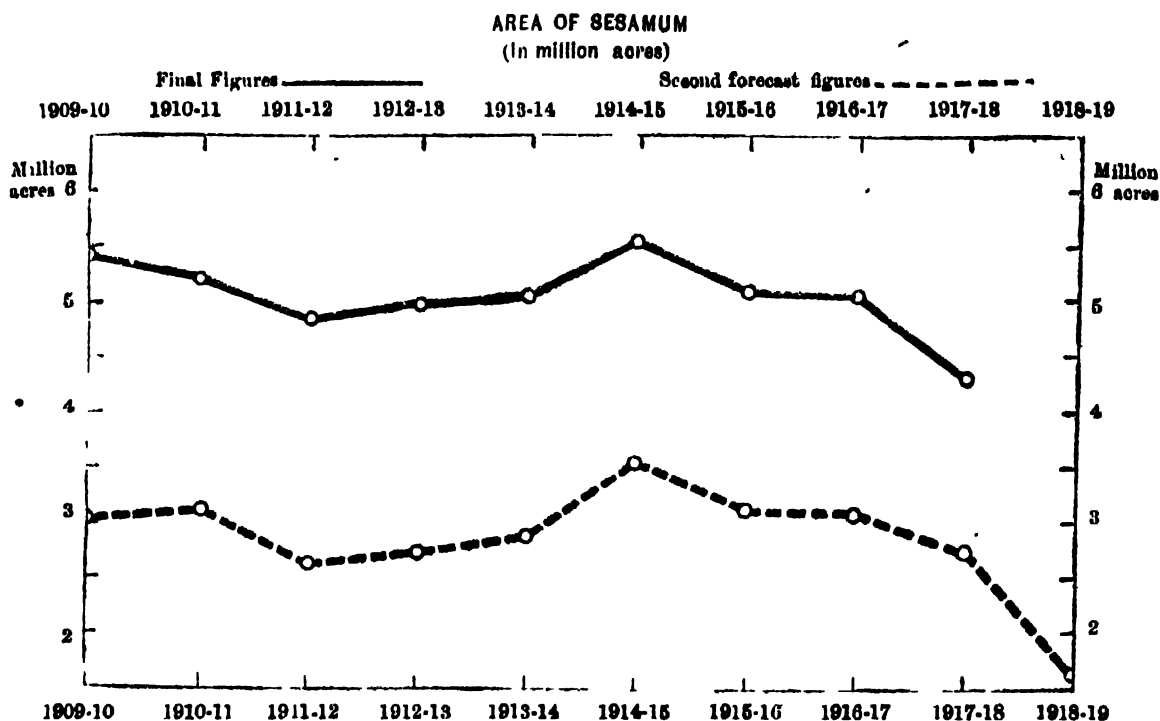

Bihar and Orissa (4 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The total area sown with both early and late crops is reported to be 138,000 acres, being 23 per cent below the area reported at this date last year. Sowings of the late crop continued at the date of report in Champaran, Bhagalpur, Angul, and Sambalpur. The weather conditions have been generally favourable for the crop, except in parts of Orissa and Chota Nagpur, where there was a deficiency of rain at the time of sowing. The average outturn for the province as a whole is estimated at 99 per cent of the normal, as against 106 per cent estimated at this time last year.

Punjab (3·5 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The area sown up to the end of September is estimated at 67,000 acres, being 65 per cent below the area reported at the corresponding date last year, which was, however, an over-estimate. The condition of the irrigated crop is average, and that of the unirrigated crop below average owing to deficiency of rains.

Sind (1·1 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The area sown is estimated at 20,000 acres, and is 51 per cent below the area reported at this date last year. The decrease is attributed to low inundation and scanty rainfall. The crop is reported to be poor in Larkana owing to deficient water supply, elsewhere its condition is generally fair.

Ajmer-Merwara (0.5 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The area sown is estimated at 3,000 acres, being 87 per cent below the area reported at this date last year. The large decrease is attributed to the failure of rains at sowing time. The crop on unirrigated area has withered, and that on irrigated area is in fair condition.

Chart.—The chart below illustrates the variations in the second estimates of acreage in the last ten years as compared with those in the final figures. The second estimates, it should be remembered, exclude the "mixed" crop (sesamum grown in combination with other crops) of the United Provinces and the late crop of Bengal and Madras, for which no estimate is made at this stage.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

CALCUTTA, OCTOBER 21, 1918.

First GROUNDNUT Forecast, 1918-19.

This forecast is based upon reports received from the three provinces of Madras, Burma, and Bombay, which comprise 99 per cent of the entire groundnut area of British India.

The total area sown in the present season in these provinces is estimated at 1,147,000 acres, as against 1,771,000 acres estimated at this date last year, or a decrease of 35 per cent. The decrease is attributed to deficient rainfall at sowing time.

Details for the provinces are stated below.—

First forecast, October.

Provinces	1918-19	1917-18	Increase + or Decrease —
	Acres	Acres	Acres
Madras.	821,000	1,327,000	—506,000
Burma	236,000	237,000	—1,000
Bombay (including Native States)	90,000	207,000	—117,000
Total	1,147,000	1,771,000	—624,000

The provincial reports are summarised below—

Madras (77 per cent of the total area under groundnut in British India)—The area sown up to 1st October is estimated at 821,000 acres, and is 38 per cent below the area reported at this date last year. The decrease is most marked in the Deccan, where sowings were greatly restricted owing to the failure of the rains in July and August. In Cuddapah, however, local rains enabled a fair area to be sown. The rains received in September were too late for sowing in this tract. There is also a large decrease in the Coimbatore, Salem, Trichinopoly, and Tanjore districts for similar reasons. It is possible that late September sowings in the south, which were not reported in time for this forecast, may bring the final area up to about 900,000 acres.

Burma (12 per cent of the total area under groundnut in British India).—The total area sown is estimated at 236,000 acres, as against 237,000 acres reported at this date last year. The condition of the crop is reported to be satisfactory, except in the Magwe, Meiktila, and Myingyan districts, where rainfall has been unfavourable.

Bombay (10 per cent of the total area under groundnut in British India).—The total area sown is estimated at 90,000 acres (17,000 acres being in the Native States), which is 56 per cent below the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The decrease is attributed to deficiency of rain at sowing time. The crop suffered through absence of rain after sowing. Recent rains have benefited the crop in places, and its condition is generally fair. The irrigated crop is mostly doing well, except where water supply was deficient or was required for other more important crops.

CALCUTTA OCTOBER 22, 1918.

First RICE Forecast, 1918-19.

This forecast is based upon reports furnished by provinces, which contain about 99 per cent of the total area under rice in British India. The reports relate to conditions up to the 1st October.

The total area sown is reported to be 70,952,000 acres, which is 6 per cent below the revised estimate (75,315,000 acres) for the corresponding period of last year. As compared with the final estimate of last year (79,614,000* acres), the present estimate shows a decrease of 11 per cent. Detailed figures for the provinces are given below.—

First forecast

Province	1918-19	1917-18	Increase and or Decrease—
Bengal (a) . . .	21,362,000	20,748,000	+ 614,000
Bihar and Orissa (a)	15,080,000	15,595,000	— 515,000
Madras	6,082,000	5,302,000	+ 780,000
Burma	10,631,000	10,695,000	— 64,000
United Provinces (a)	5,827,000	7,171,000	— 1,344,000
Central Provinces and Berar	5,118,000	5,139,000	— 21,000
Assam (a) . . .	4,099,000	4,311,000	— 212,000
Bombay and Sind (including Native States)	2,695,000	3,331,000	— 636,000
TOTAL	70,952,000	75,315,000	— 4,363,000

The weather conditions at sowing time were not favourable, except in Lower Burma, the Central Provinces and Berar, and for the winter crop of Bengal. The present condition of the crop appears to be generally good in Burma, the Central Provinces and Berar, Madras, and with regard to the winter crop of Bengal and Bihar and Orissa. Elsewhere prospects are not very hopeful. Rain is badly wanted in the Central Provinces and Berar and in Bihar and Orissa.

The provincial reports are summarised below —

Bengal (26.3 per cent of the total area under rice in British India) —(i) The area sown with autumn (ana) rice is reported to be 5,046,000 acres, as against 5,074,000 acres estimated at this time last year. The weather conditions up to May were generally favourable. The heavy rainfall in June and the absence of sunshine, however, retarded the growth of the crop. The crop further suffered through want of rain in July in the western districts, and through floods in that month and excessive rain in August in the eastern and northern districts. On the whole, the season was not a favourable one for the autumn crop. For the province, as a whole, the average outturn is estimated at 81 per cent of the normal, as against 87 per cent estimated at this date last year.

(ii) The area under winter (aman) rice, which is the main crop, is estimated at 15,946,000 acres, which is 4 per cent above the estimate made at this time last year. The season began very favourably, and the sowings of the deep-water broadcast crop and of seedbeds were completed in good time. As a result of the favourable rainfall in May and June preparatory tillage for the transplanted crop was well advanced. In July the rainfall was generally deficient, but the deficiency was completely made up in August and a full area of the transplanted crop has been put down. From the district reports the average outturn for the province, as a whole, works out to 90 per cent of the normal, as against 96 per cent estimated at this time last year; but the provincial Director considers 95 per cent of the normal as representing a fairly reasonable expectation for the Presidency in the absence of any unduly unfavourable weather conditions.

(iii) An area of 370,000 acres was reported in March last to be under summer (boro) rice, which is 1 per cent below the corresponding estimate of last year. The outturn was estimated at 77 per cent of the normal, which amounts to 141,000 tons, as against 168,000 tons last year.

Bihar and Orissa (20.5 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—(i) The area under autumn rice is estimated at 3,748,000 acres, which is 1 per cent below the corresponding estimate of last year. Excessive rain in June and deficient rainfall in July hampered sowings and the growth of the crop, and the season on the whole has not been altogether favourable. On the basis of the district reports the average outturn is estimated at 82 per cent of the normal. The Director of Agriculture, however, remarks that the outturn appears to have been underestimated in some districts, and that in view of the good rainfall received in August, the average outturn will not fall far short of 90 per cent of the normal.

(ii) The total area sown with winter rice is estimated at 11,292,000 acres, as against 11,764,000 acres reported at this time last year, or a decrease of 4 per cent. The weather conditions were not favourable in the early part of the season, but the good rain received in August and the first half of September was favourable for the crop. According to the estimates made by district officers in September the outturn for the province, as a whole, works out to 92 per cent of the normal, as against 99 per cent estimated at this time last year. The prospects of the crop, however, depend on the rainfall during October.

*Excluding Coorg for which no estimate is available at this stage

(a) Including summer, autumn, and winter rice.

(b) Revised figure.

(iii) An area of 40,000 acres was reported in March last to be under summer rice, which is about 3 per cent above the corresponding estimate of last year. The outturn was estimated at 14,000 tons, the same as in last year.

Madras (14.1 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—The area sown up to 1st October is estimated at 6,082,000 acres, being 27 per cent below the corresponding estimate of last year. The decrease is general, and is due to the weakness of the south-west monsoon from June to August. Heavy rains were received in the middle of September in the Circars and Deccan, and sowings were in progress at the time of reporting. There is still a large area of the main crop as well as second crop which will be planted in the Carnatic, Centre, and South, provided a normal north-east monsoon is received.

Burma (13.3 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—The area sown is estimated at 10,631,000 acres, which is about 1 per cent below the corresponding estimate of last year. Heavy floods in Insein, Hantawaddy, Tharrawaddy, Henzada, Maubin, and Thaton destroyed a large area, and replanting over a portion of this area is in progress. In Lower Burma rainfall started early and was ample. In Upper Burma rainfall was scanty and erratic. Crop prospects are generally good throughout the province.

United Provinces (8.3 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—(i) The total area sown with autumn (early) and winter (late) rice is estimated at 5,800,000 acres, being 19 per cent below the corresponding estimate of last year. The rainfall of May was somewhat above normal in the submontane districts; elsewhere it was slight. During June it was normal in the Rohilkhand, Gorakhpur and Benares divisions, which are the principal rice-growing tracts of the provinces, and in part of Oudh; over the rest of the provinces it was insufficient for sowing. There was some rain in the early part of July in the submontane districts, but the last two weeks were almost rainless throughout the provinces. The area sown was consequently short in the Doab and Bundelkhand. The Benares and Gorakhpur divisions received sufficient rain throughout August, elsewhere the break which had lasted throughout July did not end until the third week of August, when it was too late for general sowings. There was some rain in the first week of September, but the greater part of the month was rainless. Under these conditions early rice suffered severely in Rohilkhand and most of Oudh, while late rice will probably only mature where irrigation is available.

(ii) In addition to the above, the estimates for hot weather rice are 25,000 acres and 12,000 tons, as against 24,000 acres and 11,000 tons last year.

Central Provinces and Berar (6.4 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—The total area sown with rice is estimated at 5,188,000 acres (37,000 acres being in Berar). This is 1 per cent above the revised estimate for the corresponding period of last year. Sowings were generally carried out under favourable circumstances and germination was on the whole good; but weeding and thinning operations were retarded by a lengthy break in the rains at the end of July. In August and the first part of September the rainfall, although generally light, was well distributed, and the prospects are at present hopeful in the heavy rice tract of the south of the provinces, although on light soils the crop is drying and more rain is now wanted. In the north of the provinces, particularly in Damoh and Jubbulpore, where the crop was sown late, rain is wanted more urgently, while in the plateau districts the early broadcast rice will give a normal outturn.

Assam (6 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—(i) The area sown with autumn rice is estimated at 644,000 acres, which is 22 per cent below the estimate made at this time last year. Insufficient rain at the sowing time and a previous good winter harvest reduced the area under autumn rice in several districts. Later in the season the weather was marked by heavy rain and high floods, which damaged the crop, particularly in Sylhet and Goalpara. The average outturn for the province, as a whole, is estimated at 69 per cent of the normal as against 85 per cent last year.

(ii) The area under winter rice is estimated at 3,195,000 acres, which is 2 per cent below the corresponding estimate of last year. The weather up to May was generally favourable, but during June and July it was marked by abnormal rains and high floods, which damaged the broadcast crop in Sylhet and prevented transplanting in parts of Nowgong. Subsequent conditions have been favourable for the transplanted crop in all districts. The average outturn is provisionally estimated at 80 per cent of the normal, which works out to 1,086,000 tons, as against 1,340,000 tons estimated at this time last year.

(iii) An area of 250,000 acres was reported in March last to be under summer rice, this being the same as reported in the preceding year. The outturn was estimated at 90,000 tons as against 96,000 tons last year.

Bombay and Sind (3.8 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—The area sown in the British districts is estimated at 2,175,000 acres (455,000 acres being in Sind), which is 19 per cent below the corresponding estimate of last year. Native States report a total area of 520,000 acres (8,000 acres being in Sind) as against 640,000 acres at this time last year. The information is, however, still incomplete. Deficiency of rain at the early stage curtailed area everywhere, particularly in Gujarat and in the Deccan. In Sind low inundation brought about the same result, especially in the south. Since May the rains have generally been more or less defective, which have delayed transplanting operations and are damaging crops except in favourable situations or where helped by irrigation. On the whole, the condition of the crops is only fair in the Konkan and West Deccan; elsewhere it is poor. In Sind the crop suffered more or less from deficient water-supply and its condition is fair to poor.

Chart.—The chart below illustrates the variations in the preliminary estimates of area as compared with those in the final figures of the last ten years. It should, however, be remembered that the large increase during 1911-12 to 1913-14 was largely due to the addition of reporting tracts from year to year.

Rice Crop in Foreign Countries.—From the latest information published by the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, it appears that in the United States of America, the area sown with the crop in 1918 is estimated at 1,120,000 acres as against 964,000 acres in 1917. In Italy the area sown in 1918 is estimated at 321,000 acres, which is 7 per cent below the estimate of 1917. The condition of the crop is reported to be good.

From information especially obtained from British Consulates, it appears that the area under rice crop in Java in 1918 is estimated at 8,304,000 acres. The rice crop in Korea is reported to be favourable this year: and owing to the increased acreage under cultivation and the promising growth, the yield is expected to amount to 1,379,000 tons, which is 13 per cent above the estimate of 1917.

CALCUTTA, OCTOBER 22, 1918

Second SUGARCANE Forecast, 1918-19

This forecast is based upon reports furnished by provinces, which contain, on an average, 99 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India

The area so far reported this year, amounts to 2,590,000 acres, as against 2,565,000 acres estimated at this time last year, or an increase of 1 per cent. As compared with the final estimate (2,796,000 acres) last year, the present estimate shows a decrease of 7 per cent.

The crop has been adversely affected by deficient rainfall in northern India, and rain is badly wanted in parts of the United Provinces. In Bengal a good deal of damage has been done by floods. Elsewhere the present condition of the crop is reported to be generally good.

The detailed figures for the provinces are as follows:—

Second forecast, October.

Province	1918-19	1917-18	Increase + or Decrease -
	Acres	Acres	Acres
United Provinces . . .	1,325,000	1,342,000	-17,000
Punjab	170,000	148,000	+22,000

North-West Frontier Province . . .	31,000	30,000	+1,000
Central Provinces and Berar	28,000	25,000	+3,000
Total	2,590,000	2,565,000	+25,000

The provincial reports are summarised below —

United Provinces (53 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India)—The area planted was estimated in August last at 1,325,000 acres, as against 1,342,000 acres at the corresponding time last year, or a decrease of 1 per cent. No modification has been made since the publication of the August forecast. Benares and Gorakhpur divisions received sufficient rain throughout August, over the rest of the provinces, the break, which had lasted throughout July, came to an end about the third week of August, and in the latter half of that month most districts had a well distributed rainfall. There was some rain in the first week of September, but the greater part of the month was rainless, and the temperature was abnormally high. The outturn for the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions is estimated at about 90 per cent of the normal, but the condition of the crop is deteriorating, and if no further rain is received this estimate may require modification. Elsewhere conditions have been less favourable owing to deficient rainfall and inadequate supplies of water in the canals, and the outturn may be put at between 50 to 80 per cent of the normal.

Punjab (15.6 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India)—The revised estimate of area up to the end of September is 470,000 acres, which is 5 per cent above the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The season has not been favourable, but the rains in the latter half of August and the beginning of September to some extent benefited the crop, which is average to good on irrigated area, and below average on unirrigated area.
